RARE OWL NOW AT MUSEUM

Thieu: Peace Bid Rejected By Nixon

Report Of Decision Given To Assembly

SAIGON (UPI) — President Nguyen Van Thieu told South Vietnamese legislators that President Nixon rejected a North Vietnamese offer of a cease-fire before the Nov. 7 U.S. presidential elections, members of the National Assembly said today.

The legislators said Thieu told a conference of about 40 members of the National Assembly Thursday night that the North Vietnamese had proposed the cease-fire to be followed by a coalition government extending from the national down to the hamlet level in South Vietnam.

Thieu said he himself vetoed the coalition with the Communists and that Nixon then turned down the cease-fire, the lawmakers said.

The legislators said Thieu did not give any specific reason for Nixon's reported rejection of the cease-fire. Thieu said only that he would not accept the coalition government.

In Paris the North Vietnamese renewed their demand that Thieu step down in favor of a coalition regime which would include Viet Cong elements.

"Thieu must resign," a spokesman for the Hanoi talks delegation said in a brief statement.

Both the North Vietnamese and the Viet Cong have said that Thieu must leave office before any cease-fire or negotiated settlement can come in Vietnam.

The lawmakers said Thieu told them a cease-fire before the election would be advantageous to the North Vietnamese. After the election Nixon would have four more years to negotiate an end to the war.

The president's two-hour conference with the legislators was held after Nixon's special adviser Henry A. Kissinger and Thieu conferred at the Presidential palace for five hours.

Kissinger, Thieu, members of the South Vietnamese National Security Council and American officials met again today for 3½ hours.

No details of the meetings were given to newsmen. An official South Vietnamese statement today said "both sides continued discussion of the general situation and the Paris peace talks."

The newspaper Tin Song (Live News) reported today Kissinger would meet Saturday with South Vietnamese political leaders. The newspaper is partially financed by Thieu's nephew and personal secretary Hoang Duc Nha who was present at the meetings with Kissinger.

A U.S. Embassy spokesman said "we are not going to be commenting about the discussions or the negotiations."

Thieu has adamantly rejected any coalition government proposal that includes the Communists. He has said such a government would turn South Vietnam over to the Communists.

Deputy Nguyen Van Thong, chairman of the House Internal Affairs Committee, said Thieu told the legislators that the internal conflict with the Viet Cong must be settled by the South Vietnamese government. Thieu said no outside government can "interfere" with the settlement, including the North Vietnamese "and the Allies."

Revenue Sharing Enacted

PHILADELPHIA (UPI) — Standing outside the historic hall where the Declaration of Independence and the Constitution were written, President Nixon signed into law today his $30.2 million revenue sharing bill and declared "the New American Revolution is truly under way."

The Treasury Department was already preparing to mail the first checks to 38,000 states, counties, cities and towns as Nixon's signature completed action on the five-year program.

An audience of several hundred Republican and Democratic governors, mayors, congressmen and civic leaders attended the ceremony at Independence Hall under cloudless skies in sunny 50-degree weather.

"The American people are fed up with government that doesn't deliver," Nixon said in a written statement. "Revenue sharing can help state and local governments deliver again, closing the gap between promise and performance.

"Revenue sharing will give the hard pressed governments the dollars they need so badly. But, just as importantly, it will give them the freedom they need to use those dollars as effectively as possible."

The President flew by helicopter from the White House to Philadelphia for the appearance which the White House billed as nonpolitical. But the trip gave the President an opportunity to underscore several of his campaign themes.

He predicted many states and localities, which will receive the first $5.3 billion in two payments in December and early January, would use the funds to reduce property, sales and income taxes.

Other communities, he said, will use the funds for better schools and hospitals, more policemen, drug control programs, job training, recreation or public transportation improvement.

The President promised to keep the program free of bureaucratic red tape as well.

"States and cities will not have to worry about filing complicated plans, filling out endless forms, meeting lots of administrative regulations or submitting to all sorts of bureaucratic controls," Nixon said. "When we say no strings we mean no strings."

John D. Ehrlichman, Nixon's top domestic adviser, said Thursday that all of the revenue sharing funds would be spent despite administration efforts to hold spending to $250 billion in the fiscal year that ends June 30.

Congress refused Nixon's request for a firm spending lid but Ehrlichman said the President was determined to pare the budget to $250 billion anyway by vetoing appropriation bills and by refusing to spend all of the money voted by the lawmakers.

Ehrlichman said revenue sharing was the only program he knew of that was immune from cuts.

The Treasury Department said it will distribute about $2.6 billion in retroactive payments covering the first six months of this year to states and local governments during the first week in December.

Another $2.6 billion covering the last half of this year will go in the mail less than a month later, on Jan. 3.

Jets Bomb To Save Viet Base

SAIGON (UPI)—U.S. warplanes bombed in 15-minute relays Friday to save a vital government base in the Central Highlands from being overrun by North Vietnamese troops. Other U.S. jets struck heavily in the Saigon area where Communist forces cut a key produce supply route to the capital.

South Vietnamese troops battled the Communists only eight miles from the capital, where White House adviser Henry A. Kissinger met in another day of critical talks with President Nguyen Van Thieu and South Vietnam's National Security Council.

Over North Vietnam, American warplanes inflicted "extensive damage" to the Yen Bai railroad yard 86 miles northwest of Hanoi, destroying 25 per cent of the yards, an Air Force communique said Friday.

At the Central Highlands town of My Thach, 20 miles south of Pleiku provincial capital and 210 miles north of Saigon, about 500 North Vietnamese troops struck from three directions early Friday in an attempt to overrun the province's tactical command post in the center of town, UPI reporter Matt Franjoli said.

The Communist troops got within 300 yards of the post at one point, and government officers on the ground radioed they would have to flee unless U.S. jets could be called in immediately.

In Saigon Friday, there was a shortage of vegetables in the marketplaces, and what remained was about three times the normal price.

North of Saigon Friday, government soldiers reoccupied An Thanh hamlet, eight miles from the capital, which was captured Thursday by the Communists.

Heavy fighting, backed by 57 bombing missions by U.S. warplanes, was reported elsewhere around Saigon, the South Vietnamese high command and field reports said.

Crash Kills Olympian In Europe

BELGRADE (UPI) — U.S. Olympic wrestler Richard Sanders died in an auto accident in southern Yugoslavia earlier this week, U.S. consulate officials said today.

Officials said they received instructions to ship Sanders' body home to Portland, Oregon.

Sanders, 27, died Wednesday. He won a silver medal for his country in the 126 lb. wrestling class at the Munich Olympic Games.

Sanders, a college student from Portland, died with Helen Antoinette Torre, a student from San Franscisco State College and an unidentified Yugoslav.

Consulate officials said Sanders and Miss Torre apparently were hitchhiking through Yugoslavia on their way to Greece, when they were picked up by Yugoslav driver in Ljubljana, northern Yugoslavia.

The Land Rover swerved out of control on the country's North-South autoroute six miles north of Skopje, southern Yugoslavia.

The Land Rover collided head on with a large passenger bus. The driver and both passengers of the Land Rover were killed instantly.

"There is no explanation why the Land Rover swerved out of control. Perhaps the driver fell asleep. They are taking blood tests on his body in Skopje," a consulate official said.

General Plan's Goals Endorsed

By ERIK M. INGRAM

The soft underbelly of the proposed countywide general plan was probed again last night with disclosure that once adopted by Marin's 11 communities it would exert control over existing local plans.

Last night's discussion was the second public hearing on the plan by the City-County Planning Council of Marin. Like the first hearing two weeks ago, it drew a full-house audience to the Marin Civic Center.

At the end of the long session, council members unanimously endorsed portions of the plan dealing with general goals to limit population growth, encourage social and economic balance and protect the environment through balanced transportation, open space and land use.

The plan now will go to various Marin communities for public hearings after which it may be modified before adoption by the county and cities.

Wide-ranging questions from the audience last night again touched on the most controversial part of the plan —to establish a review agency to coordinate development in the county and its 11 cities.

Previously, discussion of the review agency's power over cities centered on its veto power of proposed major projects deemed "of countywide importance."

However, under questioning by developer Neils J. Schultz Jr. of Larkspur, county officials acknowledged that community master plans would be considered of countywide importance and subject to approval of the review agency.

County Planning Director Werner Von Gundell added that the countywide plan, once adopted by cities, would render local plans moot if in conflict with population and land use goals of the countywide plan.

Sol Silver, chief architect of the countywide plan, was quick to add that the countywide plan "is a general framework" setting out broad guidelines for

Pollution Chief Must Make Reply

By PAUL E. PETERZELL

SAN FRANCISCO — The top administrator of the Bay Area Air Pollution Control District was ordered yesterday to answer charges by a district director that he consistently has coddled polluters.

Director William R. Jelavich charged almost eight months ago that D. J. Callaghan had "a clear and pronounced sympathy for the interests of big industrial polluters, and has actively aided and abetted industry efforts to influence district policies."

Aside from a four-paragraph denunciation last March of the charges as "vicious, slanderous nonsense," Callaghan never has responded to the 66 pages of charges, despite frequent demands by Jelavich that he do so.

The stalemate was broken by a demand by a legislative committee investigating the district and Callaghan. Assemblyman March K. Fong, D-Oakland, asked that Callaghan reply to the charges so they could be considered in a hearing her environmental quality committee is to hold on the district.

Board chairman Robert B. St. Clair earlier this month ordered Callaghan to ignore her request, an order Jelavich yesterday declared St. Clair made without any authority.

Their argument was cut short by a motion by Marin County Supervisor Peter R. Arrigoni Jr. that Callaghan reply within six weeks. The Fong committee hearings had been scheduled for next Thursday and Friday in San Francisco, but have been postponed until some time after the Nov. 7 election because too many committee members were going to be absent campaigning.

A committee investigator predicted the hearings will be held

Envoy Dies; U.S. Admits Mission Hit

PARIS (UPI) — French diplomat Pierre Susini, 52, died today of burns and other injuries suffered in Hanoi Oct. 11 when American planes destroyed much of the French mission during an air raid over the North Vietnamese capital.

In Washington, Pentagon spokesman Jerry W. Friedheim admitted for the first time that it probably was an American bomb that hit the French mission. He said it probably was caused by a mechanical malfunction in the bomb release system that made the weapon break away from the aircraft late.

U.S. defense officials said earlier the damage to the French legation might have been caused by a surface-to-air SAM missile that fell back into the heart of Hanoi and exploded on impact.

"We've obviously looked into this with all the resources available to us," he said.

Friedheim said it had been impossible to determine whether any planes passed directly over the French mission on their way to and from their rail yard target, but that some aircraft did pass over parts of Hanoi. "Specifically over that building," he said, "I don't know."

Friedheim did say, however, it appeared none of the planes was off course and that none of

Rivers Overflow —500 Homeless

CLIFTON, Ariz. (UPI)—The San Francisco and Gila rivers, swelled by torrential rains, over-flowed their banks in Arizona and New Mexico today, drowning five persons and driving more than 500 from their homes.

A 50-year-old flood wall collapsed under the flood waters at Clifton, pouring up to two feet of water into some homes. Five hundred of the town's 2,500 residents were warned to leave.

Another wall protecting a different section of the town was threatened.

A Dismal Forecast For Commuters—Traffic Jams

The California Highway Patrol has a dismal forecast for commuters along Highway 101.

Patrol information officer in Corte Madera, Keith Chapman, said traffic jams which are backing up to the San Rafael viaduct each morning are likely to get worse before they get better.

"Traffic will definitely get slower between now and the end of the year," said Chapman. "It's something we can't avoid."

More people have been riding commuter buses to San Francisco since the Golden Gate Bridge District took over bus service in January, but the number of cars using Highway 101 has not been reduced, according to bridge district figures.

In January, about 4,600 people rode the buses each morning, while that total jumped to 6,600 in September.

Nevertheless, approximately 16,000 cars have been crossing the bridge during commute hours from 6 a.m. to 9 a.m. for the past year.

The traffic jams have been caused by slower cars and more accidents during the inclement weather, rather than more cars, said a bridge district spokesman.

Rain, in fact, has little effect on the number of cars that use Highway 101 each morning, the spokesman said.

Researchers Isolate Heart Attack Agent

HOBART, Tasmania (UPI)—A group of medical researchers has isolated and identified the fatty substance which acts as a clotting agent in heart attacks. One of the researchers said he believes isolation of the fat may rule out cholesterol as a major cause of heart disease.

Dr.R.S. Parsons, a member of the research team at the University of Tasmania, said Thursday that their findings indicated that a more important factor in preventing heart attacks was to find a method of controlling the behavior of the fat, which builds up at times of stress.

The team hopes the discovery will lead to a preventive for the blood clots which cause heart attacks.

The researchers included John B. Polya, associate professor of chemistry, and Parsons, a senior research fellow in the department. They said they had been able to isolate the fatty clotting agent while investigating the role played by cholesterol in blockage of arteries. The body produces large quantities of the fatty substances at times of excitement or stress.

Parsons said he and Polya will now try to find out why the blood coagulates or forms a clot. He said that if it could be discovered why blood clots, it may be possible to stop it and thereby prevent heart attacks caused by such clots.

Parsons said what puzzles them is the apparerently contradictory influence of cholesterol.

They said cholesterol apparently slows the rate of blood coagulation but at the same time acts as an agent to inhibit the destruction of coagulants already created.

Although cholesterol appeared to be present in large number of heart attacks, it may not be a significant factor, he said.

Parsons said keeping people from undergoing stress was an obvious solution but not one appropriate in today's world. He said the age group which fell victim to heart disease was becoming younger every year.

He said the researchers isolated the fat using a technique of thin layer chromotography widely used in the detection of narcotics by forensic scientists.

Withdrawal Of Nixon Defeat Call

SACRAMENTO, Calif. (UPI) — The California AFL-CIO, warned of a potentially disastrous "dread confrontation" with powerful national president George Meany, has begrudingly withdrawn a call to its 1.6 million members to defeat President Nixon.

But in its place, the political campaign contribution arm of the state labor federation voted Thursday to urge Meany to reconsider his announced neutrality in the presidential campaign and "take all appropriate steps" to sink Nixon's reelection.

The action represented a defeat for supporters of Democratic presidential nominee George McGovern at a tumultuous special convention of the federation's Committee on Political Education (COPE). They worked to block any watering down of the organization's anti-Nixon stand.

At San Francisco last month, COPE adopted a policy statement urging California union members to defeat Nixon.

Meany ordered the California stance abandoned. He insisted it violated the national AFL-CIO Executive Council's neutral position and was the "equivalent" of an endorsement of McGovern.

Headed by state labor chief John Henning, leaders of COPE prepared a substitute declaration which was still highly critical of Nixon but did not call for the President's defeat in as clear terms.

Nixon To Pare Budget By Impounding, Vetoing

WASHINGTON (UPI) —President Nixon will veto some appropriations bills and impound money to keep federal spending within $250 billion this fiscal year, according to administration spokesmen.

The first decisions on where to cut are expected next week.

John D. Ehrlichman, Nixon's top domestic adviser, said there were questions about the legality of impounding, but it would be used anyway in much the manner that presidents since Thomas Jefferson have used it.

Treasury Secretary George P. Shultz said Nixon would impound funds and refuse to spend whatever it took to pare the budget to $250 billion.

"The President is not going along with the big spending, tax happy attitude that is so evident," Shultz said.

Shultz said he was "very disappointed" that Congress had rejected the $250 billion ceiling, but noted that it had included some legislative language acknowledging the President's right to impound appropriated money if he feels it necessary.

But Ehrlichman said the spending line would not be so hard as Shultz indicated.

Shultz and Ehrlichman spoke at separate news briefings Thursday.

Ehrlichman said Nixon has appointed a committee to recommend ways to hold down spending. The first proposals will be made early next week, he said.

The President has 132 bills waiting his signature including some appropriations measures that will be vetoed, Ehrlichman said.

The committee consists of Herbert Stein, chairman of the Council of Economic Advisers; Caspar W. Weinberger, director of the Bureau of Management and Budget; Kenneth Cole, a member of the Domestic Nouncil; Shultz and Ehrlichman.

McGovern Light-Heartedly Hits Bugging At Al Smith Gathering

NEW YORK (UPI)—George S. McGovern and Vice President Spiro T. Agnew sat one chair apart Thursday at an Al Smith Memorial dinner. The politics were serious but the quips were more light-hearted.

"I'm sorry that Mr. Nixon could not be with us tonight," said McGovern, the Democratic presidential nominee. "But I'm sure somewhere, somehow, he's listening in." Nixon sent Agnew to the dinner as his surrogate.

McGovern sat one chair away from Agnew, who was the ranking guest at the head table next to Cardinal Terence Cooke, archbishop of New York.

McGovern, son of a Methodist preacher, told the audience, "I would not want to profit from his (Nixon's) absence, but I would remind the cardinal that in my father's day, if one member of the parish came to church and another did not, the one who came got the blessing."

Then with a grin he turned to Agnew and said, "I have watched the vice president relaxing over dinner. It must be great to feel way ahead in the race, leading the polls—to be out in front according to the public opinion indicators.

"One reason I have to leave early is that I have to see a doctor in Princeton, N.J.—a doctor George Gallup," McGovern joked. "He's been recommended to me by just about every Democrat in the country except Harry Truman."

In 1948 Truman upset the pollsters predictions with a surprise victory over the late Thomas E. Dewey. Gallup and other pollsters this year show McGovern far behind.

The Democratic presidential candidate flew back to Washington after his brief remarks for an overnight stay and was not on hand to hear Agnew remind the audience that in an election year "We are likely to hear very serious charges made against powerful political figures."

He recalled that Al Smith, former New York governor and the first Catholic to run for the presidency, had been called a "conniving politician" and a "willing tool" of the "money gang."

"It's a comfort to know that Al Smith not only survived such charges but remains today a symbol of honesty and excellence in American politics.

"The man who made those charges was named Henry H. Klein," Agnew said. "Nobody today remembers Klein but everyone remembers Al Smith. There is a lesson there for all of us."

McGovern had turned down the dinner invitation when he learned that Nixon declined. "We didn't want to speak against a surrogate," said Frank Mankiewicz, McGovern's political director. But the candidate reconsidered after persuasive telephone calls Thursday.

"We didn't want to offend the cardinal when the other fellow snubbed him," said Mankiewicz.

Hired Killer On FBI's List

WASHINGTON (UPI)—Mace Brown, a convicted hired killer who staged a daring escape from the District of Columbia's century old jail Oct. 2, was added today to the FBI's list of the 10 most wanted fugitives.

Brown, 29, of Birmingham, Ala., was convicted in February, 1971, of the first degree murder of a potential witness in a major narcotics case. Brown was sentenced to death after being convicted of shooting the victim in the back of the head.

Brown was being held on death row pending an appeal when he and seven fellow inmates cut through steel bars and broke through a metal screen and a glass skylight to reach the roof of the maximum security section of the jail. The men then lowered themselves to the ground on a fire hose and climbed two 12-foot fences to leave the prison grounds.

WORLD NEWS IN BRIEF

Defeat Cameras

LONDON (UPI)—Behind the staid, grimy facade of Westminster Palace, lawmakers cheer and jeer, throw paper, laugh uproariously and occasionally assault one another.

But it is a scene most Britons never see.

The House of Commons voted again last night to keep television cameras from invading its hallowed porticos, again denying British viewers one of the best shows in town.

The Commons rejected by 191 to 165 votes a proposal allowing a three-week experiment to televise proceedings

SALT Outlook

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Administration officials said today they hope resumed Strategic Arms Limitation Talks (SALT) with the Soviet Union will produce a comprehensive accord limiting on a long-term basis a wide variety of nuclear weapons, including strategic bombers.

The officials said it was possible the next round of talks might negotiate a reduction in the numbers of land based and seaborne nuclear missiles which both the United States and Soviet Union are currently permitted.

The White House announced yesterday that the second major round of SALT will start in Geneva Nov. 21.

Back To Bells

WASHINGTON (UPI)—The Navy endured ribbing last year when it announced that after two centuries it was dropping bellbottoms just as they were coming into civilian fashion. Now is is putting flares back on its trousers.

"The Navy is where it all started, and we had second thoughts about dropping bellbottoms," an official of the Navy Uniform Board said today.

The Navy felt the barbs of critics who pointed out that seamen were going straight legged just when civilians were going to bells. The new uniform also made obsolete the recruiting theme symbolized in a postar that shows a sailor in pea jacket and bellbottoms above the caption, "Where The Mod Look Began."

Visa Cost Waived

MOSCOW (UPI)—Forty Jewish families from Leningrad, Vilnius and Riga received permission to emigrate to Israel without paying the required reimbursement to the state for the cost of higher education, Communist sources said today.

The group includes at least 40 college graduates who, if the recent law on the subject had been applied literally would have had to pay more than $200,000 for their exit visas.

The news followed a similar Soviet waiver Wednesday of the education levy for 19 Jewish families who were originally required to pay about $300,000 for their travel documents.

These developments confirm the statement made to the UPI last week by high Soviet officials who said that the law would be applied flexibly on an individual basis.

War Call Rejected

BELFAST (UPI)-A call to war from the leader of the Protestant Vanguard Movement William Craig was rejected in almost all quarters today—even by his own second-in-command.

The verbal storm came after new violence overshadowed the quietest night Belfast had experienced this week. Gunmen today opened up on an Ulster Defense Regiment soldier in Portadown, hitting him in the back. An army spokesman said he was seriously injured. At the same time, a Roman Catholic church in Feystown, County Antrim, was bombed and badly damaged, but there were no casualties, the spokesman said.

Last night, sniper fire wounded two British soldiers in predominantly Protestant East Belfast and a bomb wrecked a British customs post in Belleek on the Irish Republic border.

Holdout Killed

MANILA (UPI)—National police said today one of its patrols killed a Japanese World War II soldier hiding out in the mountains of Lubang Island, 75 miles southwest of Manila, and wounded his companion yesterday.

The wounded man escaped with the rifle of his slain companion after a brief exchange of fire with police, according to a report released by Constabulary Headquarters.

A spokesman said Constabulary Chief Gen. Fidel Ramos immediately ordered operations against other possible Japanese soldiers hiding on Lubang Island.

Women Teachers Protest Hiring

Women teachers in the Tamalpais High School District have protested addition of another male to the district's administrative staff, complaining that no attempt was made to recruit a qualified woman for the post.

"There is only one full-time woman in an administrative post in the district, and there are no female administrators at Tamalpais High School," complained the district Women's Task Force.

In a formal complaint to Tam's new educational leader, Dr. Lawrence Sheppard, the task force asserts a lack of recruitment of women when Tam's assistant principal was hired last month.

The $20,000-a-year post went to former Redwood counselor Anthony Compagno, despite complaints from board member Jerrold M. Ladar that a minority report by a Tam Screening Committee's member was deliberately withheld from the board.)

Copies of the Women's Task Force complaint have been sent to Wilson Riles, State Superintendent of Public Instruction; the U.S. Department of Labor Women's Bureau and to the Equal Employment Opportunities Commission.

Tamalpais High School District — which operates three high schools, Tam, Drake and Redwood, plus two alternative small schools, San Andreas and Mewah Mountain, has several full-time men administrators at each school, plus seven at the district office.

Out of eight administrators at Redwood High School, Deanne C. Wilson, who also teaches Spanish, is director of student activities. At Drake High School, Ann Bell West is dean of girls. At Tam High, there are no women among the six administrators.

Watercolors Being Displayed At Church

Transparent watercolors by Dr. Joseph Mossberger of Los Angeles are on display in Frick Hall at St. Columba's Church in Inverness. The exhibit will continue through Thanksgiving Day.

Dr. Mossberger, whose works have been displayed in several western states, is in Marin visiting his daughter, Elaine, and her husband, Dwight Straub, both physicians.

Novato Campaign For National Sites Started

The San Marin Improvement Association has launched a campaign to designate Mount Burdell and Rancho Olompali as national historic sites so that Indian artifacts can be saved and future development controlled.

At the request of Gail Wilhelm, member of the Novato Planning Commission and the Northern Marin chapter of the Marin Conservation League, the board decided to urge the designations to the National Registry of Historic Sites. Up to 50 per cent of acquisition costs could be borne by the U.S. Department of Housing and Urban Development if the sites win historic designation.

It is considered historically significant as the largest Miwok Indian site in northern California and the only Mexican land grant given to a Mexican Indian.

Also at its meeting, the board endorsed proposed development of 230 apartment units on the south side of San Marin Drive called San Marin Green.

The project, Greenbrae's architect G. Thomas Telfer told the board, calls for a density of 7.5 units per acre on the 30-acre site.

He presented tentative construction and landscaping plans, but said development is pending the disposition of a receivership suit over the land in Portland, Ore.

Two Safety Projects Approved

Funds have been approved for two highway safety projects in Marin and Sonoma counties juring a meeting of the California Highway Commission in Sacramento, according to a department of public works spokesman.

A $45,000 project will provide tiny grooves on Highway 101 from the north end of the San Rafael viaduct to north of the Terra Linda turn-off. The grooves are aimed at reducing skidding during wet weather.

The commission also allocated $20,000 to improve lighting at various locations on Highways 101 and 27 in Marin and Sonoma and Highway 12 in Sonoma.

Light standards will be placed on breakaway bases and placed farther away from the road in order to provide greater safety for out-of-control vehicles.

Living Costs Take Big September Jump

WASHINGTON (UPI)—The cost-of-living rose 0.4 per cent in September—one of the year's biggest jumps—because of higher prices for clothing, gasoline, used cars, pork, eggs, coffee and college tuition.

But beef prices dropped for the first time since May, and fresh fruit and vegetable prics also declined, the Labor Department's Bureau of Labor Statistics (BLS) said in its report today on the Consumer Price Index.

The overall rise last month was twice the 0.2 per cent increase in August, but matched the 0.4 per cent jump in July and was exceeded this year only by a 0.5 per cent advance in February.

In the Bay Area consumer prices rose 1.2 per cent between June and September, and September prices were up 4.1 per cent over the same month a year ago.

The figures reported the sharpest increases in the last quarter were in apparel and upkeep costs, which jumped 3.7 per cent over previous quarter prices.

Another index showed it cost $12.56 last month to buy goods which cost $10 in the base period five years ago.

Third quarter transportation costs rose 1.7 per cent; food prices 1.2 per cent, health and recreation costs 0.8 per cent, and housing 0.6 per cent.

Compared with September a year ago, last month's food prices were up 6.2 per cent; housing 4.3 per cent; apparel and upkeep 2.7 per cent, transportation 3.6 per cent, and health and recreation 2.6 per cent.

The September increase, at an annual rate of 4.8 per cent exceeded the inflation level target of President Nixon of 2 to 3 per cent, and represented bad news for the White House less than three weeks before the election.

But the BLS pointed out that the annual rate of increase in the CPI during the first 10 months of the administration's Phase II economic controls through September was only 3.5 per cent.

The purchasing power of the average weekly wage rose 0.7 per cent in September and stood at 3.7 per cent above a year earlier.

That meant, the BLS said, that the 7.1 per cent increase in actual weekly earnings over the past month exceeded the 3.3 per cent rise in consumer prices to give workers an average 3.7 per cent increase in purchasing power.

The bureau said almost half the September increase in the CPI was due to higher clothing prices as summer clearance sales ended and new fall and winter clothing was introduced. Women's and girls' clothing prices shot up 3.4 per cent while those for men and boys went up half that much, 1.7 per cent.

The index for food purchased in grocery stores, which usually declines in September, went up 0.1 per cent despite the drop in beef and fresh fruit and vegetable prices. The index for food in restaurants shot up 0.5 per cent for the second month in a row.

PLAN

cities to work with in developing local plans.

"The countywide plan speaks to broad issues," he said, adding it does not propose to tell cities how each parcel of land should be developed.

Last night's discussion also brought criticism from two West Marin ranchers who said they believed not enough attention had been paid to the agricultural areas and their future.

Robert Parks, a West Marin sheep rancher, said he believed ranchers "have been completely left out of the planning process."

He was joined by Alfred L. Poncia, a Tomales dairyman, who said the plan offered no solution to the problems of ranchers —some of whom want to get out of agriculture and others who want to continue. The plan, he said, proposes the entire area remain in agriculture without regard for types of land and its use.

They were supported later by Daniel H. Goltz of San Anselmo, who suggested agricultural areas be surveyed to determine which lands could support agriculture.

Lands which cannot, he said, should not be restricted in the same manner as agricultural lands as is now proposed under A-60 zoning. He suggested that such lands be designated open space and possibly purchased by the county.

"I think that's a simplistic answer to a very complicated problem," responded Council Chairman George C. Quesada of Novato.

"What he (Goltz) is telling us is to be honest in what we are doing," council member Benton A. Sifford of Larkspur said, adding he supported further study of the agricultural area.

The next hearing of the plan is scheduled for Thursday at 8 p.m. before the Tiburon City Council and Planning Commission. It will be held at the Tiburon City Hall.

A tentative schedule also slates the plan to be aired Nov. 1 at 8 p.m. at San Anselmo City Hall; Nov. 6 at 8 p.m. at Nicasio School; Nov. 8 at 8 p.m. at West Marin School, Point Reyes Station, and Nov. 14 at 8 p.m. at Sausalito City Hall.

Hearings elsewhere in the county are pending.

Barbier Reported Satisfactory From Surgery

San Rafael City Councilman Harry A. Barbier was reported in satisfactory conditon today following open heart surgery at Presbyterian Hospital in San Francisco.

"The first four or five days are crucial but his condition is certainly satisfactory," according to Dr. Keith Cohn, Barbier's physician.

The 50-year-old Barbier underwent an aortic valve replacement operation Wednesday morning and is recuperating in the hospital's cardio-pulmonary intensive care unit.

Patients are usually released about three weeks after such operations, the doctor said.

ENVOY

the pilots mistook the mission for a legitimate target.

Secretary of State William P. Rogers sent his "profound regrets and personal condolences" to French Foreign Minister Maurice Schumann on Susini's death, and asked that they be conveyed to the Susini family.

Reports from Hanoi said at least four North Vietnamese employes of the French mission were killed. Susini was flown to Paris Oct. 17 and admitted to Percy Hospital for intensive care.

The United States apologized to France the day after the raid.

Government officials entered the International Conference Hall on Kleber Avenue, where Pompidou and his aides were attending a Common Market summit meeting today, and informed Schumann of Susini's death.

Doctors said Susini sustained third degree burns over 50 to 60 per cent of his body in the raid.

Susini was a career diplomat and had served in San Sebastian, Spain, in Reykjavik, Belgrade, Beirut, Damascus and Cairo, before being assigned to head the French legation in Hanoi in January, 1971.

He had been at his post in the North Vietnamese capital for slightly more than 20 months before the fateful day last week when the Mission was almost totally destroyed during the American raid against Hanoi.

Two days after the raid, President Nixon sent Pompidou an expression of regret. He gave no details of the message.

In Algiers, the United States expressed regret for damage to the Algerian embassy, also hit in the Hanoi raid.

Hanoi radio said Susini received emergency treatment from Cuban and Vietnamese burn specialists in a Hanoi hospital before being flown back to Paris by special jet.

Epidendio Dissolution Is Asked

Jane W. Epidendio, three times an unsuccessful candidate for the Larkspur City Council, has filed suit of dissolution to end her marriage to Ernest P. Epidendio, owner of the Rainbow Market in Larkspur.

Mrs. Epidendio also asked in a petition filed Wednesday in Marin Superior Court for a legal separation on grounds of irreconcilable differences.

Mrs. Epidendio, 57, a resident of Larkspur for 35 years, first ran for the council in 1960 and lost by only five votes, but she ran next to last in 1966 and last this year campaigning as a friend of business and property owners in the city.

The couple was married May 13, 1943, in Napa and separated Oct. 12.

When he filed the dissolution papers, attorney Vernon L. Bradley of San Rafael also obtained an order preventing Epidendio from "hitting, threatening or harassing" his wife and barring him from disposing of any assets of the market and three other shops and an apartment building he owns.

The market and its contents were valued at $135,000 and the other businesses at $60,000.

Commission Approves Design Plan

I-J Special Report

SANTA ROSA — Petaluma's environmental design plan, with its policy of controlled growth, was approved yesterday by the Sonoma County Planning Commission.

The commission approved the plan, designed to control growth to 500 living units per year, and passed it on to the board of supervisors for study.

In addition to controlling growth within the city limits, the plan asks the county to be highly selective in approving subdivisions on the outskirts of the city.

The plan also calls for a balance of new growth on both the eastside and westsides of the city and sets low-income housing goals.

The city council recently appointed a 17-member committee to review applications for subdivisions and recommend which should be built under the 500-unit limit.

Poll Shows Many Demos To Defect

PRINCETON, N.J. (AP) — The Gallup Poll says an unusually high 32 per cent of enrolled Democrats in a recent sampling expect to defect from their party and vote for President Nixon.

The anticipated cross-over rate among Democrats represents a 20-year peak and contrasts with an average figure of 22 per cent in the past five presidential elections, the poll said Thursday.

The poll was based on a survey of 2,650 registered voters Sept. 29 to Oct. 9.

The poll said that over the past two decades the defection rate among Republicans has gone no higher than 14 per cent except once — in 1964, when 20 per cent of Republicans voted for former President Lyndon B. Johnson over Republican Sen. Barry Goldwater of Arizona.

The new poll also reported that voters under 30 years old preferred Nixon over Democratic candidate George McGovern by 51 to 45 per cent — the only time a Republican candidate has gained the edge among younger voters, except in the 1956 election.

Nevers Fined On Drunken Driving

Former Stanford and professional football star Ernest Alonzo Nevers pleaded guilty yesterday in Marin Municipal Court to drunken driving and was fined $302.

Judge Robert A. Smallman imposed the fine, which is standard in first offense cases.

Nevers, a 70-year-old Tiburon resident, played for the Chicago Bears after being named an All-American fullback at Stanford.

He was arrested by the California Highway Patrol Aug. 30 north of the Sausalito off-ramp on Highway 101 northbound. The arresting officer said he saw Nevers's car traveling erratically near the toll booth of the Golden Gate Bridge.

by mid-November, which would be several weeks before the deadline for Callaghan to answer the charges. Jelavich said that he will push at the board's Nov. 1 meeting to reverse St. Clair's order that Callaghan ignore Mrs. Fong's request.

St. Clair joined in the vote approving Arrigoni's motion, stressing, however, he did not believe the charges. "The air should be cleared of this matter, if you'll pardon that pun," he said.

The angry exchange between St. Clair and Jelavich brought other directors into the issue. None could recall any board action that would sustain St. Clair's order to Callaghan.

Jelavich's 10 specific charges were backed by a 60-page "bill of particulars" citing numerous examples alleging Callaghan deliberately had misled the board and advisory council to prevent them from acting effectively to control air pollution.

Callaghan yesterday insisted as he has in the past that he never intended to remain silent forever on the charges.

St. Clair said the board will review Callaghan's written answer to the charges to see if they should be heard in public or behind closed doors.

Pair Arrested In Pot Probe

Two 19-year-old Belvedere residents were arrested today on suspicion of possessing a small amount of marijuana stems, seeds and residue.

Belvedere police arrested Henry K. Mettier Jr. and Thomas Martin, both of 330 Beach Road, after entering their home with a search warrant at 7:30 a.m.

Martin also was arrested on suspicion of possessing a stolen portable television which police discovered in the house Tuesday.

Mettier and Martin were booked into Marin County Jail where no bail has been set. They were scheduled to appear in Marin Municipal Court today.

Compliance To Labeling Code

WASHINGTON (UPI)—The nation's three leading household detergent manufacturers have voluntarily agreed to comply with a government proposed labeling practice disclosing the phosphorous content on their products.

The Federal Trade Commission (FTC) announced Thursday that Lever Brothers, Colgate-Palmolive and Procter and Gamble, have submitted letters indicating they will go along with the uniform labeling. The three firms account for 89 per cent of the market.

The remainder of the manufacturers are also expected to agree, the FTC said.

Creek Clean-Up To Be Tomorrow

Volunteers willing to clean up debris in Corte Madera Creek, may meet at 8 a.m. tomorrow at the creek behind Ross Post Office.

The clean-up, sponsored by Survival Inc., was arranged after member Gary Corvello said he noticed the creek was so clogged that fish were unable to spawn.

Cotati Seeks Refunds For Cable Users

The Cotati City Council last night called for refunds for cable television customers on last-month deposits despite company complaints that some residents are generally bad credit risks.

Several residents complained that Storer Cable Television requires both first and last month payments before service is provided. Some said the $5 final month's payment is returned only when service is discontinued, noting that there are persons who live in Cotati permanently.

Jack Harper, district manager for Storer, told the council the advance payment is a "business necessity" to protect the company's investment in equipment in each home. He said funds are used to cover losses from persons who move without making payments.

The council generally agreed that Storer, like other utilities, should return the $5 deposit after one year or when good credit has been established. City Atty. Jay Cantor said he would see if the franchise agreement could be amended to include the refund provision.

The Cotati City Council also:

AGRICULTURE — Approved an ordinance establishing an agricultural district in the zoning ordinance.

WELL — Heard City Engineer Paul Schoch report that preliminary tests at the new water well show the water to be of poor quality for municipal use. He said a depth of 761 feet was reached and that final results will be ready in two weeks.

BIKE PATHS Deadlocked on a 2-2 vote endorsing a bicycle path from Penngrove to Sonoma State College. Dolinsek and councilman Herbert Winter said the plan would be too costly. Mayor Annette Lombardi and Councilman Stephen Laughlin said they would seek a new vote Nov. 2 when Councilman Geoffrey Dunham is present and will join them in support.

APPEAL — Set Nov. 2 to hear an appeal from citizens on planning commission approval of plans by Robert Elliott for a used car lot on East Cotati Avenue.

ZONING — Set the first public hearing on the new community zoning ordinance for Nov. 2 at 7:30 p.m.

RECREATION — Appointed Joseph F. Turner and Eve Kitchen to the recreation and parks commission.

DOGS — Heard residents complain about dogs running loose and making Plaza Park an unhealthy place for children to play.

MEETING — Adjourned to Nov. 2 at 7:30 p.m.

Medics Assist Injured Sailor

Two paramedics from Hamilton Air Force Base dropped by parachute last night to give emergency medical aid to an injured crewman on a Liberian freighter 600 miles at sea.

Coast Guard officers said Jung Yukee, 30, a Korean citizen, suffered a cut artery on his left wrist in an engine room accident aboard the Montrose, and other crewmen were unable to stop the bleeding.

After a check of other vessels in the area did not turn up a doctor nearby, the Coast Guard requested help from the Air Force.

S/Sgt. Terry Wells and Sgt. Nicholas Barr were dropped from a N/HC 130 Hercules to the Montrose, which was on a voyage from Japan to Los Angeles.

The Coast Guard reported today that Yukee's condition was "stabilized" and that the vessel would continue to Los Angeles with the injured man and the paramedics aboard.

Cooling-Off Period Given To Customers

WASHINGTON (AP) — A new Federal Trade Commission rule gives persons who buy goods from door-to-door salesmen a three-day cooling-off period to decide whether they want to keep the merchandise.

If the customer decides to return the product, he can do so without penalty or fee, according to the new trade regulation announced yesterday.

The new regulation is designed to counter such door-to-door sales tactics as high-pressure sales pitches, misrepresentations of the nature and price of the product, false-savings claims and the nuisance created by the uninvited salesman in the home who refuses to leave until a sale is made, the FTC said.

The new rule applies only to door-to-door sales costing more than $25, the FTC said. It said the rule is based on the theory that during the three days the customer considers the wisdom of his purchase and then decides whether to keep the item.

Among the provisions of the rule are:

The sellers must furnish the buyer with a contract and an explanation of the cancellation right in the same language as that used in the sales presentation, such as Spanish.

At the time of the sale, the seller must provide the buyer with both a separate written notice and oral explanation of the right to cancel the sale.

Upon cancellation, the buyer must make available at his residence any goods which have been delivered. If they are not picked up within 20 business days after the sale has been canceled, the buyer may keep them. The seller must pay all expenses associated with the return shipment of the goods.

U-2 Pilot Begins Series Of Talks

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — Twelve years after being shot down over the Soviet Union U2 spy plane pilot Francis Gary Powers embarked Thursday on a series of college speaking tours saying that people are now ready to hear him.

At his first talk, on the campus of Cal State Northridge, Powers said he is starting to speak to young people now "because of the revelations of the Pentagon Papers and the like. I think it's vitally important for tomorrow's generation of leaders to know all they can about how the U.S. bureaucracy functions openly and secretly."

Six Americans Sweep Nobel Prizes In Chemistry, Physics

STOCKHOLM (UPI) — Six American scientists scored a clean sweep today of the Nobel Prize awards for chemistry and physics. Three shared the chemistry prize and three shared the physics prize, each worth $100,000.

The physics prize went to profs. John Bardeen of the University of Illinois—the first man to win two Nobel Prizes for physics—and to Leon N. Cooper of Brown University and John Robert Schrieffer of the University of Pennsylvania. They share the prize equally.

The chemistry prize went to Dr. Christian B. Anfinsen of the National Institutes of Health, Bethesda, Md., and Drs. Stanford Moore and William H. Stein of Rockefeller University in New York. Anfinsen was awarded half of the prize and the other half was shared by Moore and Stein.

The physics prize was awarded to Bardeen, Cooper and Schrieffer for their study in the superconductivity of metals cooled almost to absolute zero—studies of vast importance to the electrical industry. Bardeen had shared a previous physics prize in 1956 for inventing transistors.

Anfinsen won his chemistry prize for his work on ribonuclease, especially concerning the connection between the amino acid sequence and the biologically active conformation"—studies into the chemistry of the chromosome and the gene, the factors which determine heredity.

Moore and Stein won their award for "their contribution to the understanding of the connection between chemical structure and catalytic activity of the active center of the ribonuclease molecule," the Swedish Academy of Sciences announced.

A spokesman at Rockefeller University said this referred to "the genetic structure of the chromosome and gene, important links in unraveling the molecular structure of the genetic material which determines heredity."

Ribonuclease, an enzyme, also has been described as a major link in the chain of human life.

Swedish commentators said the work of the Nobel Prize winners had been of major importance in the attempts to create life artificially although they have not been directly connected with such work.

The academy said the chemistry Nobel Prize winners "have made fundamental contributions to enzyme chemistry."

The academy said enzymes "must in many respects be considered the key substance of life."

"Anfinsen's investigations have provided the answer to an important question concerning the way in which the active enzyme is formed in living cells," the academy said.

"Moore and Stein have elucidated important principles related to the biological activity of the enzyme."

"In summary, it may be said that Anfinsen, Moore and Stein, in pioneering studies, have illuminated some of the most important principles describing the relation between the chemical structure and catalytic activity of an enzyme," the academy said.

With today's three Nobel laureates the United States has won 19 chemistry awards. Germany has 22 and Britain 18. Americans have won 31 physics prizes since the awards began in 1901. Britons have won 16, Germany 14, France 9 and the Soviet Union 6.

Indian Houses Ruined By Rain

MOENCOPI, Ariz. (UPI)—Hopi Indians evacuated their reservation homes Thursday because heavy rain on the normally dry desert country soaked their dwellings and the sod roofs fell in.

There were no reports of injuries.

State Prevails In Price War

SAN DIEGO, Calif. (UPI) — A federal judge Thursday decided a dispute between the state of California, which wants liquor prices to go up, and the federal government, which wants them to go down.

The state won.

The Federal Price Commission complained that the state Alcoholic Beverage Control Department was requiring liquor store owners to violate federal anti-inflation rules by ordering the dealers to raise prices.

Appearing for the federal government was James R. Elkins, assistant U.S. attorney, who asked for an injunction against the state agency.

He said the liquor dealers were violating federal regulations in setting prices—at the state's insistence—without regard to profit margins, customary markup formulas or their own costs. The price of liquor is actually set by the distillers, he said, and the state is enforcing those prices.

Deputy State Attorney General Alvin J. Korobkin countered that the state and federal laws do not conflict.

U.S. District Judge Leland C. Nielsen denied the request for an injunction, ruling the federal government had failed to show the liquor price increases would cause irreparable injury.

Quick Quake Felt Near San Diego

PASADENA, Calif. (UPI)—An earthquake described as a "sharp, quick jolt" shook the region about 45 miles east of San Diego Thursday.

The seismological laboratory of the California Institute of Technology here said the quake registered a comparitively mild 3.5 on the Richter scale and was centered about 10 miles east of the small community of Pine Valley. There were no reports of damage.

WORD-A-DAY

Ways To Apportion Board Eyed

Dividing Marin's population of 210,189 by seven might be a fair way to apportion county school board representation, the Marin County Committee on School District Organization has concluded.

Joseph Amato, business director for the county schools office, said the committee — acting on a Marin County Board of Education request to study its trustee areas — divided the county population by seven and came up with 30,027 as a fair average area for trustees to represent.

The committee decided to seek county counsel's opinion on the legal questions involved in redistricting and whether it would be possible to reduce the county board's membership from seven trustees to five.

The committee set a special meeting for Nov. 1 at 8 p.m. at the county schools office to study the problem further, said Amato.

Names of three people nominated for two vacancies on the committee were announced, said Amato. They were John T. Schmitz, nominated by the San Rafael Board of Education, Audrey Miller, nominated by the Lagunitas School District board, and Mrs. Edwin F. Gardner, nominated by a community member.

An election for the two seats will be held at the committee's annual meeting on Oct. 31 at 8 p.m. at the county schools office, said Amato.

Innocent Plea To Burglary

A 35-year-old San Franciscan, surprised by police as he allegedly tried to burglarize a Sausalito home Sunday, has pleaded innocent in Marin Municipal Court. A preliminary hearing is scheduled for Nov. 7.

Sausalito officers said they found Lewis Eugene Olney in the home of Erwin D. Mieger at 216 Bulkley Street after receiving a report of a possible burglary in progress.

Olney reportedly tried to flee, but was caught by an officer and booked into Marin County Jail on suspicion of trying to steal a portable television set, a leather jacket and a rug worth a total of $500, according to police.

Charges Filed In Brawl Case

Charges of disturbing the peace and resisting arrest have been filed against a 27-year-old Fairfax man arrested Oct. 12 following a bar brawl.

San Rafael Police arrested Eugene Francis Maher in a parking lot at Third and Cijos streets as he allegedly battled with another man in an altercation that started at the Patio Bar on Fourth Street.

County Fairgrounds To Host Canine Fair

A "world's fair" of dogs will be on display at the Marin County Fairgrounds from 8:30 a.m. to 5 p.m. Sunday when Blue Ribbon Dog Breeders Inc. sponsors its second annual Expo K-9.

Dogs whose ancestors came from Japan, Africa, Australia, Siberia, Alaska, Mexico and throughout Europe will participate in the day-long show, designed to educate the public about purebred dogs. Admission is free.

Special demonstrations throughout the day will show how dogs perform as water retrievers, upland game hunters, sled dogs, cart pullers and family companions, according to Phyllis Greer of Novato, Expo K-9 chairman.

Seven three-dog teams of sled dogs will race around the grounds pulling wheeled sleds. Bernese Mountain Dogs, St. Bernards and other giant breeds will be pulling carts in which children may ride.

Special competition will allow youngsters to compete in dog showing and in judging of breeds. There also will be competition for amateur adults in showdog handling.

From 8:30 until about 2 p.m. more than 600 puppies and adult dogs in nearly 100 breeds will compete for ribbons and trophies in 12 conformation rings and four obedience trial rings.

Best of breed puppies and adults then will parade in the Veterans Memorial Auditorium, followed by a parade of American Kennel Club Champions that have earned titles in showmanship, obedience or hunting ability.

Boise Cascade In Huge Trade

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI)—The biggest block of shares ever traded on the Pacific Coast Stock Exchange changed hands Thursday with the shift of 1.1 million shares of Boise Cascade Corp.

The price was $10.50 a share for a total of $11.5 million. The price contrasted to $10.87 at the earlier close on the New York Stock Exchange.

The old record was 470,000 shares of Armour which changed hands at $70 a share for $32.9 million.

Stadium Is Named For Louis Armstrong

NEW YORK (UPI)—Mayor John V. Lindsay has signed a bill renaming the Singer Bowl in the borough of Queens, the Louis (Satchmo) Armstrong Park and Stadium.

Armstrong, who was a resident of the area, was described by Lindsay as "a great American and beloved ambassador of good will throughout the world."

Rainstorm Moves Out; Lakes Healthy

The persistent Northern California rainstorm that had dripped on Marin and Sonoma counties for 10 days finally wandered eastward yesterday.

It left behind greening hills, replenishing reservoirs and clearing skies.

The Stinson Beach County Water District today reported its water tanks had been filled by the almost nine inches of rain during the storm. The district's tanks had been so dry that the Stinson Beach State Park was closed Sept. 22-23.

Meanwhile, Dietrich Stroh, engineering manager for the Marin Municipal Water District, said the storm added 360 million gallons to the district's water supply, increasing the district's stored total to 21,000 acre feet. However, the official said, anything less than a 22,000 acre-foot supply is considered inadequate to get through the next summer.

Stroh predicted that the reserves will be more than ample by the time this rainy season ends if the storm pattern continues as it began. The district's lakes can hold a maximum of 52,000 acre feet.

A story in Monday's Independent-Journal reported that the storm by that date had dumped 1.8 billion gallons in the lakes, but the figure was in error by one decimal place, Stroh said. It should have read .18 billion, or 180 million gallons.

In San Rafael, the season's rainfall to today totalled 9.03 inches, compared to a norm of 1.51 inches for the date.

REA Strike Interrupts Deliveries

Railway Express Agency shipments to Marin and Southern Sonoma have been interrupted in a nationwide strike by 15,000 company employees.

The strike —the second this year —officially began at midnight last night, but the last delivery to the North Bay area was at 5 p.m. yesterday.

A spokesman at the REA office in Oakland, which serves the Bay Area, said an average of 2,000 deliveries are made daily, including to Marin and Southern Sonoma.

REA employees struck for a week in April. They have been working without a contract since July 1, 1971, when their last contract expired. The dispute centers on wages, working conditions and a demand by the AFL-CIO Brotherhood of Railway and Airline Clerks that any contract settlement be retroactive to that date.

REA is the nation's largest intermodal express carrier, providing direct air and surface service to all 50 states, Puerto Rico and Canada.

Overturned Truck Jams Traffic

A truck loaded with six tons of feed overturned yesterday on Highway 101 at Diablo Avenue, Novato, causing a monumental traffic jam for two hours, police reported.

The driver of the truck, William Carlisle Cummings Jr., 21, of 44 Jade Court, Novato, received a minor cut on his right arm in the mishap, according to police.

Cummings told police he was northbound about 12:40 p.m. and was making a left turn onto Diablo Avenue when the car in front of him slowed. When he applied his brakes, Cummings said, the truck overturned, breaking street and signal lights at the intersection and spilling its load.

Police were able to keep one lane of traffic open, but it took the city department of public works two hours to right the truck and clean up the feed, according to police.

Traffic was backed up in the northbound lanes for miles.

POW Ages Show Manpower Low

SAIGON (UPI)—The average age of North Vietnamese prisoners of war captured this year shows the Communists are running out of manpower, a report by a South Vietnamese corps commander said today.

Lt. Gen. Ngo Quang Truong, commander of South Vietnam's I Military Region (the five northernmost provinces), reported in Hue to an interministerial delegation Thursday. His report was was summarized today by the government news agency Vietnam Press.

Truong said North Vietnamese prisoners captured in 1968 ranged in age from 27 to 35. The following year the range was 25 to 33 and in 1970, 23 to 27. In 1971, he said, the age range dropped to 20 to 25 and this year from 17 to 22.

Former Envoy Is Acquitted

AUSTIN, Tex. (UPI)—Former U.S. Ambassador to Poland John Gronouski, who also served as postmaster general, was acquitted Thursday of drunken driving charges.

Gronouski, now dean of the Lyndon B. Johnson School of Public Affairs, was arrested in front of the Texas capitol Dec. 26 and charged with driving while intoxicated.

He testified in his own defense, denying that he was intoxicated. The prosecution called three policemen to testify against him. The jury found him innocent after 35 minutes of deliberation.

Full-Scale Development Suggested

I-J Special Report

SAN FRANCISCO — Total development of a 77-acre Corte Madera marshland was proposed yesterday, the same marshland earmarked last month by citizens at a town meeting for preservation in a bond issue.

Five previous development proposals for the marsh would have preserved more than half of it in its natural state, yet were rejected by the Bay Conservation and Development Commission.

The latest application thus was seen as an opening move in a court challenge that the commission has inversely condemned the marsh.

Frank J. Heerdt, owner of the marsh, and Frank M. Burke of San Rafael, who long has been frustrated by the commission in his plans for the property, proposed filling 47 acres and dredging the remaining 30 for a marina.

The commission is scheduled to hear the proposal on Dec. 7. The applicants face an even more difficult attempt this time to win passage; they not only preserve none of the marsh, but under new statewide requirements must survive an environmental impact statement.

Their application also calls for a boatel and boat repair and building facilities. Some 200 citizens at the Sept. 30 town meeting passed a resolution calling for a bond issue as soon as possible to buy the marsh and other open space.

Spray Gun Stolen

A portable spray gun valued at $900 was taken sometime between Oct. 9 and 16 from the Robert Kunst Paint Center, 4184 Redwood Highway, San Rafael, by a thief who apparently walked into a warehouse through an unlocked door, police reported today.

Rain, Snow Hurt Search For Boggs

ANCHORAGE, Alaska (AP) — While rescue coordinators awaited results of a probe by a sophisticated military surveillance plane, rain, snow and fog curtailed the search today for a long-missing plane with House Majority Leader Hale Boggs and three others aboard.

Despite the unfavorable conditions, however, some planes took to the air at first light to resume their search of the 56,000-square mile area between Anchorage and Juneau on Alaska's rugged coast, where the light plane disappeared Monday.

While some 60 planes flew over areas not socked in by storms and fog, three Coast Guard cutters cruised Prince William Sound and the Gulf of Alaska looking for any oil slick or debris that might indicate the plane crashed into the icy waters.

So far, Air Force and Civil Air Patrol planes and helicopters along with Army and Coast Guard craft have flown more than 300 hours of search missions.

Aboard the lost twin-engine Cessna 310 with Boggs, 58, were Alaska's lone congressman, Rep. Nick Begich, 40; Russell Brown, 37, a Begich aide; and the pilot, Don E. Jonz, 38, of Fairbanks.

Today's weather was in sharp contrast to clear skies Thursday that allowed full-scale aerial activity including use of the Air Force's top-secret 2,000-mile-an-hour SR71 reconnaissance craft.

Consumer Group Hits Airlines

WASHINGTON (UPI) — A Ralph Nader-backed consumer group today accused 11 of the nation's airlines of fixing prices for liquor and in-flight movies that discriminate against economy class passengers.

The Aviation Consumer Action Project (ACAP), filed a complaint with the Civil Aeronautics Board alleging that the airlines — American, United, TWA, Eastern, Delta, Braniff, National, Northwest, Continental, Allegheny, and Western — offer movies and drinks to first class passengers without charge but do charge coach passengers $2 for movies and $1 a drink for liquor.

The petition claimed that the "uniform charges" were set by joint agreements among the airlines in 1966, but the agreements were never approved by the CAB as required by law.

According to the petition, the charges also "discriminate against non-users" of the services and give "undue or unjust preferential treatment to first class passengers."

K.G.J. Pillai, executive director of ACAP, told the board that the first class passenger "gets 80 per cent more space in the airliner than does the coach passenger, and the cost of food served in first class is 100 per cent more than the cost of food served in coach class."

But he said the first class passenger pays only 25 per cent to 30 per cent more than the coach fare. "The lower class passengers who already subsidize the cost of first class service should not be asked to pay additional amounts to provide free movies and liquor to first class passengers," Pillai argued.

The CAB should force the airlines to set a charge "reasonably related to the cost of providing in-flight movies and liquor, and to impose such charge on an equitable basis in all class of the airliner," Pillani told the board.

He also said that TWA told the CAB that it would cut the price of its movies to $1 effective April 1. But Pillai said TWA "continues to charge $2 per passenger." He urged the board to force TWA to refund the excess charges collected for the use of the movies since April 1.

Dutch P.M. Wants Democracy In Market; He Threatens Veto

PARIS (UPI)—Barend Biesheuvel is a huge man, six feet six inches tall, and, like most Dutchmen, a little stubborn.

His mind, he said, is made up now. Unless the other eight nations in the European Common Market start injecting some democracy into Market matters, the Netherlands will stand in the way of economic inity.

Biesheuvel is the prime minister of the Netherlands. With the premiers of the other nations of the enlarged Common Market, he is attending the European summit meeting which went into its second and last day today.

The Netherlands is one of the smaller Common Market nations. But under Market practice, all nations, no matter how small, have a veto on important matters and Biesheuvel startled the summit by threatening to use it.

The Netherlands, like several other Market nations, wants to see the Market become a true democratic government, with powers for the executive commission in Brussels and for the European Parliament in Strasbourg. Particularly, he would like the Parliament, now appointed, directly elected.

He told the summit Thursday that the Netherlands had to be satisfied that all this was in the works. Otherwise, he said, his country would block the Common Market's move to the "second stage" of its economic and monetary union.

This monetary union is a pet project of French President Georges Pompidou who, not so coincidentally, is the leading opponent of speedy moves toward the kind of political unity that Biesheuvel wants.

Because of its size, the Netherlands by itself might not be able to keep up its veto against French pressure. But West German sources said Chancellor Willy Brandt felt just as strongly as Biesheuvel about it.

So far, the Common Market is only a trading and customs union, with a good start toward an economic union. Almost no progress toward a political union—with a true parliament and a strong government—has been made in its 15 years.

The Netherlands and the other eight countries already have agreed on two key economic steps—a common fight against inflation and a European Monetary Fund.

Japanese Youths Attack Army Depot

TOKYO (UPI)—Four Japanese youths broke into a U.S. Army depot outside Tokyo today and hurled three fire bombs at tank repair facilities. There was no damage and police said they arrested all four youths.

The depot was the scene of wild demonstrations in September by leftist student and unionists who opposed the shipment of U.S. tanks and armored personnel carriers through Japanese bases. They said the vehicles were sent to Vietnam.

Elections Center Oils Machinery

MAILING BALLOTS — Nov. 7 ballot forms are dropped into mail bags for shipment to the post office by John Tucker, county elections office worker. Voters should be receiving sample ballots sometime next week, according to elections officials.

Amid continued controversy over the failure of sample ballots to reach some Marin voters last June, county officials sought yesterday to show the press and county grand jury members the blame didn't lie with the elections office.

Elections Officer Peter C. Meyer told the Independent-Journal he had invited public scrutiny of his operation so that if the snafu occurs again at the November election, his office will not be clouded.

Meyer, who maintains the U.S. Postal Service is at fault, pointed to a complex system of checks and cross checks performed by his office to insure each voter is mailed ballot information.

Last June, controversy erupted when between 3 and 5 per cent of the 108,000 primary election sample ballots failed to reach addresses.

The elections office blamed the post office for failing to deliver dozens of properly addressed election packets. The post office, in turn, blamed the county for using an out-of-date mailing list and improperly addressing envelopes.

Yesterday, both sides repeated their criticisms and said there were no plans to change procedures for handling the mail.

Meyer said he had set up yesterday's tour of his office's ballot stuffing operation "to protect the voters, this office and the taxpayers."

If a mailing foul-up of sample ballots occurs for the November election, he said, he doesn't want his office clouded by the controversy which will follow.

"We are trying to do everything we know to help everyone do a better job," Meyer said. "We're also trying to make sure the post office is doubly careful this time."

On a walkthrough tour of the ballot stuffing operation, Asst. Elections Officer Anthony Gullotta described a system of checks and double-checks involving control sheets, computer lists and voter affidavits.

"There's no problem at this end," he said. "We watch it too closely down to the end (when the ballots are deposited with the post office.)"

The first check, he said, involves a comparison of names on a computer list of registered voters and their affidavits. About six employees go through the monotonous task of comparing names and addresses.

From this process, computer-printed precinct address cards evolve for each voter. Each card indicates by code what items will appear on the ballot in that voter's precinct. (Marin County will have 16 different ballot styles for the November election due to local district measures and elections.)

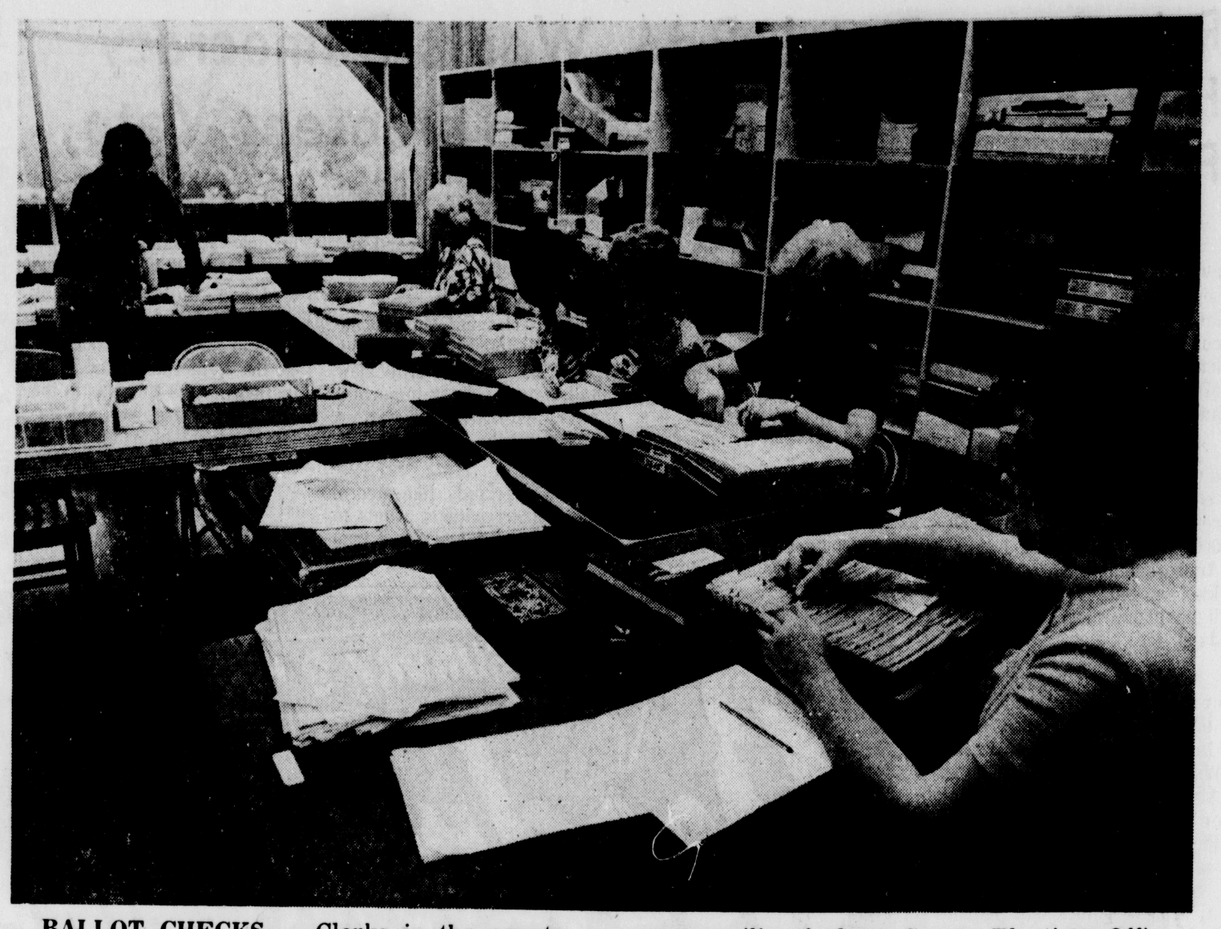
Precinct cards with the same code are forwarded to the department's "stuffing machine" which assembles the appropriate ballot information for that precinct.

After the precinct address cards, sample ballots and ballot information have been stuffed into envelopes by the machine, the number of envelopes is double checked with the number of registered voters in that precinct.

If the numbers agree, the sample ballot envelopes are delivered to the post office for mailing. If the numbers don't agree, the envelopes are checked individually for "double stuffs" until the error is found.

The process is repeated for each of Marin's 246 precincts, Gullotta said, adding that the stuffing process started Tuesday and will end sometime tomorrow. Voters should have their sample ballots during the next week, depending on post office delivery.

Post office regulations permit bulk mail to be delivered at the convenience of the postman.



BALLOT CHECKS — Clerks in the county elections office, a busy place this time of year, check voter registration cards in preparation for the Nov. 7 election. Amid primary mailing foulups, County Elections Officer Peter C. Meyer showed the press and county grand jury members around his office yesterday to defend its operation.

Woman Is Found Dead In Novato

The dead woman was Marilyn P. Noe, 27, daughter of Clyde P. Noe of 32 San Miguel Way.

Deputy County Coroner Donald L. Cornish said her body was found slumped in a noose tied to a rafter. Her hands were loosely tied behind her back and a pair of shorts had been used as a hood over her head.

A note indicating her intention to take her life was found in the garage, he said.

Miss Noe's father said his daughter had been under psychiatric care for several years.

'Mytery Candidate' In Vote Revealed

Bill Mack Webber, identified as "mystery candidate" in Wednesday's Independent-Journal story on the results of a Dominican College straw poll, actually is the Peace and Freedom Party candidate for the Seventh Assembly District.

Ex-Dancer Charged With Welfare Fraud

A young woman who claimed she couldn't continue her career as a topless dancer because of a back injury was charged yesterday in Marin Municipal Court with welfare fraud and illegally obtaining food stamps.

The tall, 27-year-old woman, who yesterday gave two versions of what her real name is, has run into trouble in three counties after a computer turned up a Social Security number being used in too many places.

Investigators say Lia Culcleasure Stahrlite, the name she gave Judge Robert A. Smallman, may have received five separate welfare checks during one month this year from Marin, San Francisco and Alameda counties.

They say this was in addition to a $125-a-week pay check she received as a furniture refinisher.

Her income probably reached $1,200 a month before she left her job last June, according to Deputy Dist. Atty. Milton M. Hyams. No estimate was given of the total public aid she is said to have obtained.

The woman told a probation officer yesterday her name is Alicia Stephenson and that she is a student at Chabot College in Oakland. After the probation officer described her as a "person who moves frequently," Judge Smallman refused to reduce her bail from $5,000, and she remained in jail.

She also faces charges of writing bad checks in San Francisco and San Jose.

Hyams said the woman, who also has used the names Lia Culcleasure and Lia Stanton, began receiving aid in Marin in January 1971, but it was discontinued last month when investigators learned about possibly unreported income.

She had given a Fairfax address in Marin.

Also discontinued in September was aid she had been receiving in San Francisco for her child and aid for the totally disabled she had been getting there for three years.

To obtain the latter, she reportedly told officials she was prevented from dancing topless because of a bad back.

She was arrested Wednesday by Marin investigator Randy L. Hisely at the Alameda County welfare office, where she also received aid.

The possible fraud was uncovered by a computer in a new state system which turned up the same Social Security number in use in Marin and San Francisco.

In addition to the welfare charges, she is to return to court today to plead to a misdemeanor count of obtaining $46 worth of food stamps to which she allegedly was not entitled.

$1.01 Billion For U.C. Urged

LOS ANGELES (AP) — A $1.01 billion 1973-74 operating budget that includes a 5.4 per cent faculty pay hike has been recommended for approval by the finance committee of the Regents of the University of California.

Noting that the budget proposal is a $105.13 million increase ovr the current fiscal package, UC President Charles Hitch told the Regents Thursday the increase is necessary because "the last several budgets were half hearted affairs which compromised our past as they did our future."

The committee's recommendation was to be considered today by the full board.

Mill Valley Board Against Prop. 18

The Mill Valley Library board, decrying censorship of the arts, last night unanimously urged defeat of Proposition 18, the state initiative on the Nov. 7 ballot dealing with obscenity.

The ballot proposal establishes strict definitions of obscenity and makes it illegal to sell or display obscene material near schools or public parks.

Study Set On Waste-Smog Link

SACRAMENTO (UPI) —The state Water Resources Control Board said today it will study how much the expansion of wastewater treatment facilities contributes to smog in critical air pollution areas.

The board said the study was prompted by requests from John A. Maga, executive officer of the board, and Paul De Falco Jr. of the San Francisco office of the Environmental Protection Agency.

John Nelson, the board's manager of the Clear Water Grant Program, said Maga and the EPA indicated that increased capacity of sewerage treatment facilities can support more growth and development which in turn could worsen the air pollution problem.

Nelson said the board believes Los Angeles, Sacramento and San Jose areas are the main "critical air areas" in California.

He said the board will receive testimony at hearings on the need to limit clean water grants for treatment projects in critical air basins. The state and federal grants are allocated to local communities for construction and improvement of treatment facilities.

"The proposed change in regulations would merely eliminate support of surplus capacity (in treatment facilities) with grants derived from all the taxpayers," he said.

Developer Selection Brings New Charge

Members of the Marin County Redevelopment Agency's Project Area Committee charged last night that the agency selected a developer for Marin City before the committee had a chance to study various development proposals.

Today the chairman of the redevelopment agency board countered that the citizens committee "has had ample time to consider the proposals and make recommendations, but simply hasn't done it."

Six of the area committee's 11 members met in special session yesterday and agreed to ask the agency board not to sign final contracts with Mid-City Developers Inc. for at least 30 days.

The board, which last week selected the Washington, D. C., firm to complete redevelopment of the Marin City community, is scheduled to consider signing a final contract with Mid-City at 8 p.m. Thursday.

The area committee, a citizens' group formed to advise the agency in redevelopment matters, says it needs more time to study the proposals from five different developers which were presented to the agency in late August.

"We want to meet with the developers and present our recommendations to the Marin City community for its opinion and then to the agecny," said committee member Frank Phillips Sr.

Member Melvin Atkins said he thought the agency would be flying in the face of Department of Housing and Urban Development regulations if it signed a contract "without giving the area committee a chance to have its say-so."

HUD regulations on project area committees state that the agency must assure "the project residents participate in the formulation and execution of plans for renewal of their area."

George H. Gnoss Jr. redevelopment agency chairman, admitted the agency has "never heard officially from the PAC, but said that was the committee's fault and not the agency's.

"We signed a contract with them in early September and put off our meeting to choose a developer for several weeks when the committee said it needed more time to study the proposals," Gnoss said.

He will ask the committee to provide "specific written comments" on the Mid-City proposal to build 44 units of apartments and condominiums in Marin City and present the recommendation to the board next Thursday.

"If they have good reasons why we should not sign a contract with Mid-City, I will listen with an open mind," the chairman continued, but added he would not recommend a 30-day delay in the contract signing. "I think there is enough time between now and Thursday for the area committee to study the matter and have public meetings on the subject."

(A meeting of the committee is scheduled for Wednesday.)

If the group wants to meet with the Mid-City people next week, Gnoss said he would try to arrange it.

Stanford To Honor Tom Storke

STANFORD, Calif. (AP) — The memory of Thomas M. Storke, late Pulitzer Prize-winning publisher of the Santa Barbara News-Press, will be honored at Stanford University by a professorship established in his name, acting Stanford president William F. Miller announced today.

The distinguished chair in the Department of Communication is to be known as the Thomas More Storke Professorship and endowed by Storke's widow, Marian, and by the Thomas More Storke Foundation.

A seventh'generation Californian, Storke borrowed $2,000 at age 24 to buy the Santa Barbara Independent, acquired two other local papers in ensuing years, merged them all in 1938, and in 1964 sold the News-Press to Robert McLean, Publisher of the Philadelphia Bulletin.

Storke won the 1962 Pulitzer Prize for editorial writing after the News-Press carried an expose of the John Birch Society and editorially condemned it as totalitarian.

Addition Bought For School Site

The Shoreline Unified School District board last night bought 15.1 acres for $20,235 to add to the Tomales Elementary School site, according to Supt. Charles E. McCully.

The site, directly behind the school, was secured from the heirs of the Guldager estate, Lois Kirkland, Marie Grippin, Patricia Cornette and Hazel Martinelli, McCully said.

Purchase of the site comes in the wake of two unsuccessful bond measures this year. The bonds would have provided funds to establish the school in permanent classrooms at one site.

The school is currently operating with portable classes at the old Tomales High School site, west of Shoreline Highway, and portable and permanent classrooms, east of the highway.

The Shoreline Unified School District Board Also:

AGREEMENT — Approved an agreement with Pacific Gas and Electric Co. for the utility company to park its trucks in the West Marin School site for $50 per month.

APPOINTED — Appointed Sally Rakow to the California School Boards Association delegate assembly.

LEAVE — Granted teacher aide Gloria Bacha a leave of absence for the remainder of the school year and hired Joyce Franke to replace her.

ADJOURNED — Adjourned to 7:30 p.m. Nov. 16 at the Tomales High School.

Deadly Weapon Arrest Made

A Fairfax man was arrested on suspicion of assault with a deadly weapon last night following a fracas over use of a pool table in a San Rafael restaurant.

George Robert Simpson, 44, of 10 Walsh Lane, was booked into Marin County Jail and held to appear today in Marin Municipal Court.

Police said Simpson struck two San Rafael men with a broken pool cue in a scuffle over use of a pool table at McKee's Hof Brau, 721 Lincoln Avenue.

John G. Moore, 242 Solano Street, and Vincent B. Phillips, 162 Greenfield Avenue, were treated at local hospitals for head cuts, police said.

SUCCESSFUL INVESTING

Toyo Kogyo Traded Over The Counter

By ROGER E. SPEAR

Q. Would you please explain where I can buy stock in Toyo Kogyo? — J.H.

A. Shares of this Japanese automaker are traded Over-the-Counter and may be purchased through a retail brokerage house. Because American Depository Receipts are not yet available in this security you will have to purchase the foreign shares which are subject to an 11 per cent interest equalization tax. Toyo, producer of the Wankel-powered Mazda car, is Japan's third largest automobile producer with sales at about the $900,000 level. These shares are currently quoted in the $2.00 price range.

Q. Should I sell 100 shares of Magnavox (NYSE) purchased in 1966 at $43 and 100 Addressograph-Multigraph (NYSE) bought in 1969 at $73? — R.W.

A. At the present time you have an indicated paper loss of $4,600 or 40 per cent of your originally invested capital. While this is a rather bleak picture, the future for both issues may be justifiably viewed more optimistically. In the case of Addressograph, the recovery trend has been amply demonstrated by operating results. For the fiscal year ended July, sales moved 6 per cent higher to $436 million. Some 3.8 per cent of total sales was taken down to income resulting in earnings of $2.07 versus 62 cents a share in fiscal 1971. Further gains are indicated for the current year and shares should be held for partial recovery.

Magnavox has reported reduced earnings in the first two quarters this year, despite an 8 per cent higher level of sales. Furthermore, no significant recovery is anticipated before the final quarter when consumer product sales generally surge. Price-cutting on television sets, which has narrowed margins, will probably continue to be a problem. However, this may be offset if Magnavox continues to make headway in regaining its former 10 per cent share of the color TV market. Start-up costs on the company's new line of all solid state TV sets are now behind, thus earnings should benefit from the enthusiastic acceptance for this line. Because shares have good long-range potential, my advice would be to hold.

Filing Deadline For Employers

Those who employ agricultural workers have until Oct. 31 to file their contribution return and report of disability insurance wages and Report of Personal Income Tax Withheld (form DE 7003) for the third quarter.

This reminder came from Charles J. Brady, auditor in charge of the California Department of Human Resources Development, Employment Tax Field office, 807 E Street, San Rafael, 94901. Brady said the taxable wage base for disability insurance will increase from $8,000 to $8,500 for the year 1973.

Employers who need help in preparing their returns and wage reports may contact the San Rafael Employment Tax Field Office at 807 E Street.

Earnings Down

NEW YORK (BW) — American Airlines Inc. has reported net earnings of $12,667,000, or 44 cents per share, for the third quarter of 1972. Compared with net earnings of $24,946,000, or $1.02 per share, for the same period last year.

OLD ORDER CHANGETH

Top photo, taken in 1948 by Roy Farrington Jones of San Anselmo, shows Hayden's Ice Cream Parlor at Fourth and Tamalpais in San Rafael. "We used to get Eskimo Pies there for a nickel," recalls Jones. About 1904 or 1905, the same corner was a saloon owned by the late J.J. Blagg, father of Ernest Blagg who now works at Winton's News Stand. In the late 1940's Hayden's was converted to the Original Fourth Street Liquor store, which George Warden operated until last June. Bottom photo shows the historic structure no longer recognizable as The Chair Place opened this week. Karel and Marilyn Langer of San Francisco, who have been in the wholesale furniture business for 10 years, specialize in all types of chairs, including genuine leather chairs and bentwood rockers. The establishment across the street is still a garage, but the name has changed from Castro's to D & S.

Market Seeks Direction —Prices Slightly Off

NEW YORK (UPI)—Trading was slow on the New York Stock Exchange today as the investors sought direction.

Advances led declines, 855 to 557, among 1,517 issues on the tape. Two-hour turnover amounted to around 5 million shares, slightly below the Thursday pace.

There was little in the news background to encourage investors. The government reported September's consumer price index took a big 4 per cent jump. A Nixon administration official called September a bad month.

Prices were mixed to slightly lower on the American Stock Exchange.

Airlines moved either way. Flying Tiger lost 1 1-4. The line said its fourth quarter earnings will not match the rise in the third quarter.

Among the glamors, Polaroid gained 3 7-8, Xerox 2 1-2, Avon Products 1 5-8 and Corning Glass 1. Ara Services lost 3 1-2.

Rails declined. Burlington Northern lost 1 and Missouri Pacific and Norfolk & Western 1-2 apiece.

Belvedere Couple To Buy Corner Cupboard Gift Shop

The Corner Cupboard cookware and gift shop at 100 Throckmorton Avenue in Mill Valley will be purchased next month by Mr. and Mrs. Albert E. Jurs Jr. of Belvedere, who own a gourmet kitchenware store called the Capricorn on Union Street in San Francisco.

Jurs and his wife Charlotte will take over the Corner Cupboard from Blyth and Frances Adams of Mill Valley, who owned it for the past four years.

Jurs said he plans to expand his lines of cookware at the Corner Cupboard, featuring international gourmet items similar to those he carries at the Capricorn.

"We'll probably add butcher tables and cutting tables for the kitchen and introduce the Crueset line of French cookware," said Jurs.

The name "Corner Cupboard" will be retained through the holidays but will probably be changed to the Capricorn next year.

Jurs, who was in the business of manufacturing storage tank fittings for 25 years, bought the Capricorn in San Francisco in 1970. Mr. and Mrs. Jurs have lived in Marin since 1965.

RESH HOUSE, the coffee house and community center at Tamalpais Junction, has tripled its former space, adding The General Store and a yarn and needle corner.

Owner Richard Pace of Mill Valley, who has operated Resh House at 267 Shoreline Highway for about four years, expanded his building into space formerly occupied by a cleaning firm. The new General Store carries pure teas, herbs, grains and raw dairy products. He also stocks antique kitchen utensils and has a corner cache of yarns, needles and wools operated by his step sister, Miss Patti Sexton.

"Resh House is more than a coffee and tea house," said Pace. "It's a community center where people can play dominoes, checkers, chess, listen to music. There aren't too many places like this where young people can go." It can seat about 150 persons.

With the addition of the General Store, Resh House is now open Wednesday through Sunday (closed Monday and Tuesday) "from 8 a.m. to whenever," said Pace. The General Store is open from 11 a.m. to 9 p.m. every day except Tuesday.

STUART D. MENIST of Kentfield, president of Fireman's Fund Insurance Co., has been elected to the additional post of president of the subsidiary Fireman's Fund American Life Insurance Co. The announcement came from Louis W. Niggeman of Kentfield, chairman of the board.

O. D. Oliphant of Novato was elected to executive vice president of the company and senior vice president of the parent Fireman's Fund. Oliphant joined Fireman's Fund in Los Angeles in 1946 and advanced through a series of assignments to become branch manager in Oakland and in San Francisco. In 1962, he was elected resident vice president and manager of Pacific department operations, and three years later advanced to vice president for the Western region with responsibility for all operations in 15 western states.

MARIN ASSOCIATION of Life Underwriters won the National Community Service Award for 1971-72, presented by the National Association of Life Underwriters at its annual convention in Atlanta, Ga. on Oct. 12.

Jack G. Nixon of San Rafael, immediate past president of the Marin Association, attended the award luncheon to receive the award. The Marin Association was honored for production of a film called "Children In Crisis" to encourage citizen participation in voluntary probation work.

THE CHAIR PLACE, a new store specializing in all types of chairs, opened this week in San Rafael at the corner of Fourth Street and Tamalpais Avenue where the Original Fourth Street Liquor Store was formerly located.

Owners are Karel and Marilyn Langer of San Francisco, who sold their wholesale furniture business in San Francisco and plan to move to Marin. The Chair Place features contemporary, modern, Victorian, genuine leather and bentwood rocker chairs. The Langers repainted and remodeled the historic building, which was a saloon in the early 1900's, then became Hayden's Ice Cream store in the 1940's, and the Original Fourth Street Liquor store until it closed last May.

CARNABY'S, a new store with import gift items, some sporting goods and jewelry, opened Monday at 939 Tamalpais Avenue, around the corner from The Chair Place.

Carnaby's is operated by Mary Kolnes of Santa Rosa with the help of her sister, June Kolb of San Rafael. Their brother, John Kolnes, owns Johnny's Tennis Pro Shop in Santa Rosa.

The new store has a variety of gift items plus sports equipment such as tennis rackets, balls, and warm-up suits; magnetic signs; psychedelic posters; jewelry, mostly semi-precious stones like jade and onyx; dolls; and silverware. Carnaby's will also string rackets.

RONALD M. STEINAU of Belvedere, the 19-year-old businessman who is the Marin and Sonoma distributor of Perma-Stamps, has been named to handle the wholesale distribution of Diane Beeston's new book on yachting, "Of Wind, Fog and Sail."

Young Steinau is also handling the distribution of Miss Beeston's 1973 Yachting Date Calendars. "Sales of the calendar have more than doubled the anticipated volume," said Steinau. "The book has also been very popular among marine hardware stores and boating circles. They make good gift items."

Steinau attends Santa Rosa Junior College where he studies business law and business management.

WALDRON AND COMPANY stock brokers will move this weekend into the Holiday Plaza Building, suite 150, in Terra Linda. The company was formerly located at 4380 Redwood Highway in Northgate Industrial Park.

GEORGE R. PINSKI, who lived in San Rafael for the past 12 years, has moved to Reno as vice president and manager of the Reno office of Clifton & Company, San Francisco-based insurance brokers.

Pinski started his insurance career with the Pacific Fire Rating Bureau, then worked for two major insurance companies before joining Clifton & Co. in Nevada.

ROBERT SETRAKIAN of Kentfield, president of California Growers Wineries of San Francisco, announced the appointment of Joseph B. Deluca as director of advertising and publicity. Deluca has been in commercial production in the New York film industry for the past few years.

HERBERT M. KIRSTAL of Novato, who is with Insurance Associates of Berkeley, has been awarded the Chartered Life Underwriter designation by the American College of Life Underwriters in San Francisco.

A's Mincher Overcomes Ear Deficiency, Strokes Big Hit

By MILTON RICHMAN

That's because they know he can't hear a thing out of his right ear.

He's practically stone deaf on that side, a little memento he'll have the rest of his natural life from a ball game four years ago.

"When a baseball propelled 90 miles per hour hits you in the face, you never forget it," says big, affable Don Mincher, who almost had all his lights put out in that ball game back in 1968.

Sometimes the huge, good-natured Oakland first baseman thinks about how that accident nearly finished him for good. He has a tendency to think about it when he's not hitting. More often, he doesn't think about it.

When Dick Williams, the Oakland manager, sent him up to swing for Dick Green with runners on first and second, one out in the ninth and the A's trailing the Cincinnati Reds, 2-1, in Thursday night's fourth World Series contest, Mincher had only one thing on his mind.

Fast ball.

Clay Carroll, who was pitching for the Reds, throws about as hard as anybody in the National League. Mincher knew Carroll wouldn't be offering him any "lollipops."

"I'm looking for a fast ball," said Mincher. "By that I don't mean I'm standing there saying 'here comes a high fast ball and I'm gonna hit it.' I wish I was that good a hitter, but I'm not."

Don Mincher could be a better hitter than he thinks.

He was good enough to clip Carroll for a clutch single that drove in the tying run, set 49,410 patrons in Oakland Coliseum to carrying on as if the war in Vietnam suddenly had ended, and laid the groundwork for Angel Mangual's game-winning pinch single which followed a moment or so later.

In Don Mincher's baseball lifetime, which embraces tours of duty with the Minnesota Twins, California Angels, Seattle Pilots, and Texas Rangers before coming to the A's this summer, there have been relatively few red-letter days.

Now you would think that when he has just come from delivering the kind of clutch hit he did for the A's Thursday night, helping them take a commanding three-games-to-one lead in the Series as he did, they might let him enjoy his moment in the sun, so to speak, but did they? They did not.

Specifically, this spoilsport remembered that Mincher had struck out as a pinch-hitter in playoff game No. 3 with Detroit nine days ago.

Mincher had stood there with the bat on his shoulder, and then, brooding about it, he had gone to the manager, Dick Williams, and demanded another chance.

What's more, Williams had better use him soon again, or else. You don't mess with Don Mincher, who's big enough to fit right in with the Oakland Raidars' front four.

"Where do they ever get a notion like that?" protested the amiable, drawling 6-foot-3, 210-pounder from Meridianville, Ala. "I never said anything like that to the manager. Heck, I didn't even remember striking out against Detroit until someone brought it up. What do they think I do when I strike out, go home and cry about it? Look, the guy (Joe Coleman) threw me three good pitches. So I struck out. Big deal. It wasn't the first time, and it won't be the last."

Dick Williams also hastened to explain there were no differences between him and his first baseman.

"Are you kidding?" he said. "I love Minch. I ain't ever gonna get him mad. He's liable to beat the hell outta me."

"Oh, no," Don Mincher reassured his manager.

A's Togetherness Is Winning Formula

OAKLAND — The whole world was able to see yesterday what Oakland A's fans have been seeing all year — the A's win a game in the ninth inning.

But this game had a little more at stake, a giant step toward the Bay Area's first-ever professional world championship. With that dramatic 3-2 victory over the Cincinnati Reds, the A's, leading the World Series three games to one, were one victory away from that world championship.

As one sports writer who has been covering all the A's games this season said, "It's unbelievable. This team wins so many games like that. They can really come through in the ninth."

That pinch hitting in the bottom of the ninth was out of this world. A's manager Dick Williams said after the game he just told his pinch batters "to go up there swinging." Those Swinging A's went after the first and second pitches with the net result of pinch hit singles by Gonzalo Marquez, Don Mincher and Angel Mangual. Mincher's hit tied the game and Mangual's won it.

OKAY, YOU A'S critics, think back to the end of the 1970 season when owner Charles O. Finley traded away veteran reliever Jim (Mudcat) Grant to Pittsburgh for "a player to be named later." That player turned out to be Mangual, a native of Puerto Rico.

After the game was over, a group of reporters were surrounding Mangual and peppering him with questions. Because one of the writers perhaps felt the question must be put to the test, he asked Mangual (and the man was serious) if that was his biggest hit, a bigger hit perhaps than his game-winning hit against Milwaukee or some such team.

Mangual blinked and answered, "Certainly. It was in the World Series. Everybody in the world saw it."

There is one thing apparent about the A's baseball team. There is a oneness between boss and hireling. Rather than being a conservative dresser as is the case with most baseball managers, Williams has longish hair and wears mod clothes. The players back the manager and Williams backs his players. They each get the other "off the hook."

A GOOD CASE in point in yesterday's game: The second guessers were all set to swoop down on Williams on his decision to pull Ken Holtzman, a left-hander, for Vida Blue, another left-hander, in the eighth inning with two outs and a man on third. The A's were leading at the time, 1-0. By the time Blue walked dejectedly off the mound, the Reds had struck at him quickly with a walk and two-run double and now were leading 2-1.

But Gene Tenace, who had hit a home run for the A's first run in the fifth inning, and those three pinch batters got together in the bottom of the ninth to take Williams off the hook with that story book finish.

And Williams was ready to take all blame (does that imply guilt?) for the quick yanking of Holtzman. "I'm the deciding factor about when a pitcher leaves," he said. "I will live and die with those decisions, and believe me, I was dying."

Then hewas quick to defend Blue, a young man who has been less than spectacular in his last two relief appearances.

"I WILL TAKE another chance with Vida, I still have all the confidence in him," said Williams. Then he volunteered some information to the press. "I hope the series doesn't go to six games, but if it does, I will start Vida Blue."

He had taken Vida off the hook. Williams had said just a few days ago Blue would start one of the Series games in Oakland, but then changed his mind, he said, after Blue assured him he would stay in the bullpen to help the team. There would be nothing to stop Williams from changing his mind again.

Holtzman, in turn, said he had no anger when he was taken from the game. "I might have lost a little, velocity-wise, but I felt my control was still good," he said. Was he angry when he was pulled from the game? Heavens, no.

SPARKY ANDERSON glumly admitted the loss yesterday was a terrific blow to the Reds' chances, but stuck to his prediction of winning the series in seven games.

"One more loss and a mule will kick us," said Sparky.

San Rafael, Terra Linda Tomorrow

San Rafael and Terra Linda high schools will be looking into a mirror tomorrow afternoon when they meet in a Marin County Athletic League football game at 1 p.m. at San Rafael's field.

Both teams use Wishbone attacks with minimal passing on offense, and have similar defensive alignments as well. Moreover, they each have 2-3 over-all records, although the similarity ends there.

Terra Linda is on the way up with consecutive MCAL victories over San Marin two weeks ago and Redwood last week. San Rafael is skidding after losses to the same two teams, in reverse.

HOME TEAM

Terra Linda has been designated home team for game —in fact, it's the Trojans' homecoming. Consequently, Terra Linda fans should enter the stadium at the home-team entrance on Third Street, and San Rafael

Redwood Gridders To Face 2 Foes: San Marin, Stars

Redwood High School has overcome tough opponents before in football, but the task will be much more difficult tomorrow afternoon: the cosmic forces of the universe will be aligned against the Giants.

At least, that's the word from Bob Martin, coach of rival San Marin High. "I consulted my astrologer," he said. "I'm a Capricorn, and Saturday will be a good day for Capricorns."

The two teams, both with 4-1 over-all records and Marin County Athletic League title hopes, will clash at 1:30 p.m. tomorrow at Novato High. San Marin is 2-1 in the MCAL and Redwood 1-1, and the loser will be suffering a bad case of crippled championship ambitions.

Novato's field may be in bad shape because it does not drain well, and Tamalpais was to play Novato on it this afternoon. San Marin adapted well to muck last Friday and upset San Rafael, 18-12, but Redwood had more trouble and succumbed to Terra Linda, 19-6.

"We've been working on our running," said Redwood coach Phil Roark. "With our size (the offensive line averages 197 pounds) we should be able to pick at their linebackers pretty well. Their basic defense, a 4-4, is a passing defense."

Redwood will be operating without tackle Bill Deedy, who was felled with a bruised shinbone and will be replaced by Doug Kern. San Marin will be bolstered by the return of defensive end Roger Brewster, recovered from mononucleosis. Steve Goins, a cornerback both-

Palmer, Knudson Lead Golf

NAPA, Calif. (UPI)—Trying to regain the putting touch that has given him 65 major tournament wins in 18 years on the tour, Arnie Palmer had it back Thursday when he garnered seven birdies and a bogey to share the first-round lead with Canada's George Knudson.

Palmer, despite one three putt green, had a 66 on Silverado Club's south course while Knudson, picked up six birdies to shoot his 66 on the north layout. This put them a shot in front of young Grier Jones who had a 67, and four others tied at 68, Jimmy Weichers Bob E. Smith, Bobby Mitchel and slim Buddy Allin.

But his putting was the key for Palmer, who had most of the 8,600 spectators present dogging his heels on the soggy Silverado fairways, still muddy after 10 days of heavy rains.

"I had some good putts drop, but I still could have putted better," Palmer explained. "I three putted the 4th hole from 30 feet and also missed a couple of other short putts of three and five feet.

"I actually had a great round within my grasp as I was hitting the ball mighty close to the pins, especially on the front

A'S CATCHER

Angry Tenace Blasts Sparky

OAKLAND (AP) — "All three had Sparky's name on them," said usually mild-mannered Gene Tenace, displaying the meaning of his given first name — Fury.

Tenace, the Oakland Athletics' catcher whose home run and single helped the A's take a 3-1 lead over Cincinnati in the 1972 World Series, ripped Manager Sparky Anderson and his National League champion Reds.

"I don't feel that that club over there has any respect for us," said Tenace, whose "all three" referred to the trio of home runs he has hit so far in the Series.

After Tenace's two homers won the first game of the Series in Cincinnati, Anderson was quoted as saying, "That kid hasn't done much before."

"That really upset me," said Tenace, the son of a former Pennsylvania coal miner. "I know I hit only five home runs during the season, but that's not an indication of how I hit. I played against Sparky in the minors and hit pretty good. He upset me talking that way."

Tenace was just getting warmed up on Anderson. He then turned his attention to Cincinnati catcher Johnny Bench.

"How about Bench saying that if anybody should hit two home runs it should be him. For crying out loud, give another guy credit."

Tenace not only hit a home run in Thursday night's fourth game, but his single in the ninth placed the tying run in scoring position and he eventually scored the winning run in the 3-2 triumph.

"It's been a disappointing season and this World Series is making up for it," said Tenace, who didn't become the regular Oakland catcher until the final two months of the season.

How come he sat on the bench so long before A's Manager Dick Williams made him a starter?

Sports Program At Marin Academy

Modest Start In San Rafael

By RON LENT

Five thousand, four hundred dollars.

This initial sports budget allotment at Marin Academy may not compare favorably with the $100,000 spent at Ohio State University yearly just for the football recruiting telephone bill, but the modest amount represents a start for the San Rafael-based school.

Indeed.

The Marin school, located on the old San Rafael Military Academy campus, which closed July 28, 1971, has 65 students in the ninth through 11th grades. Of this number, 32 are boys and all but three participate in the school athletic program.

"We just opened Sept. 7, and we already have the kids taking part in (boys) cross country and soccer and (girls) volleyball. I'm pleased with their enthusiasm and efforts. We've won two out of our first three cross country and soccer contests with other schools. The 10-girl volleyball team is 0-3. We've shown we can win with our limited budget and our limited enrollment, 65 students. But there is more to it than winning a few games."

First, "We have no 'real' athletes here yet," the 29-year-old San Anselman claimed. "By 'real,' I mean kids who already have learned the basic athletic preparations" — physical and mental conditioning.

Regarding the mental aspect, the former Minnesota resident noted "the kids are learning how to prepare for a game — getting enough sleep, eliminating cigarettes, exercising properly. The students have to learn themselves that smoking cigarettes, for example, slows down performances. I can't go down a hall and tell them not to smoke; they must learn it for themselves."

The students are apparently grasping the mental preparation theory. "I can see three or four boys here who are developing into true athletes."

In considering athletes' physical development, Smith, 29, suggested improvement was needed. This is particularly true in cross country. "We have no natural runners, but they work hard in meets and in practice" after school from 3:30 to 5 p.m.

"Take John Austin. Austin, (5-foot-2, 140 pounds) always finishes last, but he is improving. He is working hard." And so is Smith.

Smith moved to Marin four months ago after landing the athletic director-teaching job at Marin Academy. Since arriving, Smith has accepted an ambitious sports schedule. He began fall scheduling in August. Since then, Smith spent some $3,000 on uniforms plus $800 for athletic equipment — basketballs, soccer balls, footballs.

Additionally, he is trying to raise $2,800 for a wrestling mat to accommodate grappling and girls' gymnastics. To this end, Smith opened a campus sports equipment store and sells such items as t-shirts. "The monies go into the school."

Smith's school sports plans call for boys' basketball and wrestling teams and girls' basketball in winter, boys' baseball and tennis and girls' swimming in spring. He is also considering establishing four, one-week summer clinics in soccer and wrestling.

If Smith's projected program develops, the Marin Academy sports picture will be bright. Smith agrees, adding: "we hope to double our enrollment to about 130 next year and eventually accommodate 300 students. From the sports standpoint, the increased enrollment will, hopefully, give us better quality athletes and more depth on our teams."

DIRTY BOOTERS — Marin Academy soccer team members scrimmaged on the San Rafael campus' muddy field Tuesday in refining basic skills learned at the first-year school for students in the ninth through 11th grades. The soccer team competes with high school junior varsities. Although the Marin institution has only 65 students, enthusiasm for sports, such as soccer, abounds on campus, according to Corbin B. Smith, school athletic director.

Marin Catholic Vs. Drake In Football

A strong passing attack will be pitted against a strong passing defense tomorrow afternoon when Drake High School faces Marin Catholic in a non-league football game at 1 o'clock at Redwood High in Larkspur. There will be a delayed radio broadcast of the game on KTIM-FM, 100.9 on the dial, at 4:40 p.m. tomorrow.

Drake quarterback Tom MacAusland leads the Marin County Athletic League in attempts, completions, yardage and touchdowns, and three of his receivers -- Ken Zepponi, Marvin (Corky) Ingraham and Dan Trimble — are in the top ten.

"But the teams we have played against haven't really hurt us passing," said Marin Catholic coach Bruno Banducci. "Ben Partee is a veteran in the defensive backfield and he keeps the pass defense in good shape."

Drake (1-4) reports no serious injuries. Marin Catholic (2-4) lost starting halfback Russ Knudsen with a hip pointer against Healdsburg, but defensive back Tim Huber will return to the lineup following recovery from an injury.

Boxing King Monzon May Challenge Foster

BUENOS AIRES (UPI) — Carlos Monzon, slated to meet Bennie Briscoe in Philadelphia for the world middleweight title on Nov. 11, said Thursday that if he wins, he will challenge Bob Foster for the lightheavy title.

Monzon has been finding it difficult to keep within the middleweight limit.

BROADCAST

There will be a delayed radio broadcast of the game on KTIM-AM, 1510 on the dial, at 4 p.m. Sunday.

"A wet field won't be a factor, since we both play the same styles of ball," said Terra Linda coach Don Lucas.

San Rafael has accumulated an average of 283.3 yards a game. The Bulldogs have a running attack which has averaged 223.7, which is paced by the league's leading groundgainer, fullback Steve D'Ambra, who has 224 yards in three games and a 4.8 average per carry. Craig Saunders ranks sixth and Jim Grigg seventh in the league. Grigg may be ready to go this week after missing last week's game with an injury, although Chris Valentino will start at left halfback.

Dick Hooke will start at center for the Bulldogs. In the only other lineup change, Craig Campbell will start at a linebacker position, although which one won't be determined until game time, coach Bob Muster said.

DEFENSE

Terra Linda, conversely, has surrendered only 128.3 yards per contest. The defense is keyed by linebackers Steve Withers and Scott Logan. "The key to the game is how well we contain this guy Withers," said San Rafael coach Bob Muster.

The lineups:

San Rafael: (Offense) LE Eric Ellingson, LT Bob Seymour, LG Steve Keeler, C Dick Hooke, RG Mike Cook, RT Gary Jordan, RE Mike Sinclair, QB Lance Loughlin, LHB Chris Valentino, RHB Craig Saunders, FB Steve D'Ambra. (Defense) LE Keeler, LT Dick Paulson, MG Sinclair, RT Valentino, RE Graham Wright, MLB-SLB-WLB Cook, Dave Steele, Kip Tonking or Craig Campbell, LCB Fred Hurst, RCB Mike Farris, S Craig Bacharach.

Troubled 49ers Have Easy Week

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Although his defending division champions have lost two straight, San Francisco Coach Dick Nolan has been taking things easy with the 49ers in this week's practices.

Nolan said Thursday he has been putting his players through short practice sessions in an attempt to pull them out of the slump that has dropped their record to 2-3 and third place in the National Conference West.

Nolan also made two defensive changes Thursday he hopes will help the defenders revert to the form Sunday against New Orleans they showed in a 37-2 San Francisco victory over the Saints three weeks ago.

SONGS OF THE FORTIES

John Gilliland, of Mill Valley, a radio announcer who was just a youth in the forties when the big bands packed ballrooms throughout the nation and dancers danced cheek-to-cheek to the smooth music of Glen Miller, has become entranced with the era. Gilliland, in preparation for two long broadcasts of music from the forties, interviewed artists of that era and some of their comments are in a story on the young announcer and the era in Saturday's Marin Magazine.

Anecdotes Of Gomez At The World Series

Vernon Gomez, called Goofy by his Yankee teammates of another baseball era, usually is associated with funny baseball stories such as the time he suddenly whirled on the mound and threw the ball to Tony Lazzeri even though there were no runners on base.

The bewildered Yankee second baseman, walking the ball back to Gomez, asked the great southpaw "Why did you do that?" and Gomez chuckled "I just wanted to see what you'd do with it."

Such incidents earned Gomez of Fairfax his nickname of Goofy. But nobody calls him that now. It's Vernon or Lefty, much more fitting forms of address for an elder statesman of the game in which he four times was a 20-game winner and never beaten in five World Series during which he was 6-0 in the '30s.

Thus, when a couple of reporters spotted Gomez, who now lives in Fairfax, at the 1972 World Series, one hailed him as Vernon, the other Lefty, and the ensuing interview didn't revolve around Gomez's goofy exploits but that freak storm which washed out the first game in Oakland Coliseum.

ONE OF THE reporters suggested that henceforth in his travels around the country as a sporting goods representative he never would be able to convince anybody that his native California occasionally is blessed with benign weather.

"Not after the nationwide TV exposure of three days rain during the 1962 World Series and now this," said the reporter.

"I don't work for the Chamber of Commerce," said Gomez, "and seldom talk about the weather. But I've never been able to understand why everybody suddenly started talking about San Francisco's wind when baseball moved into Candlestick.

"It was windy in Recreation Park when I pitched there in the '20s. It was windy in Seals Stadium. The wind wasn't a big deal then. But in Candlestick, everybody suddenly discovers it's windy.

"Reminds me of Boston. Whenever I pitched there, first thing I'd be asked when we got back to New York was 'Did you pitch before or after the east wind off the Charles River?' "

GOMEZ WAS TOLD that Candlestick got the wind rap during the 1960 All-Star game when Stu Miller almost was blown off the mound in the seventh inning.

"I remember that," said Gomez, "and I also remember it was a beautiful day for six windless innings. So why the big deal about the wind that came up in the seventh?"

GOMEZ WAS informed that several important eastern columnists, sitting in a second-deck auxiliary press box unprotected from the wind, weren't too happy about their notes being blown away.

"Oh," exclaimed Gomez.

It was the first time he ever heard the reason behind the Candlestick wind rap.

Golf Club Title Play Tomorrow

Mother Nature set back the third game of the baseball World Series. She also released her rainy wrath on the 16 golfers who were set to tee off last Saturday in the San Geronimo National Golf Club men's championship. The start of the 72-hole match play at scratch was delayed a week. However, weather reports indicate the rains have temporarily disappeared; thus, the golfers will play 18 holes tomorrow, 8 a.m., at San Geronimo.

Golf survivors will play another 18 Saturday, Oct. 28 at 8 a.m. and the two finalists will go 36 holes Nov. 4, 8 a.m.

Suburban Wins Title

Suburban Auto Repair of San Rafael defeated Artichoke Joe's last night, 7-1, to win the San Francisco "A" Softball League for the ninth consecutive time. Suburban, which competed in several leagues throughout the summer, finished with a 52-21 over-all record.

In World Series: A's Stunning Win

OAKLAND (UPI)—This could be World Championship Day for the underdog Oakland A's, who need only one more victory and have ace Jim "Catfish" Hunter primed to get it for them. Jim McGlothlin pitches for Cincinnati at 1 p.m.

"Any time we have Hunter pitching, we have a chance to win," said A's Manager Dick Williams, trying hard to avoid sounding too confident after Thursday night's stunning 3-2 victory over the Reds in the fourth game.

The A's are suddenly on the verge of victory, just when it seemed that the Series would almost certainly be tied up 2-2 in games. Oakland, which had fallen behind 2-1 in the eighth inning Thursday, scored two runs in the last half of the ninth on pinch hits to pull out the triumph.

But the way the A's pulled out Thursday night's game, to the delight of a frenzied capacity crowd of 49,410 at Oakland Coliseum, it is plain the American League champions have no intention of waiting any longer than absolutely necessary to nail down a winner's share of about $12,000.

With one out in the last of the ninth, Gonzalo Marquez pinch-hit a single to center off Pedro Borbon and advanced to second when Gene Tenace, who had homered for the A's' first run in the fifth inning, grounded a single to left off Clay Carroll. With Allan Lewis pinch-running for Marquez, Don Mincher pinch-hit a line single to right to send Lewis home with the tying run and move Tenace to third base.

So there was Tenace roosting on third, Odom (pinch-running for Mincher) on first, and another pinch-hitter, Angel Mangual, advancing to the plate.

The game began as a pitching duel between lefthanders Ken Holtzman of the A's and Don Gullett of the Reds. Tenace broke the scoreless spell with his homer—the third he's hit in the Series after only five all season long.

The 1-0 lead lasted until the eighth inning when the Reds scored twice and seemed on the way to tying the Series.

Holtzman gave up a single to David Concepcion, who then moved around to third on a sacrifice and an infield out. With the tying run 90 feet from home and two out, Williams called in Vida Blue, who saved the fifth game of the AL playoffs and the first game of the Series for Oakland.

This time Blue nearly blew the game. First he walked Joe Morgan. Then he yielded a double to Bobby Tolan, who had been hitless in the Series until then, to score both Concepcion and Morgan.

nine. Since putting is the name of the game today with so many great players out there, you have to sink the putts to win."

Jack Nicklaus, who shot a 69 in his first competitive round since he played in the World Series of Golf early last month, was pleased with his play.

"Not a bad round for a non-golfer," Nicklaus said. "I've only played one full 18-hole round in a month and didn't touch a club for 27 straight days."

Another "non-golfer" was Gene Littler, who has not played a round on the tour since his cancer operation early in March. Yet, Littler managed to shoot a one-under-par 71 and Palmer, his playing partner, described Gene's fluid swing as "better than it ever was."

Napa's Ron Cerrudo had a 73, and Marin County pro Buddy Sullivan carded a 76.

Packer Ellis Grabs Punt Returns Lead

NEW YORK (UPI)—Ken Ellis' 80-yard touchdown return of a punt Monday night not only sparked the Green Bay Packers to victory but it also boosted him into the National Football Conference lead in that department.

Official figures released today show Ellis, a former Southern University star, boosted his punt return average to 17.9 yards per return to oust Bill Bradley of Philadelphia from first. The TD also was the first by punt return in the NFC this season.

Ron Johnson of the New York Giants and San Francisco's Gene Washington remained tied for the touchdown lead with six each and Detroit's Errol Mann moved into first place in kick scoring with 43 points.

San Marin features a balanced attack led by quarterback Hoza Wright, a fine runner and thrower. Prep of the Week Fred Doar is a fine power fullback, and Greg Pater a dangerous wide receiver.

Raiders Prepare For Bronco Game

OAKLAND (UPI) — After stumbling badly in the early going, the Oakland Raiders seem to be rolling as they ready for Sunday's test with the Denver Broncos.

Running back Clarence Davis is healthy and although he played little, he still managed to score two touchdowns in the big win over Buffalo last Sunday that shoved Oakland to the top of the division with a 31-1 mark.

Erving Is Back With Squires

By U.P. INTERNATIONAL

NORFOLK, Va. — Help is on the way for the struggling Virginia Squires. "Doctor J" is back.

"Doctor J" is Julius Erving, a 6-foot-6 superstar forward, who filed suit to get out of his contract with the club over the summer.

At a news conference here Thursday, Squires' owner Earl Foreman announced the American Basketball Association clib and Erving had settled their differences and Erving would return to the club tonight.

Last spring, Erving signed a multi-year pact with the Atlanta Hawks of the rival National Basketball Association, to take effect when his Squires' contract runs out in 1976. But during the summer he filed suit to get out of his Squires' obligation, claiming the original agent who signed him in, Steve Arnold, of Corte Madera was also an employe of the ABA and paid to steer him to that league.

More Basketball

SEATTLE (UPI) — The Golden State Warriors call on Seattle tonight at 8 o'clock and Portland tomorrow in a testing two-game set of contests against division rivals from the Northwest in National Basketball Association play.

They'll play Portland tomorrow at 9 p.m. with both games televised back to the Bay Area on KTVU channel 2.

Hockey

OAKLAND — Hopeful that today's world series game doesn't go 25 innings or so, the California Seals open their home season tonight against the Philadelphia Flyers at the Oakland Arena.

But today's World Series game was set for 1 p.m. at the Coliseum so the Coliseum lot should be ready for the Coliseum Arena fans tonight.

Football

CHICAGO — Robert Irsay, owner of the Baltimore Colts National Football League team, says Colts players owe the organization $600,000 from personal loans, according to a story appearing in today's Chicago Tribune.

Irsay, who took over ownership of the club from Carroll Rosenbloom before the 1972 season began, said the money came from personal loans extended by Rosenbloom, the Tribune said.

Mill Valley Soccer All-Stars To Play

Mill Valley All-Stars, ages 14 and under, of the Marin Youth Soccer Association, will play in a preliminary soccer match tomorrow in Balboa Stadium, San Francisco.

The team will vie against youngsters of the Westlake International Soccer Club at 11:30 a.m. In the feature youth game, Hanover 96 of West Germany will also play the North Bay Youth Soccer All-Stars Sunday, 3 p.m., at California State College, Sonoma. Players from Petaluma, Rohnert Park and Santa Rosa will participate in the game Sunday sponsored by the North Bay Youth Soccer League.

Marin Tars Host De Anza Gridders

Bible followers who missed the first clash between David and Goliath can see a rematch tomorrow , 1 p.m., in Kentfield. However, the ending may be different. David won the initial battle.

Upstart College of Marin hosts giant De Anza College of Cupertino in a Camino Norte Conference football game. The massive Dons, 4-2, feature a defensive line averaging 6-foot-4 and 235 pounds against a small Tar team.

The Marin gridders, 1-4, may not have David's slingshot available, but they do have the strong arm of quarterback Kevin Donohoe. Although Donohoe is a talented passer, he is not expected to offset the Dons' awesome defense spearheaded by tackle Sam Best, 6-4, 225. Thus, the Goliath-like visitors are heavily favored to defeat the Tars.

While Best and company exert maximum pressure on Donohoe, the Dons' secondary will be anticipating an aerial attack. De Anza defensive backs Bill Knutson and Jeff Jones share the league lead in interceptions with three.

Though realizing the Dons are conference pacesetters in team defense and second in team offense, Marin coach Dick Read seems relatively optimistic. "We'll be putting the ball in the air a lot, and anytime you do (throw) you have a chance. We know they're tough, but we should have a dry field at kickoff and that will definitely help our passing."

Regardless of field conditions, the Tars will encounter a run-oriented offensive by De Anza. The Cupertino squad's top rushers are Paul Fong and Jack Wender.

Girls' Swimming Records Broken

Three Marin County Athletic League girls swimming records were broken yesterday, two by Ann Haley of Marin Catholic High School, who swam the 50-yard breaststroke in 34.9 seconds and joined Jane Pattochi, Teri McGee and Tami McDuffie for 1:50.4 in the 200 freestyle.

Lisa Berryman swam the 50 butterfly in 29.6 for the other mark.

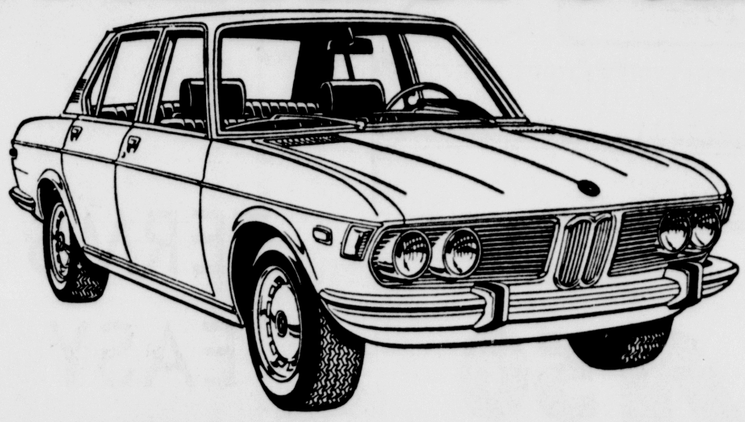
Wundercar.


The new BMW Bavaria.
6 cylinders. 3.0 liters. 130 mph. Under $7,000
Automotively speaking you are looking at the wonder of the age. The new BMW Bavaria.
Take the way it goes. Up to 130 mph. (Cruises at 120 all day long.) That's because its engine is built around the most efficient combustion system ever designed.
Take the way it holds the road. Like you'd hold a beautiful girl. Tight. That's because of a remarkable suspension system that features MacPherson struts up front, semi-trailing arms in back, with BMW's unique multi-jointed rear axle.
Small wonder Ken Purdy says, in Playboy Magazine, that BMW may be the best car in the world.
Frankly, our BMW engineers are auto fanatics. Their aim to to build cars they like to drive. (Can you imagine the uncommercial effrontery of that?) But then, what else would you expect from a company with the fifty-year speed and endurance traditions of Germany's famed Bavarian Motor Works?
If you have an instinct for great engineering test-drive the new BMW Bavaria Wundercar!

Win Murphy, Emmy Winner

TV PRODUCER-DIRECTOR Winifred Murphy, who is an Emmy award winner and a veteran of 17 years of producing and directing television programs, directs her crew of six video taping each of 13 science lectures from KQED-TV's remote truck at the Palace of Fine Arts Theater and Exploratorium.

By PAT BALMES

"I've done a thousand television shows," said senior TV producer-director Winifred Murphy who for 17 years has created KQED-TV programs.

The mother of two daughters in Terra Linda, Win Murphy is now a free lance TV producer-director, a newspaper columnist and a pioneer in the infant video cassette industry.

She won an Emmy award in March in Northern California Television Academy's public affairs category for her documentary, "Vasectomy: Male Sterilization."

The public television library is making it available to 210 public TV stations across the country, according to Mrs. Murphy. More of her programs have been purchased for network than those of any other KQED-TV local producers.

IN THE control room she directs the six to eight men "on the line," telling the floor man where to cue, the cameraman where to shoot and the technical director which picture to "punch up." She uses a stopwatch, a clipboard carrying the program's format and a headset to communicate with floor technicians.

"If you dwell on mistakes you cannot make it," she says. "If a set collapses during a live show you go right on. When programming was all live, it was funnier. Once a guy fainted on the set. On video tape you can decide if you should stop," she said.

When you first do your programs, you fear failure. You are putting your ideas on the line. When it is a success you know by the general feeling at the station, reviews from TV columnists, mail and your own judgment when you see the tape, she said.

SHE CURRENTLY is producing and directing KQED-TV's series "Cosmic Perspective, Man's Descent from the Stars," taping 13 Monday evening lectures at the Palace of Fine Arts Theater and Exploratorium.

"We work out of a remote truck. The whole crew comes out to set it up and shoot it with a live audience," said Mrs. Murphy who works in slacks.

After she edits her tape, it is aired on the following Monday at 10 p.m. "but I never get to see it on TV because I am working on the next one on Monday night."

Named in "Foremost Women in Communications in 1971," she also will be listed in the 1973 "World Who's Who of Women."

When the TV-radio major was graduated from San Francisco State College in 1955, television was a difficult field to break into. Women did not have a chance, she said.

"The men did not want a woman in the control room because they wanted to feel free and do their masculine thing," she said.

Because of shorthand, her "most valuable tool," she got the job of everybody's secretary when the new KQED-TV station only had a test pattern. At press conferences she took notes, transcribed them fast and gave copies to the press.

There was no one to do makeup and art work so she taught herself.

"I was shy, calling everybody Mister. The first week they asked me to come to a staff meeting because they wanted to know what I thought. It was to be a democracy; I should say so if I didn't like something," she said.

The staff began calling her producer-secretary when she suggested to manager James Day scheduling guests far enough in advance to allow time to research for areas of conversation. Previously he had been doing interviews on short notice.

The producer-secretary scheduled 20 famous persons for "Kaleidoscope," among them Bing Crosby, Maurice Chevalier, Aldous Huxley, Robert Kennedy, Joan Baez, Marcel Marceau, Jack Benny, Christopher Isherwood and Yehudi Menuhin.

"All the glitter in the world (sets) will not help unless the star can make his guests be themselves, come across and communicate," she said.

She did the research and preinterview warmups with guests while James Day listened and smoked his pipe, she said.

"I sat and talked with some of the world's most famous people who are so humble that they are easy to talk to. I worked with Bing Crosby; he really is old shoe and does talk ba-ba-ba-boo. He arrived carrying a shoe box, excused himself, went to the men's room and came back wearing the toupee he had had in the box," she said.

WHEN JAMES Day was scheduled to interview the then Vice President Richard Nixon, the station received a call saying, "We want your makeup artist to make up the vice president."

I had never been to makeup school. I went to a theatrical store and, not knowing what his complexion was, bought two different shades of makeup and a beard stick to cover his heavy beard.

"They put me in this little room with the vice president, with a secret service man outside the door. Mr. Nixon made polite conversation. "Are you a Republican?" and "What color makeup do you think I should wear?"

"I was faking it. He has swarthy skin so I said Max Factor No. 7 because that was the only dark makeup I had," she said adding with glee that she read recently that he still wears No. 7.

Besides interviews she has created, produced and directed countless programs in music, art, children's subjects, religion, the occult, science, business, instructional television for in-school use and language.

"My shows were soon all over the country because I did what appealed to the masses. I became a popularizer because I did not have time, rearing two children, to be an intellectualizer," she said.

IN 1964 their first daughter was born to Win and her husband Owen Murphy, who is assistant vice president for Union Bank in Oakland, and the producer-director found herself "in suburbia."

Seeking a creative outlet, she began writing her column of eight years for the Terra Linda-Marinwood News and lately stories for the San Rafael Pointer.

She free lances for KQED-TV two or three days a week, doing a full-time quality job because of her experience, she said.

"Fear is not in my way to eat up time and energy. And I have learned to cut a lot of corners," she explained. She thinks of her projects while she washes dishes and folds laundry, and often researches and formats her program after the family has retired.

A retired Terra Linda couple, John and Sara Deyling, babysit for her daughters exclusively on a flexible schedule. More senior citizens could be made to feel useful by helping part-time career mothers, she believes.

"I am all by myself, with 17 years of experience. What the video cassette industry needs is programming and what I need is financial backing," she said. A video tape costs up to $6000 to produce.

SHE PLANS to produce tapes on speculation and present them to a New York cartridge television company for mass production.

"The timing is right and TV is where my background is," said the veteran producer-director. Video cassettes are here. The cartridge hardware (video cassette player) makes your TV set a closed circuit television. But it's expensive, like when color TV was new.

She predicts that you will be able to send your voice and image on a cartridge to someone, that companies will be sending letters by video cassetta and that you will be able to learn an infinite variety of subjects from a cartridge by playing it over and over.

SCHEDULING HER latest free lance TV production with KQED-TV program manager by telephone, Mrs. Owen Murphy of Terra Linda continues to prepare her family's meal. The mother of two daughters also is a newspaper columnist and a pioneer producer-director of programs for video cassetts.

'OJT' Now Wears Mortar Board

WEST LAFAYETTE, Ind. (UPI) — "OJT" now wears a mortar board. The initials stand for on-the-job-training, a practical education in how-to, learned on the job.

It is wearing a mortar board, according to a report from Purdue University, because educators are working "OJT" into collegiate programs. It provides the degree students some practical experience, working under the supervision of an experienced practioner.

Mrs. Kling, UNICEF Head For 15 Years

For the past 15 years Mrs. Harold Kling of Corte Madera has headed the Marin County Trick or Treat for UNICEF Drive.

She begins in September pulling together volunteers from throughout Marin and recruiting new area chairmen to head drives at churches and schools. Films are made available to schools so that students can understand the work of the United Nations Children's Fund and the needs of children in developing countries, where war and disaster has interrupted their normal lives.

Trudie Kling is a native of Salzburg, Austria. Her father, a psychoanalyst in New York City, is a Quaker and has long been a supporter of the United Nations, she said. His interest in peace lead to her interest in the UNICEF fund, she said.

Established in 1946 through the voluntary help of private groups, school children and 112 governments, UNICEF was awarded the Nobel Peace Prize in 1965. The Bangladesh emergency has become the most recent priority for UNICEF funds, she explained.

"We are seeking volunteers to serve as area, school and church chairmen," Mrs. Kling said, "and also persons who will help raise funds by having cookie sales, a dance, Halloween makeup booth, spook house, costume contest or poster contest. We will provide them with films, posters, brochures and boxes for Trick or Treat collection money."

MRS. TRUDIE KLING
UNICEF Volunteer

Mrs. Kling has been a Girl Scout troup leader for 13 years and received the life membership award from Neil Cummins School Parent-Teacher Association. She and her husband, who is in the advertising business, have lived in Marin 21 years. They are parents of Claudia, 23, and Carol, 18 years old.

Mrs. Kling was educated in Salzburg and Vienna. Her hobbies are art, painting, music and the Girl Scouts, she said.

Anyone wishing to volunteer for UNICEF should contact her at her home, Mrs. Kling said. Help is especially needed in Novato, San Rafael, Fairfax, Sausalito, Stinson Beach and Bolinas.

THE SUBURBAN SCENE

A Day In Marin For A Princess

By MOLLY MARIN

The dining room and deck of the Alta Mira Hotel were filled at the luncheon hour Wednesday. Although many had come because they knew that Princess Christina of Sweden would be there, the princess and her party had their luncheon undisturbed.

The princess, who often breakfasts on yogurt and tea at home and often skips lunch, ordered a seafood salad and finished with chocolate ice cream for dessert. The party of 14 were served a California white wine with luncheon.

Ambassador and Mrs. Hubert de Besche have left their home in Washington D.C. to accompany the princess on her two week unofficial visit in the United States. The de Besche family will soon be leaving the United States, as the Ambassador has been transferred to Copenhagen.

For her day in Marin the youngest granddaughter of King Guftaf VI Adolf, wore a stylish pants outfit, which she said she had selected in Sweden. A black, beige and brown design long sleeved silk shirt topped beige knit pants. Surrounded by older dignitaries at official functions, the princess, in her 20s, said she has contemporary Swedish friends in San Francisco and has been able to visit with them, despite her tight Bay Area schedule.

She enjoyed her walk in Muir Woods, and had never seen redwood trees before. She likes to sail, but had to turn down an invitation to visit Belvedere yachting centers. Like any other woman, the princess had to leave time to get her hair done before the black-tie dinner arranged in her honor at the St. Francis Hotel Wednesday night.

Her lady-in-waiting, Mrs. Dagmar Nybleus, was Countess Hamilton before her marriage. She has been with the princess since Christina was a young child. She also accompanied Princess Margreta, the visitor's sister, on a trip to the United States six years ago. She had visited Southern California, but not San Francisco before this trip.

A DINNER party will be hosted Sunday by Mr.and Mrs. Ralph C. Noah at their home in Rolling Hills, Tiburon, for friends who have been traveling in Europe. The guests will include Mr. and Mrs. MacBoyle Lewis of Belvedere, who have just returned from an extended tour of Europe which began last May, and the Russell Keils and Edwin Weeds, also of Belvedere, who spent a month in Europe and enjoyed a Rhine boat trip and time in Paris.

Other dinner guests will be the Robert Kettenbachs of Belvedere and the Richard Niswongers, formerly of Belvedere and now living in Atherton.

BEAUTIFUL FALL colors of the trees in New England were enjoyed by Billie Garl, who has just returned to Novato following a trip to New Hampshire nd Wisconsin. She visited her son-in-law and daughter, Mr. and Mrs. Ned Dearborn, in West Lebanon, N.H. Ned is attending Dartmouth University.

Legal Contracts For Marriage Practical But Cold-Blooded

DEAR HELEN:

The legal marriage contracts I've seen run four or five pages of fine print and cover every little detail, from who gets what money, to specifics about each person's rights and privileges. Also, even more important: duties!

But the most common marriage contract — the license — leaves out all the clauses that would make sense, retaining only senseless jobberwocky.

I suggested drawing up an agreement for my fiancee and I to sign and have notarized, then file with a lawyer, to whom we'll go in case of divorce. Or better yet, if everything is agreed upon, we wouldn't need a lawver — we'd just present the paper to a judge, take our rightful property and split.

My fiancee says this is cold-blooded and, if I'm expecting a divorce, why marry? I say it is practical. You don't expect a fire, but you buy fire insurance, just in case.

What do you say? — FORWARD-LOOKING BRIDEGROOM

DEAR F.L.B.:

You're right: a marriage contract is practical.

Perhaps a detailed legal contract with rights, privileges — and duties — clearly defined might help dissuade mismatched couples from marrying. It could make people realize that marriage is a serious, full-time venture

On the other hand, what love-struck pair bothers to read the fine print — or the writing on the wall?

My advice: if your fiancee doesn't want to plan for the divorce before the marriage, don't push it! — H.

DEAR HELEN:

The grown children of elderly widows or widowers often prevent re-marriage for these lonely people because they fear they'll be done out of inheritances. My husband and I (we're 65 and 68 and newlyweds) avoided worry and got our children's blessings by drawing up a simple contract that says the house is mine, the trailer house on mountain property his, and so on down the line. Whichever of us dies first, the other only gets what is listed as his or hers in the contract. This, together with our wills, provides for our heirs — and for us.

It's a simple matter, and prevents much family conflict. After all, I wouldn't blame my children for being upset if my second marriage might mean the old family home went to his children. — PROVIDENT ELDER

DEAR READERS:

Here is an area where marriage contracts are essential. They should be considered a part of the package in second marriages when children are involved. (And of course all subsequent unions too.) — H.

DEAR HELEN:

During the 30 yars of our married life, I held two jobs so as to provide a good home for my wife and children. Now the kids are married and on their own — or so I thought!

My wife and I saved for our retirement years. But now it seems to be the "style" to give your married kids money for down payments on nice homes, to buy most of their furniture for them, to never let them strive or wait until they earn their goals. It's being done by parents all over town. My wife doesn't want to "look cheap." But when we eat hamburgers while our children eat lobsters and steak, I'd say financing their new home would make us look like patsys. Let them work for it, as we did! Right, Helen? — FRED

DEAR FRED:

Right!! Why not tell your kids you'll finance their home only if you two have live-in privileges the rest of your lives? That should cool 'em! — H.

Other incoming officers are Sandy Williams, Petaluma, vice president; Naomi O'Brian, recording secretary; Linda Shirado, treasurer, and Sharon Shirado, financial secretary, all of Mill Valley.

The Rate Of Breast Cancer

Seven of every 100 women in America will some day develop breast cancer, according to the American Cancer Society.

Because 95 per cent of these patients discover they have cancer of the breast by noticing a lump, numbness or unusual soreness, the society is directing a new effort especially to teach high school girls how to spot the disease.

ONE OF A KIND

A Bulldozer Driver For The U.S. Navy

By EDWARD A. FULTON

KINGSVILLE, Tex. (UPI) — Since July 31, 1972, Camella Jones has been unique in the world, a one of a kind.

It was on that date she was promoted from a storekeeper in the Navy to EOCN Camella Jones. The initials stand for Equipment Operator Constructionman and Camella became a member of the Seabees stationed at the Naval Air Station in Kingsville.

"I'm the only one the Navy has now," EOCN Jones said. "Another girl has made it out of boot camp and she wants to get into the Seabees, but I don't think she's made it yet."

As a one of a kind, EOCN Jones has opinions to match, particularly about Women's Liberation.

"I don't believe in Women's Lib and I wouldn't fight for Women's Lib. I just set standards for myself. I have probably helped the cause out quite a bit, but not because they asked me to or because I want to.

That said, EOCN Jones proceeded to build a substantial case for, if not Women's Liberation, at least for a singularly liberated woman.

"I'VE BEEN interested in heavy equipment all my life," she said. "My dad used to run heavy equipment in California, Washington state, Alaska, Oregon and every other place. I was fascinated with it, and the bigger it was the better I liked it."

Camella said she used to sit with her Dad on a piece of equipment, but she never operated it. When she joined the Navy in December, she learned how to use the equipment and eventually became good enough to ask for a transfer to the Seabees.

"I don't know which was harder, the red tape or the physical part of it," she said.

"There was quite a lot of red tape, but all fields are open to women now. Physically, you'd better have a few muscles here and there. Not all women would be capable of doing it. I wouldn't say these frilly women, who go around at 95 pounds and 4 feet 11 inches, could. For one thing, they couldn't reach the pedals on the machinery.

"But one thing, I'd never go back to storekeeper. That's ladies job, behind a desk, typing."

There have been several humorous episodes during her few months as a heavy equipment operator.

"This base has accepted me," Camella said. "I have a lot of friends here, but if I go to another base where they don't know me, things can happen.

"Sometimes I have to go up to Corpus Christi to work, and if I'm in my greens (her work uniform) the men and women just stare at me. And it's funny why they stare at me. I don't think it crosses their mind that I'm a woman.

"WELL YOU see, my hair is not long, but still it's a lot longer than the guys' hair is. So maybe those people up there think I'm a guy whose got an extremely long haircut. They think I'm a hippie.

"Constructionman is just a word, even if it is man instead of constructionwoman. That's silly. Besides the people I'm working with down here don't call me 'constructionman,' they call me 'Cam.' "

Camella will stay at the Naval Air Station in Kingsville, running bulldozers, cranes, backhoes, front loaders and the rest until December, 1973, when she is due for a transfer.

"I'm definitely going to stay in the Navy. But I sure hope I can get transferred out of Kingsville. It's too hot here," the Oregon-born woman said.

And her transfer could signal one of the next obstacles for a female Seabee.

"IT'S VERY doubtful, but I would go to Vietnam if they would let me," she said.

Why wouldn't she be allowed to go to Vietnam to drive heavy equipment? Is it because Camella is a woman?

"Yes, I think that's the reason why," she answered.

Well, since she would like to go to Vietnam, would she be in favor of a protest by Women's Liberationists aimed at getting her to Vietnam?

"No. No. No." she said. "I don't even want to talk to Women's Lib."

NEW YORK (UPI) — A U.S. Department of Agriculture study shows that husbands average about one-and-one-half hours a day on yard care, car upkeep and chauffering children — regardless of whether the wife is a full-time homemaker or employed.

Members of the Marin Parents of Hearing Impaired Children have elected Mrs. Steve Sarrafzadeh of San Rafael president. During two years of membership she has served as vice president in charge of fund raising.

Eligible for membership are parents and teachers of hearing impaired children in the Marin County schools and other persons desirous of promoting the objectives of the organization, according to Deanna Sarrafzadeh.

"Our objectives are to achieve the highest standards of education for all hearing impaired children in Marin County and to promote better community understanding of the needs of the hearing impaired," she said.

The organization will sponsor educational programs for parents and will have fund raising activities to supplement the school programs.

A native of San Francisco, the new president is a graduate of City College of San Francisco with a degree in retailing. She and her husband, an electrical engineer with the California Division of Highways, have lived in Marin County for nine years. They are parents of Steven J., 9, David A., 7, and Karen Ann, 4 years old.

Singing, sewing and baking are her hobbies. She is also a member of the St. Sylvester's Folk Group, Marin Aquatic Club and the Special Education Advisory Committee.

Emergency Visits On The Increase

NEW YORK (UPI) — Visits to hospital emergency departments have increased 312 per cent since 1954, but the nature of the visits has changed. Catherine O'Boyle, assistant director for adult emergency services at Bellevue Hospital Center here, says most emergency department visits today are not classified as real emergencies.

Reporting in the American Journal of Nursing, official publication of the American Nurses' Association, Ms. O'Boyle said more and more persons are using hospital emergency services for primary health care.

Health Insurance —Consumer Hustle

By SANDRA HAGGERTY
(Distributed by Los Angeles Times Syndicate)

"Well, the Mrs. and me had been worried about what would happen if one of us had to go to the hospital. We're supposed to get Medicare, but everyone said that wasn't near enough to cover medical costs. Anyway, in the Sunday papers there was an ad about 'extra cash' health insurance and it was advertised by that nice fellow who used to be on television all the time. So we wrote in for it and I've been sending them a money order every month.

"Then Jenny had to go to the hospital and it turns out they wouldn't cover her because of 'pre-existing conditions.' Seems to me they just shouldn't take old people's money in the first place. At our age, all of us got some kind of pre-existing condition. Jenny didn't get to that stage overnight.

"The health insurance company just shouldn't have taken our money if they couldn't give us the help we need."

THE ELDERLY man was referring to his disillusionment and lack of understanding of one of today's greatest consumer "hustles" (a method of separating people and their money), the health insurance business.

Of all the areas in immediate and desperate need of a national shakedown in the name of consumer protection, health insurance companies (particularly the mail-order variety) rank at the top of the list.

These companies hit the American public where it is particularly vulnerable. Nothing is more frightening to most people than the prospect of a major illness — especially to the elderly and to people living from paycheck to paycheck. A major illness stands to wipe out a person financially as well as physically.

The mail-order insurance companies have been particularly blatant in the use of misleading advertising. They use grandiose headlines, offering thousands of dollars worth of coverage for what appears (in comparison) to a very small premium. But there are so many loopholes (pre-existing conditions, time regulations and the like) that the chances of the average policy holder getting the maximum amount of coverage advertised is practically nil.

The health insurance "hustle" is particularly evident when, reportedly, the nonprofit Blue Cross organizations return up to 97 cents in benefits on the premium dollar and, in stark contrast, one company (with millions of policy holders) has the gall to return as little as 7 cents on the premium dollar. The returns vary according to the company, but the "hustle" aspect is shockingly blatant.

We can't deny the fact that medical costs are continuing to rise sky high, but so have the insurance premium rates. It's simply time the consumer got his money's worth.

MOST PEOPLE have been sufficiently brainwashed into accepting that health insurance is a must. Some even think they are buying "health" via their monthly insurance payments. Then they find that after faithfully paing their premiums, due to quietly camouflaged loopholes, they were not even purchasing adequate medical care.

Too many people are not totally aware of the exceptions, exclusions and severe limitations of their health insurance policies. Consequently, in addition to a nationwide shakedown under way in some states already of the health insurance "hustle," there is needed a mass consumer-education drive concerning health insurance coverages and alternatives.

Grant To Study Women In Union Positions

The Ford Foundation has announced a $41,600 grant to Cornell University-New York State School of Industrial and Labor Relations to investigate why there are so few union leaders among working women.

The proportion of working women who are union members is not reflected in union leadership, according to statistics.

Women comprise 20 per cent of union membership but only 4.7 per cent of its leadership. The one-year grant to Cornell will cover a study of factors in the under-representation, including a comparison of women in six unions of varying sizes and industries.

Some Safety Tips

CHICAGO (UPI) — Hold child's hand when on an escalator, says the National Safety Council. Also: keep child from sitting on the escalator steps. His clothes can get caught in moving parts. Also: don't allow sneaker-clad youngsters to rub their shoes along skirt guard of escalators. They can get pulled into the works.

Mrs. Spagel Recruits For Mills

Mills College assistant director of admissions, Mrs. Donald Spagel, met with counselors and prospective students at Tamalpais and San Rafael and Terra Linda Schools yesterday.

Recruiting students for the Oakland college, Betty Spagel said the purpose of her visit was to dispel the myth that students of middle income families cannot qualify for financial aid.

"More than 50 per cent of the students attending Mills are on some form of financial aid. Because of the increasing number of individual college financial aid programs now available, high school seniors should not limit themselves to considering only state-supported institutions," she said.

"Students should not dismiss the idea of private education because of cost. Students considering college should place emphasis upon finding the curriculum, faculty and general atmosphere which best fits their needs and place cost considerations far down on their list of priorities."

Twenty per cent of the students who entered Mills this semester were recipients of state schoarships, and 56 per cent of all those who applied for financial aid from the college received it, she said.

Mrs. Spagel, herself a graduate of Mills, also said that Mills has one of the highest enrollments in its history and has bolstered its financial aid program at a time when most colleges are feeling the financial squeeze.

Ear-Piercing Fad Prompts Warning

A revival of the cosmetic fad of ear-piercing has prompted the American Medical Association to issue a warning. Women run the risk of serious complications when they have their ears pierced by a friend rather than by their physician.

Severe bleeding, inflammation, internal infections, such as hepatitis, and skin erruptions due to metal allergy occurred in nearly half of a group of nurses who had had their ears done recently by an amateur.

VIETNAMESE WIFE

No Luxuries To Soften Saigon Life

By ANN BLACKMAN

GIA DINH, Vietnam (Ap) — Judy Linebaugh Han lives in a two-bedroom apartment overlooking a pig slaughterhouse just outside Saigon, half a world away from the dairy farm in Lyons, Mich., where she grew up.

At 25, one of a handful of American women who have married Vietnamese men, Mrs. Han doesn't share the comparative luxury that softens the life of many Americans in this war-ravaged country.

In the four years since she moved to Vietnam, after graduation from Michigan State University, she has heard of only two other such couples.

"They're used to GIs with Vietnamese girls- this is the reverse," she observes

For a woman who is neither fluent in the language nor accustomed to the culture, living here is far from easy. Her only extravagances are two small refrigerators in the kitchen and a small Japanese washing machine that fits in the bathroom. Her husband drives their Jeep-like Vietnamese car to work, leaving her isolated in this dusty suburb.

"THERE ARE many problems," she said, pointing to dirt alleys smelling of garbage that surround the four-story apartment building. "I walk on the street with Han and the kids, and people stare or want to touch the children's white skin. I get tired of it.

"There's no backyard, no place for the children to play. There's no hot water in the building. I get mad when the electricity goes off, especially on hot days like today because the fan won't work."

But for Mrs. Han, these complaints are minor. She has no interest in leaving Vietnam and doesn't plan to go back to the United States.

"I don't think I want to live there again," she said. "It's too big. Life is simple here. My life here is very peaceful. That sounds strange when there's a war going on, but the war doesn't affect us much."

At night in their simply furnished living room they can hear helicopters and also the artillery fira outside the city often close enough to shake the apartment building- but she pays scant attention.

KHOI, THEIR 2-year-old son, scarcely notices the soldiers who guard street coroners near their home. "He's used to them; he sees soldiers all the time."

Mrs. Han said she wants to bring her children up as Americans. Khoi, who was born in Vietnam, is considered a citizen by both countries. When their second child was expected Mrs. Han dipped into her savings to pay for a plane ticket home. Eric was born four months ago in the United States.

"I want to teach my children about truth and freedom in America," she said. "I like freedom. I want them to know it, too. I want them to be imaginative and creative."

A supporter of President Nixon's Vietnam policies, she hopes to see him re-elected. She has registered at the American embassy for an absentee ballot. Nixon's book "Six Crises," is one of the few volumes in the Han bookcase.

Mrs. Han said her children are bigger than most Vietnamese their age. She attributes it partly to the fact they eat more meat than Vietnamese.

BECAUSE SHE doesn't share commissary or post-exchange privileges enjoyed by most American families here, most of the American products she prefers come from the black market. She figures she spends about 7,000 piasters or $16 a week for food.

Her husband often does the grocery shopping. As a Vietnamese, he can more easily bargain for better prices.

The husband, Huynh Han, has two jobs to support his family. He heads the investment department in an industrial development bank and works part-time for a new firm that promotes management training among the Vietnames. He makes about 100,000 piasters or $230 a month, a good salary by Vietnamese standards.

Shopping Harder Can Trim Costs

LINCOLN, Neb. (UPI) — You can do your part to hold the line on food prices and food budgets by "shopping harder," says Janet Wilson, extension consumer specialist at the University of Nebraska-Lincoln.

You go to the supermarket prepared when on a "shopping harder" mission. Have a list that includes advertised specials and buy plentiful foods in season. That's what Miss Wilson means by prepared.

Mrs. Hickok Is New Nursery School Head

Mrs. Jerrold J. Hickok of San Rafael is the new president of the Terra Linda Cooperative Nursery School.

The non-profit, non-sectarian, family centered nursery school is sponsored by the adult education program of San Rafael High School District.

To raise funds for the school, the parents recently held a wine and cheese tasting party and are planning a rummage sale on Nov. 4.

The nursery school is for children from 2 years and 9 months to kindergarten age.

"The program has many family benefits in addition to a sound nursery education at reduced costs," Edna Hickok said. "The primary aim is to allow the child to learn to share and enjoy his social and physical environment by offering new skills and broadening experiences with the parent helping in a happy, well planned, relaxed atmosphere."

A native of Glendale, Mrs. Hickok has lived in Marin since 1958, except for four years spent in Palo Alto. She is a graduate of the University of Oregon, and she and her husband, a realtor, are parents of Lance, 8, and Steven, 4 years old.

Edna Hickok is also a member of the American Association of University Women, and her hobbies are sailing, gourmet cooking, organic gardening and sewing.

Other new officers are Mmes. A. Neal Brengle, vice president; Roger DiGenova, secretary; Louis Rago, treasurer. Committee chairmen are Mmes. Ulf Jennen, orientation; Jack Shaffer, maintenance; Eugene Flannery, evening program; Douglas Luce, fund raising; John McGuire, purchasing; and David Miller, community relations.

Depending on the circumstances, a job can contribute to a woman's ego or add to her fatigue. One recent Michigan study of college-educated women found the full-time wives and mothers didn't do as well as those who worked.

*Googol: The largest number of things that has a name. Webster defines as the number one followed by a hundred zeroes.

There are googols of little creatures squiggling and burrowing, flitting and squishing under the mud, through the swamps and over the sandy marshes. Sea squirts, copepods, lugworm larvae and the babies of little fish. Each with a kind of a brain, each with the breath of life. But their life is ebbing. And as they start to go—you do, too.

You are standing on the threshold of time in as sacred a place as any in the world. It's where the life of the water and the life of the land converge in biological blur. These are the wetlands—the swamps and the mudflats that sometimes smell like rotten eggs. These are the marshes, clogged with weeds, swarming with bugs, teeming with beautiful life. This is where the moon moves the water in shallow ebbs and floods; where the sun pierces down to the ooze and the nutrients flow in a strange and marvelous way. Nowhere else except here in these sopping grounds is there so much life in so much concentration. But the life is dwindling. And as these lands start to go—you do, too.

These squishy, mushy lands are where most of our fish are born, the fish that feed the fish that feed the fish that fill the sea. These narrow strips of estuarine land are where the birds come to rest and nest and feed; and they are tied inexorably to the life support for the raccoons and the bears and the deer a hundred miles away. And to you.

In California, most of the wetlands are already gone. In Florida, they're going fast. Once there were 127 million acres of interior and coastal wetlands. Now forty per cent are gone, the precious specks of life in these treasured lands exchanged for yacht clubs and marinas and industrial growth. As we dredge the bays and fill the marshes and cover the mud with asphalt; as we spray our poisons and scatter our waste and spew oil upon the waters—we destroy forever the great forces of life that began millennia ago.

But now we have gone too far. Because this planet belongs not only to us but to them as well. To the umpteen zillion other things that fly in the sky and roam on the land and swim in the sea and burrow beneath our feet.

Now, especially now, if we will only stop to think—perhaps we will think to stop.

CONTEMPORARY MASTERS — Bold in concept and brassy in color, Robert Fried's "Haven" offers a funnel-shaped perspective. Fried's pop-art paintings and other works in various idioms by artists from the Quay, Sawyer, and Vorpal galleries in San Francisco, are contained in an exhibit at the College of Marin Fine Arts Gallery, Kentfield, through Nov. 10. ART REVIEW

Some Helpful Hints For Showing In Big Galleries

By ADA GARFINKEL

If any artist wants to know what it takes to be affiliated with an important San Francisco gallery, he should carefully study the paintings now on display at the College of Marin Fine Arts Gallery.

The work of the 23 participating artists are from the Quay (pronounced "key"), Sawyer and Vorpal galleries. Some of the artists have exhibited in major museums and art centers in the United States, and in England, France, Japan, Mexico and New Zealand.

Not only are some of the more advanced approaches included, not only is the work carefully executed —even when it seems most extemporaneous — but each work is fully realized. And the overriding quality that mature artists have in common —a unified style and point of view — is overtly self-evident.

Galleries have their own points of view. The artists in the Sawyer stable are hard-edge precisionists. But each one has his own style, for example Clayton Gorder and Guy John Cavalli, both of whom show shaped canvases, but with a difference!

Gorder's slim, interloccing panels with pastel pinstripes form such configurations as "Speeding Paralleogram," while Cavalli's "Diamond, Phase 20," though classifally self-contained, gives the impression that its corners are overlapping in envelope fashion.

The three women artists in the Sawyer Gallery group are Mona Beaumont with "Wedding," a sculptural-like couple painted in pale grays on ochre; Jean Hyson, who does incredible things with expanding circles and ovals, and Elizabeth Mamorsky — she of the biomorphic shapes in scintillating colors.

Others in the Sawyer menage are Fritz Rauh, who lives in San Anselmo; Willard Dixon, Michael Burns, and Steven Minamora — whose elegant arched panel of figures seen as if through translucent glass, is highlighted by mottled, fluorescent ribbons of color.

Quay Gallery artists are noted for uniqueness, as in the delightful "put-ons" of Franklin Williams, the "underwater" fingerpainting of Jeremy Anderson, and in the distinctive, assemblage-drawing of Vaea. Quay artists are also "painterly" and vanguard, as in the multiple photo-image works of Bobbie Creely and Donald Nelson, with lushness of color predominating in the former and mood in the latter, and bravura brushwork in both.

The widest range and diversity is from the Vorpal Gallery whose paintings vary from the powerful pop-art of Robert Fried and the evolving figures of John Denning to Muldoon Elder's texturous triptych, and Don Martin's irrepressible, Rube Goldberg-like drawing: "Magic Like Art Is Hoax Redeemed By Awe."

For a rich and visually exciting experience, a visit to this exhibit is highly recommended. Viewing hours are from 8 a.m. to 5 p.m. and from 6:30 p.m. to 10 p.m. weekdays through Nov. 10.

Thief Convinced To Leave Purse

A young woman, accosted last night in front of her home in Greenbrae by a would-be robber, firmly convinced him not to take her purse even though he had a gun.

Larkspur police said the woman, a College of Marin student, was waiting on Via Casitas for a ride to school about 7:30 p.m.

She said a car drove up and a youth got out, came up to her and addressed her as "senorita" and asked for directions to a house number. Before she could reply, she said, he pulled out a gun and demanded her purse.

After she repeatedly told him "no," he said to a companion in the car, "Let's get out of here."

The woman described the youth as about 16 or 17 years old.

Charges In Fatal Auto Crash Loom

A manslaughter charge may be brought against a Petaluma woman as a result of an accident on highway 101 Tuesday in which one person died and four others were injured, according to the California Highway Patrol.

CHP officials said today the Sonoma County District Attorney's office has been asked to bring a manslaughter charge against Beatrice S. Cohn, 51, of Purrington Road. Mrs. Cohn was involved in the three-car accident near the Marin County line that claimed the life of Anthony R. Lawrence, 20, of Petaluma.

Officers reported today that Mrs. Cohn was driving southbound and suddenly veered across the center divider hitting the northbound Lawrence car head-on. Another Northbound car driven by Leland D. O'Leal, 22, of Fairfax, then rammed the Lawrence car broadside, officers reported.

O'Leal was reported as still in critical condition today at Hillcrest Hospital with head and internal injuries. Nurses said he has shown slight improvement.

Also injured were O'Leal's wife, Claudia, 18, and their daughter, Lea, 18 months, who were reported in satisfactory condition today.

Mrs. Cohn, also injured, was reported in fair condition in the intensive care unit.

Requiem Mass for Lawrence will be offered at 9:15 a.m. tomorrow at St. Anthony's Church, Novato. Recitation of the Rosary will be at 8 p.m. today at Parent Funeral Chapel, Petaluma. Burial will be at Calvary Cemetery, Petaluma.

$4.2 Million Suit Against Patrick

Due to a typographical error, the Independent-Journal erroneously reported yesterday that a $5.2 million lawsuit was filed against William Penn Patrick's Leadership Dynamics Institute.

The suit by Frank and Betty Buscaino of San Rafael actually asks $4.2 million plus lesser expenses for alleged physical and mental injury suffered at an institute encounter session in Palo Alto last year.

MOTION PICTURE GUIDE

The Marin Motion Picture and Television Council provides these ratings of movies now being shown in Marin County. The council's findings are from California and National Parent-Teacher Assn. magazines and Parents' Magazine unless otherwise noted. More complete reviews may be obtained by calling the San Rafael City Library.

FAMILY

"Legend of Lobo" — The world is seen through the eyes of a legendary wolf as he grows from a delightful cub to responsible maturity and becomes leader of his pack. Great entertainment.

"What's Up, Doc?" — A diverting comedy set in San Francisco is fast moving and slapstick. A kooky girl chasing an eccentric young man and three men chasing their identical suitcases.

ADULTS AND TEENS

"Butterflies Are Free" — A blind boy's striking out for independence from a domineering mother is both funny and touching thanks to a clever script and intelligent direction. It will be enjoyed by youth and parents since it presents both sides equitably and can lead to a discussion of values.

"Elvira Madigan" — Set in the late 19th Century a Swedish officer deserts the army and his family because of his love for a young circus performer. Their lack of funds and the scorn they suffer when recognized leads to a tragic end to this tale.

"Joe Kidd" — A violent western with trouble over land grants given to Mexicans in New Mexico. Some senseless plot twists and lack of character development but picturesque photography.

"Marjoe" — A documentary type film tells the story of a fourth generation Pentecostal preacher, a self admitted conman who cruelly exploits the people and admits it.

"The Other" — A strange gothic tale about a little boy who is possessed by the evil spirit of his dead twin brother and a series of horrors that befall the afflicted household. Much of tale is gripping and disturbing but horror upon horror finally proves anticlimactic.

"Skin Game" — Clever comedy of pre-Civil War days. Two friends, one white, one black, are partners in a clever skin game which outwits the slave traders. Foul language and sex scenes make it unsuitable for children.

"Sometimes a Great Notion" — A tense, dramatic adventure about the dangerous logging operation in a timber wilderness of Oregon. A familyfeud adds to the situation. Some violence and rough language.

"2001: A Space Odyssey" — This imaginative science-fiction film takes one from the bare beginnings of the world to the year 2001, then a journey into space to other galaxies. An overwhelming experience is subject to any interpretation the viewer may put on it.

BORDERLINE
(Most sources say Adults Only)

"The Burglars" — A French crime caper with modern, computerized technique of safecracking. An easy going jewel thief and a corrupt sadistic Greek cop play a cat and mouse game that leads to some wild car chases. Nudity. English dubbed.

"The Go-Between" — A turn of the century love story, a high born beauty and a handsome lower class lover and their doomed affair as seen through the eyes of a 12 year-old boy. Beautiful photography. Sex scenes.

"Harold and Maude" — A heavy-handed film about Harold, a poor little rich boy, who spends time attempting suicide and going to funerals, then he meets 80-year old Maude and she shows him how to be happy. One-note plot soon palls.

"The New Centurions" — A rookie policeman is teamed with the old pro in a squad car on duty in L.A. Story then turns to the personal lives of main characters and how when they are unable to handle their problems, falter on their jobs. Nudity and cursing.

"Slaughterhouse 5" — Unusual production that mixes tragedy of war, trivia of middle-class life and fantasy of science-fiction. Fine acting and direction save it from being just slick satire. Some nudity and cursing.

"Virgin and the Gypsy" — A romantic adaptation of D. H. Lawrence's story about a free spirited girl in the 1920s who tried to escape the confines of her narrow-minded family. Her love affair with a gypsy is handled quite tastefully.

ADULTS ONLY

"Catch 22" — Film graphically depicts the immorality and unreason war breeds. Sexual license, depravity, brutality and sheer stupidity are the order of the day. Bloody, gruesome deaths are shown explicitly. Episodic structure with flash-forwards and back are very confusing.

"Everything You Always Wanted To Know About Sex" — A satire, seven vignettes, taken from Dr. Reuben's best seller, are answers to sexual questions. Will appeal to Woody Allen fans, offbeat and frequently bizarre humor.

Latin America Student Tour Session Is Set

Young persons interested in going to a Latin American country this summer with Amigos de Las Americas may attend a recruitment and orientation meeting at 7:30 p.m. next Wednesday at St. John's Church in Ross.

Amigos de Las Americas is a volunteer organization that provides medical aid, primarily immunization, in rural areas of Central and South America.

Volunteers must be 16 years old, speak some Spanish and be willing to take an extensive training program from Nov. 29 through next June, according to a spokesman, Mrs. Donald Barbour of Greenbrae. Further information may be obtained by calling her.

How To Improve Business Image

CINCINNATI (UPI)—Andrew Brimmer, first black member of the Federal Reserve Board, said Thursday Negroes must become "a new breed of entrepreneur if they are to increase their role in the business world."

Brimmer said blacks must break from their traditional role as small businessmen and be prepared tocompete in a variety of new fields.

"Failure on the part of black-owned firms to diversify means stagnation and decline in the years ahead," Brimmer told 2,000 delegates attending the convention of the Association for the Study of Negro Life in History, of which he is president.

DINING OUT AND INNS

By HARRY CRAFT

Dominic's Dominates San Rafael Canal Area—Men's Great, Too

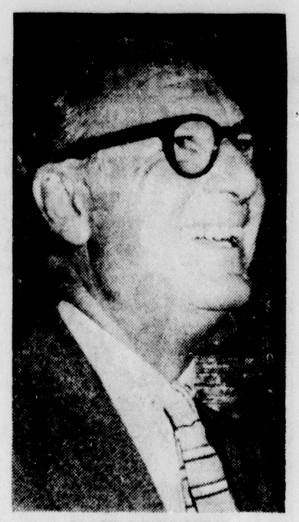
It has been claimed that the shores along the upper stretch of the San Rafael Canal could have been developed to provide more of the dining out attractions that characterize Jack London Square in Oakland.

As it is now, there are only two waterside restaurants there — Dominic's Harbor Restaurant and Pier 15. Correction: Three, I suppose, if you include Montecito Shopping Center's Salt Fish and Chips, whose rear entrance and windows face on the canal.

But except for this, little thought in the early days of developing the shopping center was given to the scenic advantages of its water frontage — although Herbert Crocker and William McDevitt has alraedy opened Dominic's on the opposite bank. Today this restaurant holds a commanding position on the canal. True, there are a few other properties on the same side of the water along there that are vacant, but prices for them are now so high that even a venturesome restaurateur must pause before getting involved in the investment that would be required to open another dinery.

Dominic's was built more than 11 years ago, reportedly on the approximate site where the fabled Dominic Murphy had a famous restaurant over a century before. No doubt it was easy to find then, but if there is one disadvantage to today's Dominic's it is the difficulty some visitors have in identifying its entrance from Francisco Boulevard. Things have changed along there. But Messrs. Crocker and McDevitt are aware of this and are making plans to have it more easily pinpointed.

Once inside the property there is ample parking for just about any occasion.



MARIO BRENTA
Manager at Dominic's

On Dominic's waterside there is berth space for about four boats and yachtsmen often tie up here and come in for lunch. And after returning to their vessels some of them remain there until it is time to come up for dinner. The restaurant, by the way, is a very nice place for lunch, coming either by land or by water. More people should take advantage of it. The menu has a wide variety of entrees, salads and sandwiches.

The dinner menu also has a varied selection of a la carte hors d'oeuvres, soups, salads, seafoods, meats and other entrees, as befits a restaurant of this size.

In addition, early this year manager Mario Brenta and chef Pierre Giavina came up with a series of complete special dinners during the course of the week, with a "Pacific Ocean Dinner" on Fridays. The latter features halibut steak and a Manhattan clam chowder that is excellent. Price is in the $4.50 range.

There is a big wine list, and you can, if you like, order a $40 bottle from the well stocked shelves, as one diner does regularly. But you'll have no difficulty finding others at more down-to-earth parices.

Dominic's has excellent and large facilities for banquets and parties. Seating a group of 500 or even more in the Musee d'Art International banquet room is no trick. Otherwise the upstairs L'Escalier Room will handle up to 120 and the Chart Room about 25. Ask Mario for the banquet and party menu.

THERE'S NO NEED to go hungry while browsing through the new Sears Roebuck store at Northgate.

There's quite a comfortable little restaurant inside. While no attempt is made to provide the extensive menu of a regular dinery, you can order such things as burgers, barbecued beed, chili, French fries, soup, Italian spaghetti and a number of fountain specials.

Service is cafeteria style. Booths and tables are provided where you can indulge in crowd watching while you munch and rest your tired feet.

TAVERNA YIASOU OWNERS Beth Taylor and Lou Getas, who have been traveling in Europe, are expected to return to the little Santa Venetia restaurant sometime next week. Meanwhile Taverna Yiasou continues serving lunches and dinners according to its regular schedule.

YOU DON'T FIND IT OFTEN, but does it annoy you that some restaurants print their menus in a foreign language without English subtitles?

Don't let it bug you. You might take your cue from the British, who with unruffled calm pronounce foreign words the way they jolly well please. And if the waiter doesn't understand them, or pretends he doesn't, he jolly well loses a sale.

LESS THAN A MONTH remains of the 1972 season of the Tiburon Champagne Dinner Cruises from Fisherman's Wharf in San Francisco. This means there are only four more Thursday night excursions before they are over for the winter. Last dinner cruise will be on November 16. After that they'll be suspended until next May.

Price of $10.75 includes the cruise, champagne and dancing aboard and dinner at your choice of the Dock, Windjammer, Tiburon Lodge, Sam's Anchor Cafe or Tiburon Tommie's. Tax and tip are included.

Reservations should be made with Champagne Dinner Cruise, 1714 Stockton Street, San Francisco.

THERE IS GOOD SINGING tonight at the Alvarado Inn in Ignacio by the Generation Gap from 9 p.m.

Produce Is Stolen From Dairy Truck

A thief pried open a storage locker and took two cases of orange juice, 15 dozen eggs, eight gallons of ice cream, 20 pounds of cheese and 30 pounds of butter, police said.

DINING OUT

NOT ALL CHEFS ply their profession in restaurants.

Paul Debes, head of Astro Foods, Inc., San Rafael, is an example. A master chef, he nevertheless had to make his way up the ladder. He studied in both France and Germany and worked in the kitchens of many fine American hotels. Eventually he was executive chef at both the Palace and St. Francis Hotels in San Francisco. And several years ago he won a gold medal for being on the winning American team at the Olympic Culinary Federation competiton.

ARE PASTEURIZED WINES inferior?

Not necessarily, though it happens that most of the less expensive jug wines are pasteurized. But it takes the palate of an expert to detect any sign of pasteurization.

It is true that some wine buffs look down on this process of making a wine stable, because they say there are other ways of accomplishing the same thing. Yet they accept without question the advantages of pasteurized milk.

They forget that Louis Pasteur's research on the subject was originally applied to wines which he still considered "the most healthful and hygienic of all beverages." When his process was proved successful it was later applied to milk.

Standoffs Are Seen In Governors' Races

By RAYMOND M. LAHR

WASHINGTON (UPI) — At a time when governorships are supposed to be stopovers en route to political oblivion, one Democratic governor and one Republican are running this year for their third four-year terms.

And Gov. Robert Docking, a Democrat in normally Republican Kansas, is seeking an unprecedented fourth two-year term. He was the first Kansan ever elected to three terms.

Eighteen states will elect governors Nov. 7 to offices now held by ten Democrats and eight Republicans. Of these, four Democrats and five Republicans are candidates for re-election. The net result is expected to be close to a standoff.

There are now 30 Democratic and 20 Republican governors. Thirty-five governors were elected in 1970, reflecting a long-term trend toward electing governors for four-year terms between presidential contests to minimize links between state and national elections.

The two incumbents seeking their third four-year terms this year are Govs. Calvin L. Rampton, Utah Democrat, and Daniel J. Evans, Washington Republican. Gov. William L. Guy, North Dakota Democrat, is retiring voluntarily after three four-year terms.

Governors are beset with problems that make re-election harder. One of the biggest is tax increases and new tax levies on voters who demand more services but object to the cost.

Yet Gov. Nelson A. Rockefeller of New York is approaching the middle of his fourth four-year term, and Gov. John Love of Colorado the middle of his third.

Evans is running boldly as a proponent of a state income tax. He campaigned for the tax two years ago, when he was not a candidate, but the voters rejected it in a referendum. Washington is one of 10 states that have no income taxes.

Evans was first elected in 1964 after stressing the third term issue against then Gov. Albert Rosellini. With Evans running for a third term, the same Albert Rosellini is his Democratic opponent, a fact which may neutralize that issue.

Among the 10 most populous states, which get priority attention in presidential races, only Texas and Illinois elect governors Nov. 7. Although President Nixon is favored to carry Texas, Democrat Dolphe Briscoe is expected to win the governorship, last taken by the GOP in 1874.

The President also is favored in Illinois, but Gov. Richard B. Ogilvie, Republican nominee for re-election, is classed as a possible loser. He pushed through the state's first income tax three years ago and found it a heavy political burden.

Tax issues also are regarded as influences in the state politics of Rhode Island and New Hampshire. Enactment of a new income tax in Rhode Island in 1971 was viewed as a factor dissuading Democratic Gov. Frank Licht from seeking re-election.

Gov. Walter Peterson of New Hampshire, the only state with neither an income nor a sales tax, advocated a new tax program and failed to win renomination in the Republican primary. Two conservative businessmen, Republican Meldrim Thomson and Democrat Roger Crowley, opponents of new taxes, were nominated. The outlook is blurred by the entry of Malcolm McLane, Concord Republican favoring a new tax levy, running as an independent.

West Virginia has John D. (Jay) Rockefeller IV, Democratic secretary of state and nephew of the Republican governor of New York, facing Gov. Arch A. Moore, the first chief executive in his state to be eligible for re-election.

A close race is indicated. A Rockefeller victory would make this wealthy Democratic convert from the multimillionaire Republican family a man to be watched as a potential Democratic comer nationally.

In Indiana, where Republican Gov. Edgar D. Whitcomb cannot run for a second term, the faction-ridden GOP has Speaker Otis Bowen matched against former Gov. Matthew Welsh.

The GOP nominee in Rhode Island is Herbert Desimone, loser to Licht by about 1,800 votes four years ago, facing Democrat Phillip Noel.

In Missouri, which last elected a Republican governor in 1940, Democratic Gov. Warren E. Hearnes is ineligible for a third term. Republican state auditor Kit Bond is running against Democrat Edward Dowd, head of the St. Louis Police Board.

Lt Gov. Richard Larsen is the Republican nominee in North Dakota, where Guy is retiring. He is running against Rep. Arthur Link in a state which lost one of its two House seats as a result of reapportionment based on the 1970 census.

Republican leaders also believe they have at least a shot at Montana, where Democratic Gov. Forrest Anderson is not running for re-election, and Kansas, where Docking is bidding for a fourth term.

Educational Meeting Set On Diabetes

Two educational meetings about diabetes will be conducted by the Marin County Diabetes Association during November, according to spokesman Sandra Glazunova.

The first, Nov. 2, will feature a roundtable discussion led by Dr. Peter H. Forsham, chief of the metabolic unit at the University of California Medical Center, San Francisco. It will be aimed at all persons concerned with diabetes.

The second meeting, Nov. 2, will be for young diabetics only, and will be a rap session aimed at guiding them in management of their disease.

Both meetings will be at 7:30 p.m. in the cafeteria at Marin General Hospital.

Federal Grant To Sewage Plant

A $1.97 million grant from the Environmental Protection Agency has been approved as partial funding for improvements to the Petaluma Sewage Treatment Plant.

Rep. Don H. Clausen, R-First District, said the grant will combine with other state and federal grants to provide $3.6 million of the estimated total cost of $4.2 million.

Construction is expected to begin next spring on a new pump station, force main and oxidation ponds.

School To Hold 'Goblins Ball'

Proceeds will be used to finance the school's junior-senior prom. Dinner will be served from 7 to 9 p.m. and tickets may be purchased in advance from any member of the class or at the school.

Dancing is scheduled from 9 p.m. to midnight. Masks will be required and costumes are encouraged.

Double Arrest Hearing Is Set

A 26-year-old Novato man, arrested on two consecutive days last week, has pleaded innocent in Marin Municipal Court to car theft, two counts of concealing stolen property and one of wire tapping.

A preliminary hearing for Kenneth Michael Giakovmis, a mechanic who runs the Ignacio Body Shop, was set for next Friday.

Giakovmis was arrested Oct. 8 by Novato Police after 1 15-year-old girl thought the car he was driving looked like one stolen from a neighbor Sept. 12.

The neighbor, Michael F. Mahoney, a San Francisco policeman, held Giakovmis at McDonald's restaurant on Highway 101 until police arrived.

He posted $1,250 bail after being booked into Marin County Jail, but was rearrested the next day on the stolen property and telephone violations after Novato police searched his auto shop.

Crusade Campaign Has Different Look

The United Bay Area Crusade has a little different look this year in Marin County.

The Crusade, now under way, hopes to raise $17 million this year to assist some 200 agencies in the Bay Area. This actually is $4 million short of the need, according to Peter E. Haas, Crusade president — But UBAC officers are realists; they don't expect to get $21 million.

THE DIFFERENT look is caused by return of some Crusade campaign direction to the nine counties, instead of operating everything from central headquarters in San Francisco.

Each county this year has its own chairman, its own public relations committee, and nine section chairmen. Each holds its own report meetings. (Marin has held one already and has two more scheduled.)

This puts direction of the campaign a bit closer to the people. It makes it a bit more personal when the direction is by men and women you may know, instead of somebody of whom you have heard perhaps but have never met.

Crusade directors hope this will result in residents giving a little more freely this year.

LOCAL DIRECTION of the campaign means no change in how the money is allotted — only in how it is solicited. But it has put a bigger volunter force into the field to explain the need to residents in each of the nine counties.

There's a big job ahead for these volunteers between now and Nov. 21, the Crusade campaign's closing date, if they are to raise that $17 million.

It's a job for each of us, too. It means reaching into the pocket, dipping into the bank account, or committing part of future pay checks — to help somebody else, somebody who needs it.

WITH THE immense amounts poured out by federal, state and county governments for welfare, it might be thought there is less need for such an effort as the United Crusade. But it doesn't work that way.

Charitable organizations, and such worthwhile semi-public activities as Scouts, Big Brothers, etc., simply don't get those state and federal funds. They must still depend on you and me. And nothing the government has done has eliminated the need for such organizations.

It may be a good thing it hasn't. Funds spent by the government have a way of going into the bureaucracy of the spending —a good part of them, anyhow. Overhead of a government program, staffed by paid employees, runs higher than that of a volunteer organization that gets much of its work done by people who just want to serve — on their own time and at their own expense.

We can keep this better way of doing things by contributing to the United Crusade. Now is the time.

GOP Favorites Hang Back On Race For Governorship

By RUS WALTON

At least four Republicans would like to be the next governor of California: Lt. Gov. Edwin Reinecke, State Controller Houston Flournoy, Atty. Gen. Evelle Younger, and presidential counselor Robert Finch.

Right now their races are in neutral. They have agreed to keep things low key until after next month's elections.

The GOP fat cats want it that way. They don't want personal rivalries messing up President Nixon's re-election campaign in California. The race out here is tight enough as it is.

After November, the money boys will choose up sides and see who they will back for the U.S. Senate race (against incumbent Alan Cranston) and who they want for the governor's chair.

THAT DOESN'T MEAN each of the four isn't doing a bit of campaigning at odd moments.

Attorney General Younger is beating the capital punishment drum, getting exposure making speeches on behalf of Proposition 17. Younger's support of the initiative to restore capital punishment is more a slap at the State Supreme Court, for invading the legislative area, than it is an all-out endorsement of the death penalty.

Controller Flournoy is quietly advancing his cause by taking a strong stand in support of the Serrano decision. That gives him a platform for tax reform and a new approach to the problem of financing public education.

Lt. Gov. Ed Reinecke had his bright spot earlier this year. He scolded the State Supreme Court and the legislature because they turned down his impartial reapportionment plan in favor of the same old gerrymandered hatchet job. At present Reinecke is pushing hard for economic development and the creation of new jobs for Californians.

White House aide Finch has hooked his star more directly to the Nixon wagon. He dreams of inheriting financial support and manpower from that outfit after November. Then he can decide whether he wants to go for the U.S. Senate or the governor's office.

BUT THERE'S ONE candidate for governor who is not hanging back: one Republican who is off and running — somewhere.

His name is Gordon Paul Smith.

And who, you may ask, is Gordon Paul Smith?

Well, Mr. Smith came to Sacramento once. He was Governor Reagan's first director of finance, in 1967. Like Sargent Shriver, he was not first choice for the job. But in late 1966, when things were desperate and others were not available, Smith was there — and got the nod.

Gordon Paul was fresh out of a management consultant firm, a smooth talker, eager to please and easy to grab. So Governor Reagan grabbed him.

Smith's year as finance director was splashed with hot water from one end to the other. Then-communications director Lyn Nofziger was forever explaining to the press what Mr. Smith did and did not mean. Those were the days when the state budget would go from $4.6 billion one day to $5.1 billion the next.

GORDON PAUL wasn't any great shakes as a finance director. His successor, Caspar (Cap) Weinberger, had a lot of straightening out to do. But Gordon Paul was sure some orator. He was only five-foot-five but he had a ten-foot voice. He loved to make speeches and that's what he did most — made speeches and dreamed dreams of a grand political career.

When he left the finance office in early 1968, there were rumors he would run for the U.S. Senate. But that was before Max Rafferty decided to take on Sen. Tom Kuchel.

For awhile it was rumored that he might run for Congress — in the district now represented by Paul (Pete) McCloskey.

In 1970, it was again rumored that Gordon Paul might run for the Senate — but that was before Sen. George Murphy decided to run for re-election.

THE NEEDLE

By HAROLD COFFIN

Running for office is the art of putting your best foot forward without getting it in your mouth.

There's a heap of difference between an outspoken politician and one who's all talked out.

A fellow has to play politics before he can practice statesmanship.

Candidates are trained never to say anything about an opponent unless they can say something bad.

Some of your best friends may be politicians, but would you want your sister to vote for one?

Proposition 20 Proposal Like BCDC

I am one of 60 state legislators working for passage of Proposition 20, the California coastline initiative on the November ballot.

In my opinion, this is a very reasonable attempt to establish guidelines for the protection and proper development of our greatest natural resource: the 1,072-mile California coastline.

Proposition 20 is nothing new. It is the same plan that is now working, as the BCDC, to safeguard San Francisco Bay. In fact, California is one of only three coastal states in the nation which have no coastline protection . . .

Kittens Abandoned By Heartless Owner

Last Thursday night, I found three kittens that had been dumped on the road near our house in the rain. The next day, another was found in a tree. I guess someone felt this was the "humane" way to dispose of unwanted animals.

With some effort, and help from friends, we've found homes for some of these kittens.

Unfortunately, thousands of kittens and puppies never get as far as a home. They're either left (as these kittens were) to starve or be mauled to death by dogs, or they must be taken to animal shelters to be disposed of.

I know sterilizing animals is expensive; however, when you consider the alternative if unwanted pregnancies occur, the price is worthwhile.

It makes me very angry when people don't care.

Proposition 22 Benefits Workers

Proposition 22, the Agricultural Fair Labor Practices Initiative, should be judged on its merits rather than unproven allegations.

According to James Spaletta, president of the Marin County Farm Bureau, "Proposition 22 is written to benefit agricultural workers, growers and, inevitably, consumers. . .

"It is inconceivable that people who say they represent farm workers do not want to afford their followers with this right."

In addition to allowing workers to choose their union, the initiative will restrict secondary boycotts and establish a five-man board, similar to the National Labor Relations Board. . .

They Put Out Fire And Then Cleaned Up

Bravo for the San Rafael Fire Department!

Last night we had an electrical fire in our home and had such a great response from the San Rafael Fire Department that I wanted publicly to thank them. Not only did they arrive immediately but they extinguished the fire, disconnected the circuits which may have caused it, found the source of the trouble, but then proceeded to clean the room from top to bottom. We all may rest easy, that if we can get a call in quickly, the firemen will make the greatest effort I have ever seen.

She Didn't Know Water Was Fluoridated

As a citizen of San Francisco, I was shocked to read that San Francisco has had its water supply fluoridated for 20 years.

If San Franciscans are at all knowledgeable they will start proceedings now to have fluoride removed from their water supply. Twenty years ago no one was conscious of the ecological effects of such toxic pollutants. Nor was there such an abundance of fluorides in the air, the water and our foods. If Adelle Davis and Ralph Nader — to say nothing of Paul Ehrlich and Barry Commoner — believe that fluoridation is harmful; if Denmark, Sweden, France, West Germany, Belgium and many communities in the United States have banned or discontinued the use of fluoride after many years —I think San Franciscans should also take a second look.

Grape Festival Proves Successful Again

The combined efforts of Sunny Hills Volunteers and the Marin community once more presented an exciting traditional Grape Festival. Many organizations, businesses and governmental departments gave of their time, staff and products to aid in our efforts to raise funds to support Sunny Hills. With too many to list I take this opportunity to say a grateful thanks to all!

In spite of the strong winds that nearly blew us off of the ground, we attracted a very large attendance during the morning and estimate our net proceeds for the day at approximately $16,000.

Many thanks to the Independent-Journal for your kind consideration and excellent coverage of the 73rd annual Grape Festival.

Special Bus Lane Of Benefit To All

When I read the letter by Charles Carle in I-J issue of Oct. 17 on the special bus lane my first thought was: "There is one in every crowd." Usually the ones who scream the loudest about their constitutional rights are the first ones to disregard the rights of others. Isn't it the right of everyone to breathe air unpolluted by car fumes? After all, that is the whole idea back of the special bus lane; to save commuters time and to make it more desirable for them to leave their cars and ride the bus. This thins and speeds traffic and reduces fumes. Granted, it isn't feasible in every case not to have one's car, but in many cases, entirely unnecessary. The tendency is to make every excuse not to take the bus just to have that car handy at one's beck and call or whim.

We just have to change our way of thinking if we are to avoid becoming another L.A. or even to survive at all with our polluted air. Mr. Carle would do well to stop and think what is best for all rather than to worry about whether some Constitutional right of his has been violated.

ROSCOE DRUMMOND

One Issue Finally Clarified: Candidates' Stand On The War

WASHINGTON — The presidential campaign is beginning to take on some shape and substance.

We are now getting something more than scatter-shot accusations by Senator McGovern and bland, "Who, me?" denials from spokesmen for President Nixon's spokesmen.

It's about time.

WE HAVE AT LAST a clear-cut, rational, well-argued choice of policies for ending the Vietnamese war and a good explanation of why each candidate believes his course is better for the nation.

Senator McGovern believes it is better to end everything we are now doing to help defend South Vietnam, regardless of the consequences.

President Nixon believes it is better to use air and naval power until Hanoi is willing to negotiate "an honorable peace."

McGovern believes it is more important to get out of the war at once, regardless of what may happen afterward.

Mr. Nixon believes that unless we leave South Vietnam with a good chance of defending itself, we will be planting the seeds of future war.

McGOVERN PROPOSES to accept Hanoi's terms for ending the war even if this means imposing a Communist dictatorship on the people of South Vietnam.

Mr. Nixon proposes to accept Hanoi's terms for ending the war only if they permit the people of South Vietnam to choose their own political leaders in free elections.

McGovern believes the United States can immediately and unilaterally cut off all its support — economic as well as military — to the government of South Vietnam without impairing in any way the confidence that present and future allies would have in America's word.

Mr. Nixon believes that the United States should not cut off its support to a country willing to defend itself from aggressive Communist takeover. He contends that if we abandon our commitments to one ally, trust in any American commitment by other allies would drop to an all-time low.

THERE ARE OTHER McGovern arguments which raise questions of fact, not just judgment about the facts.

For example, the senator contends that the President is engaged in idle "face-saving" in continuing air and naval combat in order to negotiate "an honorable peace."

That's campaign oratory. Mr. Nixon's way of ending the war may or may not work out, but his purpose is not to save anyone's face but to save South Vietnam from a Communist dictatorship imposed by force.

McGovern contends that Mr. Nixon's purpose is to "save Thieu."

That's campaign oratory. The President's purpose is not to save Thieu but to negotiate a peace which will permit the people of South Vietnam to re-elect Thieu or throw him out. Thieu would resign a month before elections.

McGOVERN NOW sincerely believes that it was a mistake for the United States to help defend South Vietnam in the first place, though he voted to approve doing so in 1965. He now believes deeply that saving Vietnam from conquest isn't worth the life of one more American.

The best statement of the contrary view comes from the greatest Democratic liberal of them all — Adlai E. Stevenson.

In the last letter he penned before his death, Stevenson wrote that unless aggression is checked at its inception, "I believe you set us off on the old, old route whereby expansive powers push at more and more doors, belieing they will open, until, at the ultimate door, resistance is unavoidable and major war breaks out."

Frustrated Atlanta Finds Self With Its Schools Resegregated

ATLANTA, Ga. — As I started to write this, waves of thunderous syncopation rolled in off the glass skyscraper walls along Peachtree Street. From the hotel balcony I could see a long accordion of high school bands marching to the stadium for the Morris Brown-Florida A & M game, all spit shined, dry-cleaned, strutting — and all black.

It was great entertainment, but something was not right. This was Atlanta in 1972, and Atlanta is the city that was supposed to have shown the nation the way to racial enlightenment while most of the South was fighting a bloody rearguard action during the past 18 years. This is Atlanta, yet those are all-black bands from all-black Atlanta high schools.

ALL-BLACK and all-white schools are a surprising contradiction to outsiders who know this capital of the South mainly by its reputation. Because it exits, Atlanta is under federal court order today to go beyond its policy of accepting segregation gracefully, and exert itself to implement desegregation in fact.

Not that it has failed to exert itself already. It has tried, but because of white flight away from integrated schools, the city school system is blacker and more segregated today than a few years ago. It is a dilemma in major cities North and South, but nowhere so frustrating as in Atlanta.

For here there are no old-fashioned segregationists at any level of leadership. Leaders of both races have been well intentioned and law abiding. Yet frustration is now at least turning some of them bitter.

Atlanta has tried one plan after another, yet white parents have moved away each time the racial mixture in a school passed the "tipping point," around 30 per cent black. About 30 schools in the city thus began segregated, were desegregated and are now resegregated by white flight.

Today the system is 77 per cent black. About 5,000 white children left the city schools in the past three years, and only about 22,000 remain. The Fifth Circuit Court of Appeals in New Oreleans says 106 of the 153 schools are totally or virtually segregated.

THERE ARE TWO versions of how this came to be. Some black leaders maintain that the national image Atlanta won during the mayoral terms of William Hartsfield and Ivan Allen in the '50s and '60s did not relfect what was happening at the working level. Those officials went through all the right motions, but fundamental changes in jobs and housing patterns were needed to enable their political decisions to work in the long run.

Some white leaders insist that the city has done not only as much as the law required, but more. At one point, a lower federal court formally designated Atlanta's a "unitary" system, meaning it was satisfactorily integrated. But nothing could prevent frightened whites from fleeing, and now the city is at its moment of truth.

The circuit court says it must submit a plan to complete desegregation beginning Nov. 27. It suggests "pairings" of black-and-white schools, or other comparable schemes. It leaves the exact method up to the city.

WHAT FINALLY brings the city to this hard place is that the court specifically said white flight could not be considered. It also said that if more transportation is needed, the city must provide it. That avoids the scare word, busing, but that is what it means. Only about 2,000 are being bused here under desegregation plans now.

There is confusion and frustration among people who want to do the right thing. Into this situation Mr. Nixon campaigned the other day, and in an ideal world a troubled community would have had a right to expect some words of realistic advice or encouragement from its President. What Atlanta got was Mr. Nixon's admission that he had read polls showing busing was an issue here, and his reminder that he was against it. He milked the problem for all its political potential, then flew away promising to send a Justice Department representative to look into it — to what avail was not stated. And when he left, Atlanta was just as troubled and frustrated as before he came.

Finding Book Is Challenge At Marin County Library

Finding the book one wants at the Marin County Library in the Civic Center continues to be one of the greatest intellectual challenges in the county.

If seeking a volume by a particular author, the would-be book finder cannot look just in the place where it would normally be expected to be.

Like a detective, he must at least check the entire shelf, since countless books are filed out of alphabetical order. You may find Thomas Mann under Mann or Mall or even Martin.

Looking for something on the Mayans? There's a chance it will be under the section usually reserved for ancient cultures of Mexico. Or you may stumble over it — as I did — under East Indian culture.

Well, after all, individuals from both civilizations were known as Indians.

LIBRARY PERSONNEL contend the mish-mash of misfilings is caused by sloppy patrons who pick up books, then replace them in the wrong places.

This may be true in some cases, but one wonders if the readers who patronize the county library are less conscientious than those who go to libraries in Mill Valley or Sausalito, for examples.

Books in those libraries manage to remain in some reasonable order, even those that must be ocasionally handled by readers. Perhaps County Librarian Bruce D. Bajema could send a task force down to southern Marin to learn their secret.

The "inept patrons" excuse simply does not explain why many works of fiction end up filed under the name of the publisher rather than the author on county library shelves.

Perusing the book shelf devoted to the world of Mary Roberts Rinehart the other day, I discovered several other works by authors whose names began with G and B and W. These books had one thing in common; they were all published by the Rinehart Co. Logically, they were filed under Rinehart. One wonders how many popular authors are lying, hidden and unread, under Doubleday, McGraw-Hill or Prentice-Hall.

AS AN ADDICT of the detective story, I soon learned that — although the library has an entire large section devoted to this type of books — they are also filed under general fiction in many cases.

The other day I happened to spot Bajema behind the counter and asked him — in a pleasant, conversational way — if something could be done to alert mystery fans that they may also find their favorites in another place.

"Mr. Bajema," I said, "I notice that detective stories are also filed under general fiction.

"Um-hum," he replied.

"Um-hum," he answered.

"I was thinking there could possibly be a sign in the mystery section urging readers to also check the fiction section," I added.

"Um-hum," said Bajema, concluding the conversation.

COUNTY COMMENT

By WILLIAM D. (BILL) FUSSELMAN

Committee System Could Help Supervisors Govern Marin

Two member committees of the Marin County Board of Supervisors, assigned to specific departments and rotated twice a year, would be an efficient, productive arrangement. These committees could pull their chairs up alongside the department heads and go over the work at hand and thus head off such ballups as this Phase II of the balanced transportation.

This is a proven procedure. Committees thus are able to report to the board as a whole at regular meetings and suggest any changes deemed necessary before wasteful effort and time have been expended.

Quoting from the news story of the board's action in rejecting the key premise of the transportation report: "The board postponed further consideration... until the planning department has retested sections of the plan dealing with locations of population growth and number of buses.

"The report is expected to be back before the board at the same time as the proposed countywide general plan of which it is a part." What a hassle there will be then!

THE MARIN MAGAZINE never fails to come up with interesting articles when it appears as part of the I-J on Saturdays. Last week it was, "Profile of a Marinite" — the Marinite was the Marin County planning director.

For the purpose of comparison with what follows, here are some excerpts from the profile: "... The manner in which he runs his department is strictly free spirit.

"He shuns what he considers government's preoccupation with administrative rules and procedures that dictate how employees should look act and think. 'Of course we have some, but my nature is to run things with as few restrictions and regulations as possible,' he said...

"His concern for personal freedom, he said, stems from his childhood in Nazi Germany."

He graduated from the University of Darmstad, with a master's degree in architecture, in 1956, and a year later came to the United States. In 1958 he took a position as assistant planner with the city of West Hartford, Conn., and was named planning director in 1961, coming to Marin County in 1966 as chief of current planning, becoming planning director in 1970.

Now, if he was actively occupied for four years as current planner and has had just two years to put together his countywide plan that he is presenting, it wonders one more than a little how he can possibly have the real understanding of the majority of the 200,000 — plus people who have preceded his appearance on the scene?

As one reads the softly phrased yet smoothly insistant dictating where people must live and work, it wonders what has happened to his "shunning of government's preoccupation with administrative rules and procedures that dictate..."? What has become of the "free spirit"?

LET'S REFRESH our memory. One of the comments made in the editorial in the I-J issue of Oct. 6: "Under the countywide plan proposal, a board created by an appointed board — two steps removed from the elective process — would have power over the elective city councils and the board of supervisors." Again may we ask where is the free spirit?

Repeating the statement by the top man in city planning: "We share a rather impressive body of ignorance... The great society isn't here and we don't know how to get it... The magic bullets of city planning have been as yet undiscovered."

If the courts sustain or maintain their position relative to the environmentalimpact reports on construction, this countywide plan can become a moot brainchild at that. We shall see.

Reshuffle Problems To Be Studied

The Marin County Board of Education will consider reapportioning problems at its meeting Wednesday at 8 p.m. at the county schools office.

The board already has asked the Marin County Committee on School District Organization to study the board's composition because its seven trustees represent areas with widely varying populations.

Board members will consider redistricting problems and arrange a joint meeting with the organization committee.

Also on the agenda for Wednesday's meeting are two formal public hearings for appointments to the Marin County Schools Personnel Commission and recognition of the county schools' Certificated Employees Council.

BIRTHDAY QUIZ

By GORDON B. GREB

Good luck to all you Friday, Oct. 20 birthday people. My study of astrology tells me the planets have slipped in their orbits!

ART BUCHWALD is 47 today. Important? You bet! This busybody lives a few doors down from the White House. Art has been seen at the back door borrowing sugar, then running around the neighborhood spreading gossip. After his visits, he brags on and on . . . "Then I Told the President" and when challenged, says, "Have I Ever Lied to You." There are books proving this. Now he's going round town saying Henry Kissinger sneaks down to his palce for nightly briefings, which, if true, would make Buchwald the No. 2 man in government. Impossible, you say?

JOHN DAVIS LODGE, distinguished U.S. diplomat, was born this very day in 1903. The stars have given Buchwald the deep dark secrets of statesmanship! Moreover, WAYNE MORSE, long-time U.S. Senator, also celebrates today. He's 72. Again the conjunction of Saturn and Neptune have blessed Buchwald with the arts of handshaking, speech-making and keeping promises.

JOYCE BROTHERS, 44 today, is that psychologist who bedazzled TV a few years back. Score two for Buchwald — beauty and brains —all he needs to replace Kissinger as a swinging jet pet.

PRESIDENT NIXON likes sports you say? The planets know. They gave Oct. 20 to MICKEY MANTLE and JUAN MARICHAL, baseball greats. How can Buchwald miss in advising on game plans? For tricky issues like bussing, Oct. 20 provides JOHN DEWEY, big thinker of U.S. education. Movie horror man BELA LUGOSI and silent film funnyman CHARLIE CHASE also were born today. That means Buchwald knows when the President needs to scare his enemies or keep silent in election campaigns.

Loser-On-Loser Action Can Keep Dangerous Foe From Lead

We continue today on the subject of how to keep the dangerous opponent out of the lead. One method that sometimes escapes notice is the loser-on-loser play.

South	West	North	East
4 ♠	All Pass

Opening lead — ♡ K

SECOND ROUND

West opens the king of hearts, winning the first trick. West then shifts to a low club and you put up dummy's ace.

You're worried about the diamonds. If East gets the lead, he will attack diamonds and you may lose two tricks in the suit. For this reason you want to keep East out of the lead.

The best way is to lead the queen of hearts from dummy. East plays low and you discard your remaining club. This exchange gives up a second heart trick instead of a club. The advantage is that the trick is given up to West instead of to East.

West cannot afford to lead diamonds for then your king would surely win a trick. West's safest return is a trump.

RUFF CLUBS

You win in dummy with the nine of spades and ruff a club. You lead a trump to dummy's seven and ruff another club.

As it happens, all of the outstanding clubs drop. You can get to dummy with the ace of spades in order to discard diamonds on dummy's last two clubs.

STILL CAN WIN

You would still have a play for the contract if the clubs failed to drop so obligingly. Upon reaching dummy with the ace of spades you could lead a diamond, hoping that East had the ace. It was wiser to play first for the clubs since that would give you two chances for the contract.

DAILY QUESTION

♠ - 8
♥ - A K 8 4 2
♦ - A 8 6 3
♣ - J 5 2.

ANSWER: Double.

This asks partner to bid his best suit. You will be happy if partner bids hearts or diamonds and you will be content even if he responds in clubs. This takeout double gives you the best chance to find a good fit; an overcall of two hearts might run into a bad break.

Planning Priorities Due Study

The Marin County Planning Department has scheduled a meeting for 8 p.m. next Thursday at the San Geronimo Art Center to discuss planning priorities with residents of the San Geronimo Valley.

Principal planner Rowland Darnell said that residents of 11 unincorporated areas in the county have indicated they wish to develop specific plans for their communities and want assistance from the county planning department.

Because of limitations of staff and time, the department will only be able to participate directly in three such plans this year, Darnell said.

Planners have set the highest priorities for Strawberry and Tamalpais Valley with a third place tie among Bolinas, Black Point and Lucas Valley.

Planners, however, will act in an advisory capacity to other local planning efforts, Darnell said.

Waste Plan Consultants Are Asked

The advisory committee of the Marin Municipal Water District's Improvement District has recommended hiring of two consultants to prepare financial, administrative and environmental impact studies for a proposed $28 million consolidated waste disposal system for southeast and central Marin.

The committee agreed on Thursday to recommend that the MMWD board hire the San Francisco firm of Bartle-Wells Associates to prepare the financial and administrative studies at a cost of $12,500.

Jones and Stokes Associates Inc. of Sacramento, environmental consultants, is the firm which the committee thought should prepare an environmental impact statement on the project. Cost of the work would be $16,474, the consulting firm estimates.

Both recommendations will be presented to the water district board at its meeting Wednesday, according to John T. Schulte, project manager for District A, the body established by the MMWD to make plans for the consolidated disposal system, up to the point of a bond issue.

Many Might Falter With Such A Heavy Schedule

By MARY LEYDECKER

Robert D. Roth of Greenbrae carries a full class load at the University of California plus holding down a four-day-a-week job but he is a far cry from the stereotyped hollow-eyed student who burns the midnight oil.

His schedule also includes time for teaching and lecturing and tending to the dozens of plants he has collected in his combined life as a landscape architecture major and a nursery employee.

Roth's eyes sparkle and a ready grin lights his face when he explains where he gets his energy and the ability to fill his life so full.

It all began three-and-a-half years ago, he said, when he was a freshman on the Berkeley campus.

An instructor whom he knew "seemed to be using so much of his potential" and also was noted for his kindness, Roth said.

The instructor told the youth he was practicing "transcendental meditation," a method of obtaining a "very profound physiological rest," in Roth's words.

A technique which could lead to "increasing clarity of mind and more energy" appealed to the youth.

He found out that "TM", as it is often called, has no religious or philosophic connotations and has "nothing to do" with meditation as the word is commonly used.

It also requires no change in life styles nor any kind of a diet ("I'd hate to have to give up sweets," Roth said with a smile) nor does it involve any "physical tricks."

"We don't hold our breath or stand on our heads or anything like that," he explained.

It also does not involve clearing the mind of other subjects or dwelling on a particular event or thought, Roth said.

What is transcendental meditation then?

"It is a simple, natural, effortless mental technique taught on a one-to-one basis," he began. It is based on the theory that the mind is "drawn to something satisfying" and the aim is to "experience a quieter depth of the mind" than in usual.

"We think thoughts at an earlier stage of their development" than when they usually surface to the top of the mind, he explained.

The meditation can "be done almost anywhere," according to Roth, who said many businessmen practice their 20-minute meditation twice daily on commute buses. All that is required is to assume a comfortable sitting position and close the eyes — and while the meditation was described as "comfortable," it is not a trance or any kind of a "high."

Exactly how it's done, young Roth did not want to try to explain in a newspaper interview. "I've never found the right words to explain to a group of people — there are too many individual questions — that's why it has to be taught on a one-to-one basis."

The results, according to Roth and the 1,500 other Marin residents who practice meditation, are a rest and clearing of the mind that go beyond the results of the deepest sleep.

After more than three years of meditation twice a day, young Roth has not only convinced his mother, his father (a physician), his two younger brothers and an older sister to meditate, he has also become a qualified teacher of TM.

"I wanted to be able to explain it very clearly to intelligent people," he gave as his reason for becoming a teacher of TM.

First he earned enough money in his work at the Fairfax Nursery to finance a trip abroad, then Roth took a preliminary course at Humboldt State College and finally he studied in Mallorca, Spain, and in Italy for five months.

In his classes in Europe, Roth studied not only such subjects as biology and physiology but he also received training in how to teach the TM technique from the Indian monk who brought it to the western world.

Maharishi Mahesh Yogi, who began the program of training teachers in this country and other North American and European countries, teaches in Italy now.

ROBERT D. ROTH

"I have no idea," Roth responded when asked about the monk's religion, since this does not play a part in his transcendental meditation teaching.

After the months in Spain and Italy, where Roth found the classes in many instances more interesting than those at Berkeley, he found he soon will be able to get college credit for those courses.

Now he's back in his Greenbrae home, full of youthful enthusiasm for his landscape studies, his plants, his work and his teaching for the Marin transcendental meditation group, headquartered in Mill Valley.

As a final comment on TM, the young man said, "You don't even have to believe in it to have it work." He added that lectures describing the meditation are scheduled at 8 p.m. next Thursday, both at the College of Marin library and Room 332 in the Marin Civic Center.

San Rafael Chamber Votes To Oppose Proposition 18

The obscenity initiative would crack down on exhibitors and purveyors of pornography, as well as restrict what can be exhibited, printed or displayed.

"To legalize this kind of censorship would open the door for other censorship," warned Robert G. McGushin. "Let the parents take care of this matter."

"I can't agree," declared Chamber President Jack E. Bucknum. "Too many of these guys are getting away with smut. Things have gotten too lax and I'd like to see the clamps put on it," he said.

Director Sig K. Herzog said the measure represented unfair regulation. "What you may call smut I may find to be interesting reading," he said.

The state Chamber of Commerce has supported passage of the measure, while the San Francisco chamber has taken no position.

The chamber also took a position against Proposition 1, which would allow a $160 million bond issue to provide for public community college facilities. Both the state and San Francisco chambers have backed the measure.

"Fifty per cent of college students are there to tear this country down and wave the Viet Cong flag," one director declared. Another also argued against the proposal, saying enrollment at community colleges was increasing, but at a decreasing rate.

Directors voted unanimously to oppose Proposition 20, the coastal zone conservation initiative. The vote was taken in the face of a plea for backing of the measure by Merritt A. Robinson, county parks and recreation commissioner.

"A narrow-minded group of conservationists, ecologists, birdwatchers and flower lovers are behind this measure," said director Louis Dela Valle. "This is nothing more than a moratorium."

The chamber also voted to oppose Proposition 14, the Watson tax shift initiative, and backed Proposition 17, the death penalty amendment.

Votes on propositions which generated less controversy were: 2, yes; 3, yes; 4, no; 5, yes; 6, yes; 7, yes; eight, no; 9, no; 10, yes; 11, no; 12, yes; 13, no; 15, no; 16, no; 19, no; 21, yes, and 22, yes.

The San Rafael Chamber of Commerce board also:

NOMINEE — Recommended that the city council select chamber member Fred B. Saccone to fill a vacancy on the city's board of review.

HOUSING — Told Martin Mackey, director of the Ecumenical Association for Housing, that a chamber committee would be set up to study Marin's moderate income housing situation.

FINANCES — Reported that $12,500 was in the chamber treasury but that an $8,000 grant from the city had not yet been received.

REDEVELOPMENT — Urged all chamber members to attend the Oct. 26 public hearing on redevelopment in city hall.

JOINT USE — Heard former county aviation commissioner Benjamin Ostlind report that a chamber advertisement promoting joint use of Hamilton Air Force Base had prompted 421 favorable and 41 negative responses.

Judge Allows Guilty Plea

A Daly City man, who had been charged with three felony credit card violations, has been allowed to plead guilty in Marin Municipal Court to a misdemeanor.

Judge Peter Allen Smith allowed Max Ralph Toscano, 24, to admit signing another's name to a credit card slip and dismissed counts of having a card without the owner's consent and passing himself as the owner.

Sausalito police arrested him June 25 after he allegedly obtained $50 worth of goods from two stores with a credit card that didn't belong to him.

Sentencing is set for Nov. 17.

San Quentin Warden Hits Crime Handling

Crime in the United States has become so rampant that merely a slowdown in its rate of increase is hailed by the attorney general as an accomplishment, Warden Louis S. Nelson of San Quentin Prison told a gathering of Elks Lodge members and peace officers last night.

Speaking at the first Law Enforcement Day dinner sponsored by San Rafael Lodge 1108, B. P. O. Elks, Nelson cited statistics recently released by Atty. Gen. Richard Kleindienst which, he said, produced "much jubilation in several quarters."

"Why was there joy?" he asked. "Was it because crime had taken a dramatic turn downward? No. Was it because it had taken a slight turn downward? Of course not. . . (It was) because the rising crime rate had been slowed down to a two per cent a year increase."

Acceptance of a constantly growing crime rate, declared the warden, goes hand-in-hand with a philosophy that "the rights of the individual transcend the rights of the citizenry."

"The policy of punishment commensurate with the gravity of the offense has long gone by the board," he asserted, "so we not only condone crime itself, but also the lenient method of handling the offender."

Painting Display

New paintings by John Grossman of Woodacre will go on display Monday at the Pantechnicon, 1849 Union Street, San Francisco. The exhibit will continue through Nov. 10.

Marriage Of Pair Dissolved

The marriage of architect Claude Stoller, 51, of Mill Valley and his wife, Anna Maria, 49, has been ended in Marin Superior Court.

Judge E. Warren McGuire dissolved the 26-year marriage Wednesday on grounds of irreconcilable differences.

Stoller, a partner in the award-winning San Francisco architectural firm of Marquis and Stoller and a professor at the University of California at Berkeley, was married June 5, 1946, in Cambridge, Mass. The couple separated June 1, 1972, according to the petition for dissolution.

Under the terms of the decree, Stoller will pay Mrs. Stoller $1 a year alimony and finance the college educations of their three children, Jacob, 21, Dorothea, 19, and Elizabeth, 18.

Third School Will Go On 45-15 Plan

A third Petaluma School will go on the year 'round plan next year — not to save space as at other schools, but in an effort to improve education.

The Old Adobe School District board voted last night to put Bernard Eldredge School on the 45-15 plan beginning July 26 Students will attend school for 45 days, or a nine-week school period followed by three weeks vacation.

Bernard Eldredge will join La Tercera and Miwok Valley schools on the year 'round plan. Old Adobe School will be the only one in the district to remain on the traditional nine-month school calendar.

Norman Ross, special assistant to the superintendent, said students at Bernard Eldredge will not attend on a staggered basis as students do at the two other year-'round schools. At La Tercera and Miwok Valley, where crowding was a problem, the student body was divided into four groups or tracts with attendance staggered so 25 per cent is on vacation at all times.

Ross said that teachers at the other two year-'round schools report children retain more information on the 45-15 Plan since there is less vacation time and learning loss.

Daniel Longacre, Bernard Eldredge principal, said a survey sent to parents was returned by 82 per cent and showed 64 per cent in favor of changing to the new plan. He said 11 teachers also favored the change, while six objected because it would interfere with their lifestyles.

Ross said that parents who do not want their children on the year-'round schedule may transfer students to Old Adobe School. He said students from that school may also be transferred to Bernard Eldredge if parents desire.

San Rafael Planner Hits Impact Report Decision

San Rafael's top planner today called "idiotic" a recent state Supreme Court decision requiring environmental impact reports for all development having a significant effect on the ecology.

The result of the decision has been a virtual statewide moratorium on construction, according to planning director Herbert G. Hotchner.

"It is like saying 'let's stop breathing because the air is polluted,'" said Hotchner, commenting on a court decision handed down Sept. 21 which interprets the state's Environmental Quality Act of 1970 as requiring impact reports for private as well as public developments.

Hotchner, claiming the decision has sparked political panic and opportunism, called the court ruling "cataclysmic" and expressed hope the state Legislature would overturn the decision.

He said the decision would "rip asunder" legislative bodies throughout the state "in an administrative morass of pedantic but inconsequential" environmental impact reports.

"There are mast areas at the present time where we do not know what is (environmentally) significant and even if a report was prepared we would not have a knowledgeable basis for evaluating it," he said, noting the decision requires reports for all development deemed "nontrivial".

Hotchner said he would recommend to the city council that development be found to have significant environmental effect only when "there is reasonable likelihood that it will have significant effect."

The planner pledged to proceed "with maximum dispatch to shuck off the junk aspects of the ill-worded decision," saying that San Rafael's sign and design review ordinances already provide for adequate scrutiny of environmental impact.

Hotchner said he would propose that the city's list of categories of "nontrivial" development adopted in the wake of the decision be fattened "to free the normal wheels of governmental action."

GAS CHAMBER REPLICA VISITS MARIN

A replica of San Quentin's gas chamber, complete with a lifelike dummy, began to draw a crowd yesterday at Northgate, but one of its builders, Demetrius Toteras of San Francisco (at right of guard), was told it had to be moved. No permit to use loudspeakers had been obtained by the planners of a rally against Proposition 17, which would restore the death penalty. The chamber was moved, however, to Corte Madera, where last evening Sen. George Moscone, D-San Francisco, spoke against the proposition at a rally at the Edgewater Inn. The gas chamber was brought to Marin by the local American Civil Liberties Union chapter.

HOW TO KEEP WELL

By DR. THEODORE R. VAN DELLEN

Writer Bothered By Recurring Cold Sores On The Upper Lip

Mrs. A. J. from Seattle wrote the following: "For many years I've had recurring cold sores on my upper lip and always in the same spot. At one time they were related to menstruation, but now that I'm in the menopause, they crop out whenever I am under stress or tension.

"Furthermore, I always know when the little blisters are coming on. I feel feverish and tired. My upper lip begins to burn or is irritated. Within a day or two, the area becomes red and several blisters form. These rupture and the secretions result in a scab. Ten days later, the lesions are gone, especially if they have been kept clean and dry. Is there no end to this?"

Herpes viruses are stubborn critters. Lip involvement is not so bad as herpes of the eye, central nervous system, or genitals. Types 1 and 2 infections are noted. By age 5, most of us have had our first encounter with the virus.

THE MICROBES are passed along mainly by trauma and close contact. Initially the infection is recognizable in only 1 per cent of the victims who develop a three-week illness. The remainder develop an infectious process too mild to recognize or distinguish from a cold. We know this takes place because protective antibodies are found in the blood.

Years later, recurrences are triggered by exposure to the cold, ultraviolet light, fever, menstruation, emotional upsets, or trauma. This is our Seattle reader's problem. A specific preventive is not available, but a number of remedies help after the lesions develop. Several antiviral agents are on the market, but, to my knowledge, the most successful is IDU, an ocular product. Applications of zinc chloride, camphor, alum, and tincture of benzoine hasten healing. Ultraviolet light also is useful.

PHOTODYNAMIC inactivation is promising as a new approach to the treatment of herpes. The blisters are ruptured and a proflavine or neutral red dye is applied. Then the lesions are exposed to an ordinary fluorescent desk lamp for five to 15 minutes at a distance of six inches.

VOLUNTEER WORK

A. P. writes: Will volunteer work in a nursery help a woman who is extremely nervous?

REPLY

Added responsibilites rarely help the emotionally disturbed. Moreover, a jittery adult may have a disturbing influence upon the children in a nursery. On the other hand, there is no better treatment for nervousness than to spend more time thinking of others and less time thinking of self.

TONSILS AND ALLERGY

Mrs. H. writes: Does tonsilectomy leave a child of an allergic father more susceptible to allergies than if the tonsils were not removed?

REPLY

No. Tonsils have nothing to do with susceptibility to allergy.

SKIN TAGS

W. N. writes: What causes tiny tags under the skin?

REPLY

The cause is not known, but these tiny tumors can be removed if they are unsightly or in areas subject to irritation.

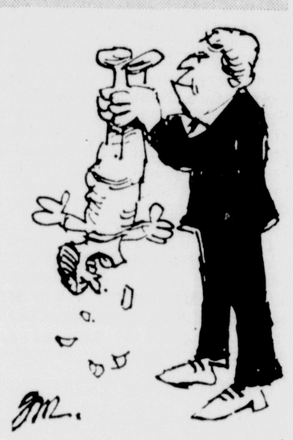
LAW IN ACTION

From the State Bar Of California

Student Rights Are Restricted



Derrance Clarrow, 17, was "invited" to the principal's office for some questioning.

"Derrance," the principal said, "I understand you've been pushing drugs on school grounds."

"Who says?" Derrance demanded.

"One of the students. Now I notice your pockets are bulging, and you've got that peculiar pouch tied to your belt. I intend to search you."

"Not me, Titch," Derrance said. "I got Constitutional rights."

But the principal had the police come in and search the student. They found drugs and money. On this evidence, Derrance was ordered by Juvenile Court to the Youth Authority for six months.

Derrance's attorney appealed. "The search was illegal," he said. "There was nothing to show that the student who made the charge was reliable. There were no weapons involved. Nothing but a suspicion —and pretty weak at that."

But Derrance lost.

The rules for students are different than the rules for adults. For example, school officials may use moderate force to compel obedience by minor students. They may hold and search a student. Besides, they have a duty to protect other students from those who might be peddling drugs, or who stir up misconduct. Here, the court said, there was enough reason to search Derrance.

School authorities may not search a student for no reason at all. There must be some suspicious circumstances, or some action to justify the search.

Suppose another student tells about narcotic sales, and there are grounds for suspicion. Then the school authorities might be at fault for not making an investigation. An interview, and a request to see what was in his pockets was reasonable. Calling the police was an act on behalf of the school, not an independent police investigation.

School people may also search students' lockers if there is cause. Lockers in most schools are not under the exclusive control of the student. They are subject to joint control of the student and the school.

The moon is approaching its full phase. The morning stars are Venus, Mars and Saturn. The evening stars are Mercury and Jupiter.

American educator John Dewey was born Oct. 10, 1859.

On this day in history:

In 1918, Germany accepted American President Woodrow Wilson's terms to end World War I.

In 1944, American troops began a campaign to recapture the island of Leyte in the Philippines. Gen. Douglas MacArthur, forced off the island by the Japanese 2½ years before, said as he strode ashore . . . "I have returned."

SNIPPING AWAY — Members of the San Rafael Goldenaires, about to be evicted from the old county courthouse building at 1101 Fifth Avenue, San Rafael, when it is torn down for a new office complex, continue their many-faceted activities. Last week, Independent-Journal photographers Bob Hax, Jim Kean and Alfred Arn dropped in at the Center at random times of the morning, afternoon and evening and recorded highlights of some of the many programs being offered by the San Rafael Parks and Recreation Department. Shown here during the senior citizen's weekly arts and crafts program are (from left), Nancy Person, recreation center supervisor; Elsie Mazzini, Veronica Canziani and Marie Nouaglia.

Those Happy Sounds Will Soon Fade Away At Familiar Building

By MARLENE FREEDMAN

There are happy sounds of tots, teens and senior citizens echoing through the familiar building at the corner of Fifth Avenue and Court Street, San Rafael, but not for long.

Sometime within the next few months, the McKeon Construction Co. of Sacramento will raze the three-story building — former county courthouse — for an office building complex, evicting the many participants of the San Rafael Parks and Recreation Department programs.

Activities are designed to interest all ages and all interests. For preschool youngsters, there are acrobatics and tumbling, ballet and creative dance. Primary grade children are offered judo, drawing and sketching, ballet, tumbling, creative needlecraft and creative dramatics. Teens take folk guitar lessons and organize and attend dances.

Department officials believe they will be able to reschedule after-school programs and evening programs at nearby schools, but they're worried about the senior citizens.

The 700 members of the San Rafael Goldenaires who dance, paint, do arts and crafts and plan excursions at the Community Recreation Center daily are just as concerned. They are continuing their fund-raising efforts which, to date, have raised more than $10,000 towards a new meeting place.

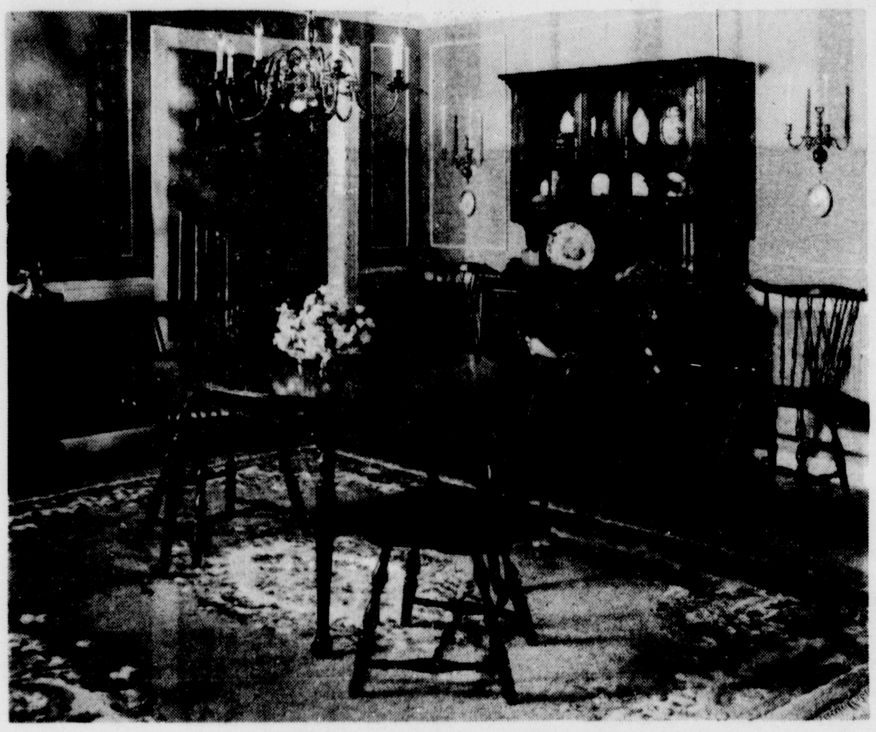
MODULAR SECTIONAL FOR ANY SIZE ROOM

This modular sectional sofa by Henredon can be ordered to fit any size room. The entire decor, coffee table and semi-sheer drapes to allow the view of Mt. Tamalpais is available at Casa Marin, 1654 Second Street, San Rafael.



AMERICAN TRADITIONAL

The mellow warmth of solid cherry is the highlight of this American traditional dining room set by Pennsylvania House, chosen from the most beautiful designs of two centuries. Individual preferences in room decor are no problem with this diversified collection. Something for every traditionalist at the Colony House, 2158 Fourth Street, San Rafael.

Comfort, Space and Lighting Needed For Good Working Spot

Give every youngster the right kind of spot to do homework, where he or she can sit, work and see with comfort and efficiency.

Homeowrk for grade school pupils demands an average of 320 hours a year, it has been estimated, and more for high schoolers. If you expect the youngster to do all the work and do it well, he or she should have a proper "homework-shop."

Main ingredients of a home study center are a comfortable chair, ample desk space and proper lighting — located in a quiet and private corner of the house. Such a spot also helps enrich well-earned leisure hours.

Perhaps the ingredient most often missed is lighting that's bright enough but balanced and always where it's needed. Effects of poor lighting can range from poor study habits to edginess, fatigue and even headaches from eyestrain.

Wall bracket fixtures, properly selected and properly located at the desk, offer excellent solutions, according to consultants of "Light for Living Centers" of the American Home Lighting Institute (AHLI).

Wall fixtures stay put, don't tip over and free the desk top for maximum working surface. Here are two alternate recommendations for lighting the desk area:

1) A pair of 60-watt wall fixtures mounted on each side of the desk. The light sockets should be 30 inches apart, with bottoms of the shades 15 inches above the desk top.

2) A wall bracket extending the length of the work area, also mountej about 15 inches above the desk. Such a fixture should use two 15- or 20-watt fluorescent tubes, six inches from the wall, with a faceboard shield that distributes light upward and downward.

A study area that is conducive to proper reading should avoid lighting that is too dim, too glaring or too harshly contrasting in brightness and shadow. Also be sure that the desk faces a light-colored wall — never a window that will reflect glare.

There should be other lights elsewhere in the room besides the desk area so as to balance the lighting and avoid the eyestrain of contrasts.

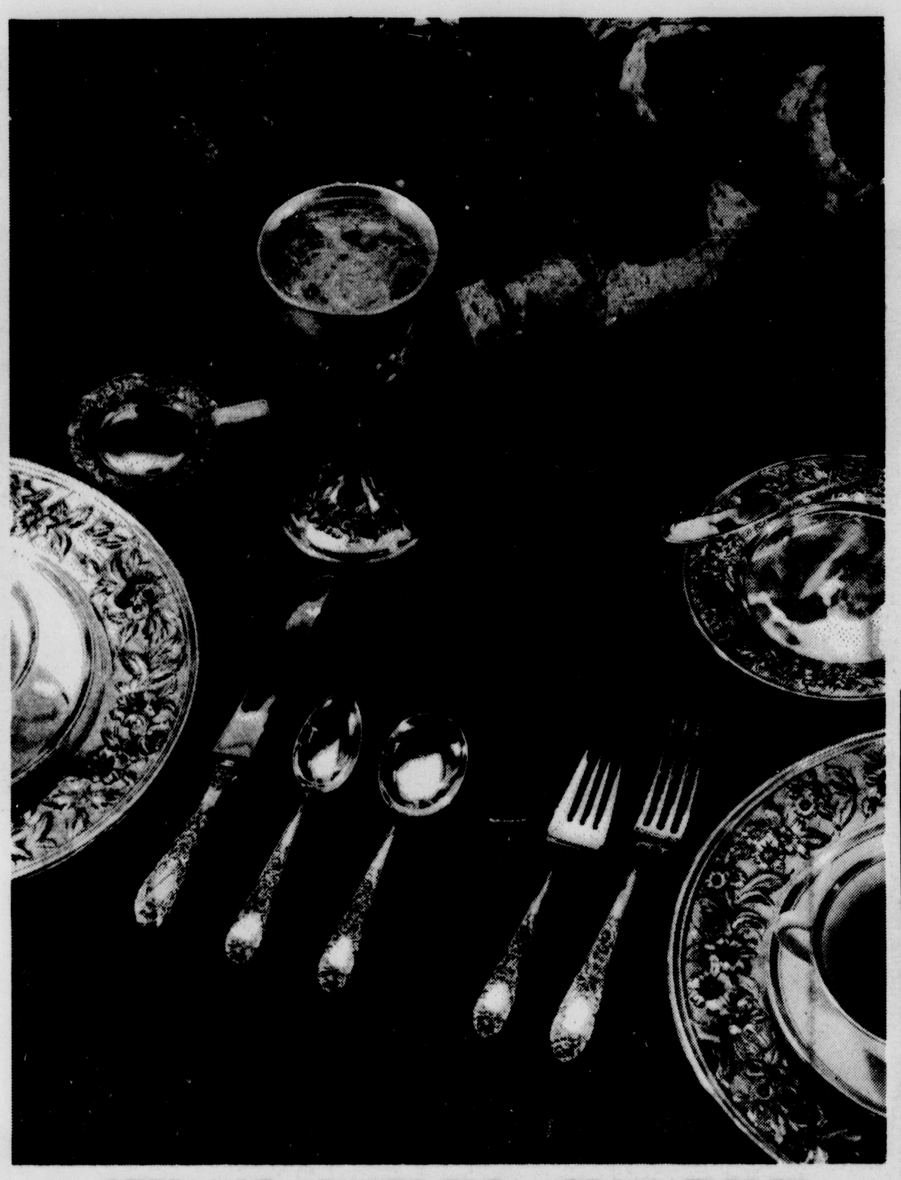
Competing with the distractions of television, conversation and outside activities is difficult enough when homework calls. But quiet, well-planned and well-lighted study area will add to the student's comfort.



STERLING ADVICE FROM GRANAT BROS

The lavish elegance of Sterling always helps create a gay party setting. Sterling belongs, whether in a spacious home or in a tiny apartment, says Ray Randolph, manager of Granat Bros. Northgate Jewelers. "Remember, you can use your Sterling every day — for the rest of your life — so it should be a pattern you truly love, one that best expresses your lifestyle." The elegant sterling holloware shown is Repousse by Kirk with Kirk Rose flatware available at Granat Bros., Northgate Mall, San Rafael.

Kitchen As We Know It Won't Change Very Much

The kitchen, as we know it today, is not going to change dramatically in the next few years. There will be some changes, but these will be more in the order of decor — carpeting, bright colors, new work surfaces, concealed lighting — than in the layout of appliances, food preparation and eating areas.

That is the opinion of Bill Ketcham, kitchen planning manager for Hotpoint, one of the oldest names in major appliances.

The strongest trend in fashion today is the use of bright colors, reports Ketcham, and he sees the trend to strong colors in the kitchen continuing. "The age of beige is long gone and will never be revived."

Appliance designers — as well as kitchen planners — have been paying a lot of attention to the color revolution. At the present time, the major manufacturers offer a choice of four basic appliance colors: Harvest Gold, Avocado, Copertone and White, with the former two rather recent offerings.

"Avocado, since its introduction, is doing well, and White, of course, will always be with us," Ketcham said. "Harvest Gold, after a very slow start, has really caught on with the public. Most of the requests we get today for kitchen designs ask for a bright color, and many specify Harvest.

"In the next few years, though, we'll probably be seeing appliances in additional strong colors that will allow even more freedom of design for the homemaker," Ketcham added.

Woodwork Spiffs Up The Modest Home

You don't have to wear expensive custom-made clothes to look like a million. Neither does your home.

Moderately-priced houses, like average wage-earners, get the "luxury look" from the availability and variety of ready-made products that often rival custom work for beauty and detail. Many homes, for example, are "dressed up" with stock woodwork of ponderosa pine that makes the whole house look expensive.

Luxury fashion in a home or wardrobe usually results from tasteful detailing and the visual distinction it adds. The rich grain in wood gives it natural detail.

In stock woodwork, design and precision-manufacturing do the rest. The visual effectiveness is evident in deep-carved wood panel doors, the filigree pattern of multi-light windows, sharply "sculptured" louver doors, the shadowlines of wood panel shutters, and the handsome grooves and turnings of moldings, cornices and fireplace mantels.

When such features are custom-made, their use can hike home cost out of reach of most families. The wide variety of stock quality woodwork of ponderosa pine available at local lumber and building supply dealers, lets builders sell the luxury look for less than luxury prices. It lets home-owners feel like millionaires.

MEDITERRANEAN LOOK — RB original design furniture is featured in this Mediterranean room setting on display for Debut '73. Eight-foot tufted crushed velvet sofa, with hand carved wood insets and the matching loveseat are accented by an ornately carved oak glass-topped table, and imported webbed leather pull-up stools.

Debut '73 Features New Trends

The trends in colors, fabrics, wood finishes and stylings are featured in six specially designed room settings for Debut '73 at every RB Furniture showroom-store. Highlighting the best of the market as well as RB Original Designs, the displays, by RB decorators, feature contemporary, transitional and Medditeranean themes in color coordinated and completely accessorized settings.

An emerging new fabric favorite is the suede velvet group which simulates the feel of real suede, especially treated for durability and continued good looks. Continuing in popularity for modern settings is vinyl in a rich variety of textures and colors. Velvets of all kinds are extremely popular for transitional and Mediterranean settings, with imported cut velvets showing increased importance in the new designs on the floor.

"Individuality is the desired look in home furnishings," said Phil Martin, manager of the RB Furniture showroom-store in San Rafael. "The personal taste and life style of the user is the most important consideration when our decorator-salesmen design a room for a customer."

He pointed up the increased use of the store's free decorating service by knowledgeable customers. "Through trial and error, many people have learned to avoid costly mistakes by using a decorator. The frequent major mistakes are out of scale furniture and incorrect color selections. Our decorators like to go to the home, or to work from a scale drawing of the room to be furnished, and color coordinate and plan each detail."

Resting-In-Bed Myth Disspelled

There's a myth that says resting in bed, even if you toss around and can't sleep, is as valuable as sleep itself. But the myth is challenged by medical findings.

Three hours of sound sleep may be more refreshing than eight hours of being in bed while the mind is occupied with the cares of the day. Anything that distrubs sleep, such as a lumpy mattress, uncomfortable bedclothes or a poorly ventilated room, should be avoided.

Miniaturization Of The Kitchen

Although the trend in recent years has been to larger, more fully featured kitchen appliances, one leading kitchen planner believes we're on the leading edge of "an era of miniaturization and fragmentation."

"I think we'll always have a main kitchen," says Hotpoint's William Ketcham, "but I look for a great upsurge in food preparation and storage elsewhere in the home, which will somewhat mitigate the need for great capacity kitchen appliances."

In the family room, for example, Ketcham envisions a compact entertainment center that will include a small electric cooktop, a sink and a small undercounter refrigerator. "A portable microwave oven also is a good possibility in this area," he adds. "Why leave your guests while you whip up a pizza, when you can prepare one in the microwave and have it ready to serve in six minutes? Or why be cut off from your late snack when your kitchen has been invaded by a gaggle of hungry teenagers after a party?"

The quiet of the master bedroom is another obvious area for food storage equipment, Ketcham believes. "Why trek downstairs in the dark for a snack when a small bedside refrigerator, which can double as a nightstand, can serve your needs?"

At the other end of the day, "breakfast in bed" is something every mother dreams about; and breakfast — made, served and eaten — in the bedroom is not so wild a dream by the end of the decade, Ketcham says.

With appliances getting smaller, and moving into new areas of the home, Ketcham feels appliance designers can hardly overlook the need for new styling to make these appliances blend with their surroundings — to, in effect, look like the rest of the furniture.

The recent development of high density plastics which can simulate the appearance of fine woods, and which are now being used even on high priced stereo consoles, could well revolutionize the appearance of today's appliances, he said. "How about a Mediterranean-styled refrigerator-nightstand? Or an Early American Maple dishwasher to perfectly match your dining decor?

"I doubt that we'll see any kitchens in this decade in which every appliance looks like a piece of furniture, but certainly the materials and technology are there for anyone who wants to try it."

Ketcham, who has designed more than 8,000 kitchens during more than 15 years with Hotpoint, believes that for the immediate future, however, we can continue to look more for evoltuion than revolution.

Prefinishing Means Less Fix-Up Mess

There's less mess in do-it-yourself remodeling these days. The reason is the availability of prefinished building materials — a virtual boon to home handymen.

Materials that are finished in the factory don't need finishing at home. This saves the time and labor of painting, staining or varnishing and the mixing, mess and clean-up that go with them. Prefinishing also eliminates the need for large work areas at home, and gives more professional-looking results.

Wall paneling, for instance, is a consistently popular do-it-yourself project. Materials such as hardboard panels which can be easily handled, worked and installed make the project feasible for "amateurs." But, it's prefinishing that makes paneling walls convenient and assures worthwhile results.

The factory finishes in which hardboard panels are available — woodgrain designs, textured patterns, hard-wear decorator colors — can't be duplicated outside the factory. "Basic" finishes (stain, paint, varnish) can be applied at home, though several days may be needed for a sufficient number of coats and drying time between. Also, since it's inadvisable to finish panels "on the wall," clear floor spaces or large work tables are needed.

One of the biggest problems for handymen is installing and finishing panel moldings. This job is made easier with prefinished moldings that match woodgrain-design panels.

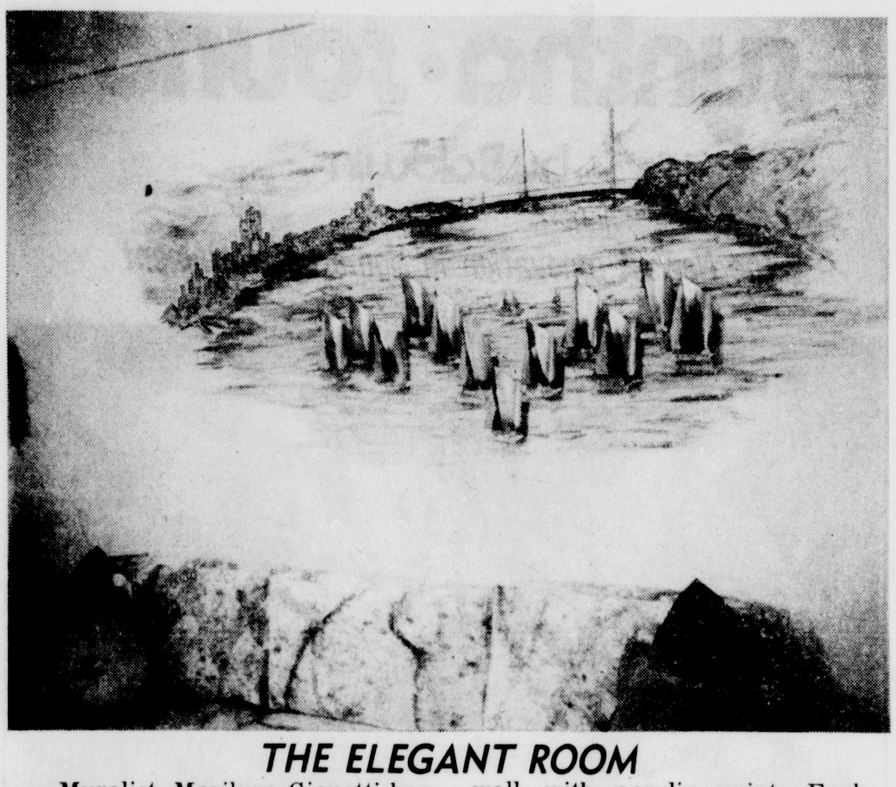
ENTRANCE DOORS ON DISPLAY

Decorator carved doors come in many styles and designs, such as Spanish, Mediterranean, Colonial and Contemporary. They should not only be durable and weather resistant, but should add charm and grace to the home. According to Charles D. Hitchcock (known as "Bill"), president of Mission Wood Products, Inc., "Decorator carved doors are in great demand and we have a large variety to meet every decor". Mission Wood Products, Inc. showroom is located in the Northgate Industrial Park and features other designs than those shown above.



THE ELEGANT ROOM

Combination Tape and Paper Offers New Ideas For Painting

Every amateur painter is familiar with painting tape to insure straight lines without paint smears. Now, there's an improved combination tape and paper which offers countless new versatile painting ideas.

Treated with a special coating on only part of its width, this unusual tape will not stick to itself. This makes it easier to apply and opens up many unique painting possibilities.

The painting tape makes it a simple matter to mask off a variety of outdoor furniture and equipment. Swing and gym sets can easily be repainted in separate colors. Garage doors, barbecue grills can be trimmed in two-tone colors.

Bright greens, yellows, oranges can be striped together on flower pots, ash trays and garden furniture. Painting tape makes the job so clean and straight, people will think it was bought that way.

As a safety feature, the painting tape can be used to mask off danger areas for painting in a different color. For example, porch swings can be highlighted to show where fingers could be pinched, skirts caught or drinks tipped over. Paint the rockers of rocking chairs a brighter color to remind little hands to be careful.

New Advice On Care Of Antiques

By Associated Press

Another season of barn, garage and tag sales is upon us and many amateurs will find little treasures that are bargains.

But many people acquiring antiques and lovely old-fashioned home furnishings aren't really sure how to clean, repair or store their new acquisitions, even though tender, loving care is necessary to keep great cabinetwork and other treasures looking fit for their age.

A timely book, "The Care and Keeping of Antiques" by Epsie Kinard, provides some answers that may help new collectors preserve things of value. Here are some of her suggestions about furniture:

Country pine, poplar and oak if dry and unsealed require oil plus rubbing for an oil-rubbed finish that gives it a special look. It provides sheen without shininess.

This may be accomplished with a recipe used by conservators at the Brooklyn Museum to clean and shine furniture: One-third vinegar, one-third turpentine, one-third boiled linseed oil. Apply mixture with a damp cloth, keeping in mind that linseed oil has a darkening effect and should be wiped off within a short time. Many wipings are necessary to make sure there is no residue, unless one wants to darken the piece. Linseed concoctions should always be used sparingly.

Lacquer: To remove a dulling film use a homemade paste of flour and olive oil. Apply it with a soft, clean cloth and rub it on with a circular motion. After wiping off paste, polish it with an old nylon stocking. For a light cleaning of surface soil, a household spot remover may be wiped on and removed instantly.

Damp cloths should no be used on lacquer t clean smudges or fingerprints as a wooden base may swell and reject the lacquered surface. Many lacquered pieces have paper foundations which might cause peeling if water is used.

Mahogany, walnut, rosewood, fruitwood, cherry, maple, butternut pieces can be made lovelier by hand polishing to achieve low-key gleam.

After repairing such a piece with a wax filler, liquid or solid, the furniture should be waxed sparingly with a hard paste wax and rubbed with flannel. A thin coat of wax and much rubbing will do the trick. Hand rubbing provides the most beautiful patina.)

Marquetry, the little inlaid designs one finds in some old pieces of furniture, can be kept from becoming bone dry by lubricating and cleaning them now and then with a little olive oil. Apply it with a cotton-tipped toothpick or wooden match and rub it with a clean, soft cloth. Do not get the oil on the adjoining wood. After removing surplus oil from the marquetry, dry it and polish it.

Wicker: Antiques made of natural unpainted willow twigs may be cleaned by mixing a tumbler each of peroxide and vinegar into a pail of water and applying it with a sponge. Rinse it with clear water. Let dry thoroughly before using furniture. Clean painted furniture with a sponge and clear water several times a year. Wetting down wicker furniture — painted and unpainted — once a year with a garden hose or putting it under a shower will keep it from drying out. (Chinese families cover wicker with layers of wet newspapers to preserve the furniture until they return from a vacation.)

If wicker is to be repainted, rub the fuzzy fibers that have roughed up with wear with 000 sandpaper, following the lines of the grain, then repaint.

Bamboo or bird's eye maple that has been turned and carved to resemble bamboo has been popular since 1800s when these pieces began arriving from the Far East. It needs only regular dusting and a light waxing occasionally to deter marks and stains.

Cane should be dampened once a month during the steam heat season to counteract dryness. Let dry before using it. If soil must be removed wipe canework clean with a sponge dipped in soapy warm water and wrung out nearly dry. Use a mild soap. Rinse with clear water. Let it dry thoroughly.

Washing furniture: Some people frown on using soap and water on fine furniture, others believe it provides a fresh look. Experiment on a small spot. If the spot turns white, do not use the following method of cleaning.

. . . First remove wax with mineral spirits or synthetic turpentine and proceed at full speed to squeeze a sponge almost dry of suds mixture made with good quality soap, and then wash, rinse and dry a small section before going on. Dust should be whisked out of wood carvings with a bristle brush that is covered with a dry wash-cloth. Let furniture stand 24 hours to dry before rewaxing.

Insect infestation may be spotted when tiny mounds of colored powder are observed under an old piece of furniture. These might be controlled with household insect sprays aimed directly at the holes. Or an exterminator might be consulted.

A good climate for furniture is a relative humidity of around 50 and a temperature of 70 degrees. Moisture should be controlled with humidifier or dehumidifier, if necessary.

Furniture may warp, twist and even crack if it is exposed to too much sunlight.

Retail Carpeting—An Industry That Thrives Best In The Home

With the exception of the Fuller Brush man and the Avon lady (maybe it should be the Fuller Brush gentleman or the Avon woman?) little attempt is made today to effect sales within the home. There's the Sears & Roebuck catalogue and some of the at-home decorating programs such as J.C. Penney's, but otherwise the consumer makes most of her home furnishings purchases in an abstract situation, outside of the home.

But there is one major at-home industry still thriving, and that's retail carpeting. Even when the consumer visits a carpet specialty store or department store, the choices are so vast the salesman usually offers to take swatches and measuring equipment right into the home. And to me it seems rightly so.

Choosing a carpet color, texture and fiber is a tricky business. There seems to be an appropriate kind of carpeting for every interior, but somehow wrong choices are made.

Have you seen the too-long shag tripping up people in a heavily trafficked area? Have you noticed how too much cushioning under a carpet can make you feel too bouncy as you cross a room? And how often have you made the wrong color choice, only to regret it or correct it before the carpet was actually cut or installed?

Carpet should be chosen in the home, if possible. That's where the conditions are right. It's where you have the paint colors and wallpapers for quick comparison. And the salesman who comes loaded with samples usually has some knowledge of design, along with his carpet expertise.

When you decide to shop for new carpeting, let the salesman know, before he arrives, of your personal preferences and the kind of life-style the family is involved in — such as casual, comfortable, formal.

Give him a quick rundown of the look you'd like to achieve. Then he'll be able to better select samples for the visit. Don't forget price. There are good colors and fiber choices in low- and middle-price carpeting so you need not exceed the amount budgeted for the project.

According to Mrs. Lee Kolker, vice-president of styling for C.H. Masland & Sons, the carpet specialty stores are expanding their at-home selling techniques.

"Traditionally, the specialty stores have not shown their carpets in room settings, principally because of floor space limitations and lack of accessories at hand," she explained.

Decorating Guide Helps Women Choose Carpets With Patterns

Women occasionally need a shoulder to lean on when it comes to decorating with a patterned carpet on the floor.

In consumer preference surveys, one major carpet manufacturer found that some women have purposely avoided using patterned carpet. These women think that carpet patterns are difficult to fit into a room's overall decorating scheme.

Yet, more and more, the trend in home furnishings is to patterns. And not only that, but more patterns are being mixed than ever before — stripes with plaids, swirls with geometrics, and so on.

To put women at their ease, a free decorating guide is being made available by Armstrong to accompany its Adventure Prints patterned carpets.

The guide shows assorted room scenes and color schemes for each pattern in the line. The guide also features color photographs of the carpet with assorted paint chips, drapery fabrics, upholstery material, and accessories.

In addition to the helpful information contained in the guide, it also pays to bear in mind three simple decorating tips related to mixing patterns.

One, when mixing patterns, be sure that they are linked together by a common color bridge; that is, a color that all of the patterns share.

Two, vary the scale from pattern to pattern. Otherwise, the room will look cluttered or busy.

Three, when possible, adopt the room's overall color scheme from the carpet. The colors in the carpet were skillfully blended by trained product stylists, who know the rules of combining colors.

Backings On Rugs Are Studied

NEW YORK (UPI) — More than 20 per cent of the carpet made in this country now has a built-in backing of high density latex foam rubber, according to an industry source.

A government study of carpet underlays revealed that all the underlays tested significantly improved carpet life, with wear increases ranging from 7 per cent to over 100 per cent, says the Latex Foam Rubber Council adding that carpet underlays significantly reduce noise.

The two types of rubber underlays — sponge rubber and foam rubber — now account for more than half of underlay sales. The rubber underlays are made by different manufacturing processes, but share many features. Both are non-allergenic, dustless, clean, moth-and-mildew proof, and can be used over concrete or below grade.

Other types of underlays include hair, jute, combinations of the two, and rubberized versions of these fiber pads. Generally, they must be treated for moth and mildew protection, the council says. Check the label for this necessary information.

A Neat Trick

Particularly in a small bathroom, the idea of being able to match paper and shower curtain is a neat trick. It not only adds continuity of design, but a genuine "decorator" touch.

Rooms Full Of Decorating Ideas

By VIVIAN BROWN
AP Newsfeatures Writer

Viewers should be able to learn something from designer-decorated rooms in a new 42-story cooperative house in New York City that is open to the public for a fee. Deocrated by 17 well-known members of the American Institute of Interior Designers, there are structural ideas that should appeal to do-it-yourselfers and hundreds of decorating ideas that can be modified or expanded to one's own interior design perspective. The apartments are in a luxury bracket prestigious residential area.

One contemporary sitting room is so exhilarating, it fairly sings. Designed by James P. Tillis, it resembles an abstract painting with its orange, white and black fabric swirling up upholstered lounges, sofas and chairs. Mirrors and a polished steel tble increase the shimmer and bounce that is tamed a little by an Edward Fields rug in a geometrical pattern.

A sight and sound;room by Vladimir Kagan in earth browns, beige, apricot and mauve might be called a gathering room. The 12-by 16-foot room seats 12 people comfortably on five levels. Although the room is furnished in contemporary style, there is a medieval feeling to it. Designed for writing, reading, listening and hovering, the room has a movie screen that drops down in front of the window blinds to accommodate a closet-focused projector. There are zig-zag bookshelf arrangements for various size books and a handsome table, a block carved to reveal different inlaid woods at different levels with a top designed to be used for chess and other games.

David Barrett's back-to-nature bedroom has a canopy bed with tendrilled metal flowers climbing up its white-painted posters. Wall are dark blue lattice over white, and the treillage is carried through the halls. A small white bathroom picks up the blue and white motif in a handsome tailored wallpaper. Bleached white floors are hand-stenciled in flowers. Ditto narrow-slat window blinds.

One living room provided an enormous feeling of solitude in its hushed atmosphere. In tones of deep grays, it had floor-to-ceiling louver-shuttered walls, long gray-painted metal cylinders from the ceiling projecting light, among other innovations. Many decorators close off windows in cities where views on lower floors may overlook bleek courtyards or other uninspiring views, and this room showed the advantages of shutting out distractions.

A child's bedroom: A false wall had two large portholes at the window area. Other walls were curved at ceiling and bottom and tree-pointed in a variety of soft shades. Light shown above and below slim shadow boxes that lined the walls like soffits.

Indoor Garden: One end of a bedroom was partially framed on either side to provide a line of demarcation for plants. Two mirrors on either side of the window wall could be seen through the framing, giving a feeling of depth.

The family that plays together: A sofa done in patchwork style — each cushion, backrest and base section done in different brown and white fabric patterns could be a great decoration boon to the hard-living family with children and animals. Recover the damaged cushion and you can still be in style. The sofa was set against paisley wallpaper.

Large cube end tables: A good item for the do-it-yourselfer, these large cubes are becoming increasingly popular as end tables. The center core is covered with treated glass through which a light shines.

In addition to properly proportioned cabinet and appliance arrangements in his kitchen, for which he is well-known, Joseph Freitag designed a handsome breakfast room and hooby room in a small space in the "L" of the kitchen.

Don't Be Afraid To Mix Periods

Some of the country's leading architects say do not be afraid of mixing up the modern and the traditional when it comes time to remodel.

The original style of the older house need not be reproduced slavishly in the newer additions. Of course, a compatability should be sought and in this endeavor the advice of your architect will be invaluable.

He will most likely consider not only the new addition in relation to the original house, but the remodeled home in relation to neighboring buildings.

This latter consideration is important both to you and your neighbors because property values can be either favorably or adversely affected by the presence of a showplace or an eyesore on your block or in your neighborhood.

Select The Right Paint For Room

Planning on repainting? Be sure to use the right type of paint for the different rooms. Water paints are ideal for the bedrooms, halls, den, or living room but tend to absorb the humidity of a kitchen or bathroom.

Be sure to check with your paint salesman for the correct paint. By simply telling him which room the paint is for, he will be able to help you select the proper type paint.

Wealthy Decorator Says Taste More Important Than Money

By KATHLEEN NEUMEYER

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — Bernard Gelbort earns fees up to $2 million for planning the interior decorating for the Palm Beach and Southamptom homes of wealthy clients. But he says taste and money don't necessarily go together.

"Taste is far more important," he adds. "A young married couple with, say, $1,000 to spend on the furnishings for a whole apartment can achieve a very smart effect with taste and simplicity. You don't have to spend a lot of money.

"Color is the most important element. You need to choose colors you can live with day in and day out."

Gelbort recommends that no matter how limited the budget, an interior decorator be contacted, if only for an hour's consultation.

"Of course, you can't go to the most expensive decorator, because they're too snobbish," he said.

"You need to find a decorator who specializes in $40,000 or $50,000 houses, and an hour's consultation would probably cost about $35."

If a couple prefers modern styles, they should look for a designer they know specializes in that field, he cautions.

"I wouldn't be able to help someone who wanted chrome and glass," he said, "because that just isn't my thing. I like antiques."

Gelbort says young couples with taste who frequent auctions can often pick up pieces for $40 or $50 which will be worth $1,000 in 15 years.

"The old craftsmen are gone, and good objects d'art are becoming scarcer and scarcer," he said.

"Within 35 years only the very wealthy will be able to afford antique furniture and very fine objects of art," he said "and I'm not talking about people with $300,000 or $400,000 homes. I'm talking about people like Onassis."

Gelbort says a couple with a limited budget shouldn't blow it all on one major piece.

"They need a couple of comfortable chairs to sit in, and then they can add some good pieces," he said.

Houseplants fill up space and have an attractive appearance, according to Gelbort.

He has been an avid antique collector himself since he was a student at the Chicago Art Institute, beginning his collection with a Chinese vase from the H'an dynasty.

"Actually I bought it for a lamp. I really didn't know what I was getting.

"Some people collect guns, I collect antiques. I wish they would start an Antique Buyers Anonymous, because I know I can't control myelf.

"At auctions when the prices are going up, I resent other people for bidding against me."

Gelbort has acquired several hundred fine examples of Chinese dynastic antiquities from the H'an dynasty, dating from 220 to 440 A.M., the T'ang and Wei dynasties, and 18th Century Persian and Japanese ceramics.

Mostly, he keeps them for his own pleasure "but one horrible woman came in and saw them, and now she wants to buy them."

I'm hysterical, because of course I want the money, but I don't want to part with them," he said.

"Eight years ago when I opened the antique shop, I brought in a big T'ang horse to dress up the place and put a big price on it so it wouldn't sell.

"While I was away, someone bought it. I made a big profit on it, but it would be worth much more today."

METALS GAIN POPULARITY

Clean Fun In The Mud Room

Good clean fun has a way of getting children plenty dirty. If you have an active family fond of outdoor play and you are also planning to modernize your laundry area, consider the Mud Room.

Many homes, especially pre-World War II vintage, have hall space directly inside the back door which is generally unused. The mud room utilizes this space for the washer and dryer or combination washer-dryer. It has the advantage of keeping the kids from tracking in slush during the winter months and just plain dirt and mud the rest of the year.

The kitchen floor remains clean because wipe-ups are confined to the mud room's small floor space. Seconds after entering the house soiled clothes are safely deposited in the washing machine.

You will want to install overhead cabinets with fresh clothes changes and a rack or two for soggy snowsuits.

Reserve one cabinet for soaps, bleaches and clean-up equipment. Storage in the overhead cabinets keeps them safe from the reach of curious little hands. Think seriously about vinyl asbestos tile for the floor. It is economical, long-lasting and easy to maintain.

Available widely in easy-to-install squares with self-adhesive, it comes in a variety of attractive patterns, including simulated brick and travertine.

Kitchen Carpentry —A Wide Selection

When it comes to the carpentry of your kitchen, you have a wide choice of manufactured wood cabinets, steel cabinets, or local custom-made cabinets.

Similarly, you have a choice of pre-fabricated or locally built counter tops.

The Conversion To Flameless Heating

Conversion to flameless electric heating can be accomplished simply by the installation of unobstrusive baseboard radiators, electric resistance cable embedded in the ceiling, or individual heating units recessed in the walls.

If you prefer to utilize existing warm air ductwork or hot water piping, you can replace your existing fuel-burning furnace with a small electric furnace that heats the air or water with close to 100 per cent efficiency.

New Ideas In Lighting

A number of attractive outdoor lighting systems are on the market today ranging from the soft nostalgic glowing gas light for poolside and driveway to the high-watt crime-deterrent system for discouraging prowlers at night.

Flood lights gardens and walkways provide "other rooms" for those families who entertain large groups.

Landscaping will take on an almost fairy-like beauty with imaginative flood lighting. Thermostats will automatically turn the lights on and off at the hour you dictate relieving you of all worries about wasting electricity or gas.

Create Special Interest Areas

In home decoration, try to create special interest areas. This could include a corner where you exhibit a china collection, collect books, listen to music or enjoy art.

"Most interesting rooms," says Selig's Elroy Edson, "are the ones that tell you something, often through collections or hobbies. Incorporate your special interests in your floor plan."

Compact Laundries Beat Space Problem

The scene might be an apartment, a small home or a vacation cottage; the occupants — newlyweds, a retired couple or a single person.

The problem, however, is common to most all, and the problem is space. That's the main problem, at any rate; often, there's an additional problem when it comes to coping with the laundry — special wiring or a gas line isn't available for a dryer, or it isn't possible to have a washer permanently installed.

Not too long ago there wasn't any choice — you either had to lug the laundry someplace or you had to spend endless hours sinkside, scrubbing by hand. Or perhaps, you ended up doing both.

Well, now you can put an end to all that lugging and scrubbing. You can have a laundry center just about anywhere you might want it; compact laundry appliances fit into small places without the bother of installation.

Why not break a precedent — there's no reason you should have to cart the family laundry back and forth to some dismal corner of the basement or garage. Most soiled laundry — clothing and the bedding — accumulates in the bedrooms, so a narrow niche in the bedroom hallway, or even in one of the bedrooms, saves countless steps. A corner of the kitchen, or hallway nearby, also makes good sense, since it lets you combine some of your kitchen activities with your washing.

Compact laundry appliances take up as little as four feet of wall space, 15 inches deep. All you need is an adequately wired 115-volt outlet within five feet or so of the spot selected, so you can plug it in.

The Trend To Nature Colors

The trend in the country and suburbs is to use nature colors to make the low houses harmonize with their settings — the grass, trees, and shrubs surrounding them.

Instead of painting his ranch house white with dark green shutters, today's homeowner may paint it solft beige, trim with white, and accent with sumac red or olive green shutters.

Because grass and leaves are warm greens, olive and moss green paints blend better than the strong raw greens which have too long been standard for shutters.
